

4 INDICTMENT BILLS READY FOR MOYER

State May Ask Additional Counts Against Accused North Penn Cashier

PROBE LAFEAN'S ACTIONS

Four bills of indictment and possibly more are to be asked against Ralph T. Moyer, former cashier of the wrecked North Penn Bank, by Assistant District Attorney Taulane, of the Grand Jury, on Thursday.

Moyer, at liberty under $25,000 bail, will be obliged to renew his bail bond should bills of indictment be found. It is not believed, however, that the authorities will demand increased bail.

50000 Bond Gone

Investigation by the state probes who are trying to clear away the financial debris of the bank, say that Moyer hypothecated the $50,000 Liberty Bond with other securities, to obtain a loan of $13,000 from the Union National Bank.

For the first time since their appointment, Samuel H. Barker and Walter K. Harlt, the two appraisers appointed as the State Banking Department act requires, by Banking Commissioner Fisher, to appraise the assets of the North Penn Bank, met today in the office of Colonel Fred Taylor Pusey, special deputy attorney general.

Officers of the former bank clerks and officials of the wrecked institution are expected to be summoned by the appraisers to give testimony as to certain accounts and items listed in the preliminary schedule of assets.

It is believed that Moyer and his brother Rex, who held the cashier's office of the bank, will be called to tell what they know of the listed assets.

To Press Ambler

Colonel Pusey will see Harry S. Ambler, brother of Charles A. Ambler, former insurance commissioner, today, and who appeared for him when he was admitted to $15,000 bail yesterday, with a view of learning what, if any, arrangements have been made for the repayment of Ambler's indebtedness.

It was made that while it was reported that Ambler some days ago had repaid $10,000 on account of his indebtedness, he actually only paid, in the words of Colonel Pusey, "a few thousand dollars."

Hope was expressed today, however, by Colonel Pusey that he would be able to discover whether Ambler, Davis Company, contractors, from his own holdings, and from the state of Maryland, which still owes the Ambler-Davis firm $26,000 on a contract which is now pending, sufficient money to repay Ambler's indebtedness.

Arrests Impending

Attorney General Schaffer, upon whom devolves the decision of determining the question of jurisdictional authority in the event of the arrest and prosecution of "a former state official," is said to have decided the question.

Philadelphia county is understood to have authority to issue a warrant.

Ready to Go Ahead

Mr. Taulane, assistant district attorney, speaking of future developments, declared:

"We are ready now to go ahead with an investigation that will probe the depths of the North Penn trouble. If it appears that others are criminally involved in the scandal they will be prosecuted regardless of who they may be."

Interest centers in the visit of Deputy Attorney General H. J. Myers to this city today, the first since he visited Attorney General Schaffer at White Face Inn, Lake Placid, N. Y., for a conference on the jurisdictional question and on other matters of importance in connection with the bank trouble.

District Attorney Rotan will return to the city tomorrow to go over the case.

MAY END PITTSBURGH STRIK

Garmen Will Meet Thursday to Consider Compromise Offer

Pittsburgh, Aug. 19.—(By A. P.)—The first step toward ending the strike of 3000 motormen and conductors of the Pittsburgh Railway Company, which has tied up traffic here since last Thursday night, was taken today by the executive committee of the local division of the Amalgamated Association of Electric and Street Railway Employees which called a meeting of strikers to vote on calling off the strike.

The meeting will be held Thursday at 10 o'clock, at which time the men will be asked to accept the national war labor board's award of a five-cent an hour wage increase.

Deputy United States marshals today served summons on the local car men's union, its officers and men in connection with the action against the strikers yesterday, the railway company asking $200,000 damages, charging the men with breach of contract in not accepting the war board's decision.

If You Would Vote You Must Register

One week from today you must register—August 26. Do not delay, you may be absent on succeeding registration days. You must have a property or poll tax. Poll tax is sold at all polling places, which will be open next Tuesday from 7 a. m. to 1 p. m. and from 4 to 10 p. m. It is Good Citizens Day. Don't forget the date!

Soldier Support Asked by Moore

Continued From Page One The shingles that have bound it to the contractor machine. "Senator Vare has said that I am not a reformer. True, I am not a reformer in the technical sense of the word, but I am that kind of a Republican that resents autocratic domination by a contractor machine. I have been fighting for the nation in Washington for years, or I might have been fighting for the city here."

"Going into this campaign was not of my choosing. I rebelled and resisted. This is not my personal fight. But it is the fight of the Republicans who are united to redeem this city and to purify the Republican party."

In Washington we heard strange rumors of New York things brought into this city to heat and incite good citizens who had dared to oppose the political bosses. Four years ago we were told by Mayor Smith that the city police were to be taken out of politics. Were they? Smith said he was a man of high ideals. They elected Smith. Then it became a case of—

Cites Fifth Ward Murder

"Recently this state had a most unfortunate gubernatorial experience, and a Governor was elected to whom good honest men came with sound advice. They wanted to help him and to help their great state, but they found that the veteran professional politicians already had his ear, and in sorrow and in shame he turned away, saying:—

"Let Vare do it."

"And he did."

"Many men who profess today to be good citizens and who talk most eloquently and continually of the high ideals of good citizenship are not there on the one important day of the year, they say: 'What's the use? Let Vare do it.'"

"This was the case on that fair September morning when the men from the slums of New York were brought here—our ward most outrageously denominated 'the bloody Fifth.'"

"There they blacked and murdered."

"Let Vare do it," was the cry that prevailed. If Vare did not do it then the mute evidence lies behind the bars of the West Chester jail. They would not have gone to jail. They would not have been involved in this monstrous crime if it had not been for the system of power aggrandizement and of contracts that ruled our city at that time, and that seeks to rule it now.

"These men who now wear convicts' clothes could have been guided in the right way. Instead they were the victims of a system that has its foundations in the number of good people who are totally indifferent to the menace of the contractor bosses, and who are willing to dismiss the matter with 'Let Vare do it.'"

"Shouts of criticism are going to be launched against this candidate. They will fall like the water that falls on a duck's back, because all our history and our past will not be scathed by earth hour rumors. He is not to be frightened by mountains of post card attacks, by pyramidal stacks of denunciation."

"Do you think it was a daring thing to enter this campaign?"

"I was led to believe that this was a free country. I was taught that in the United States the lowest might aspires to the highest place."

"I never understood that I must be made to bend the knee to the dictates of one individual controlling the system."

"If you are going to support this movement and strike a blow at the contractor you must see to it that you and your friends and neighbors register and enroll as Republicans on August 26th."

"We are ready now to go ahead with an investigation that will probe the depths of the North Penn trouble. If it appears that others are criminally involved in the scandal they will be prosecuted regardless of who they may be."

Kendrick Hands One Back to Senator Vare

Mordach Kendrick, head of the Moore campaign committee, dropped a pointed brick, figuratively speaking, on the head of Senator Vare during a short passage of repartee between the two men last night.

The incident, which occurred at Kugler's restaurant, was the result of an accidental meeting of Moore and Vare campaign forces prior to their stump-speaking activities.

The Moore party was already seated at dinner when the others, headed by Senator Vare, entered the dining room. Stepping up to Mr. Kendrick, Senator Vare slapped him on the shoulder, saying:

"Kendrick, we're going to give you the worst licking you ever had."

"That's rather discouraging," retorted Mr. Kendrick, with a look of expression of sorrow, and then added: "But I suppose you mean when 'Bill' becomes chairman of the anti-republican committee."

REPRESENTATIVE MOORE SPEAKS IN VAREVILLE

VARE'S "VEST POCKET" MEN WON BY MOORE'S SPEECH

Snappy as Lightning Outside, Says One Listener and Everybody Cheers Candidate's Shots at Downtown Leaders

"Happy as just like that lightning" outside—bright, clean, snappy! When he strikes, he strikes hard! And the old man who said it was sitting on one of the rough benches in a small, low-ceilinged room of the White Elephant, a hotel at Twenty-second and Passunk avenues, said: "I had been mayor I would have been right on hand to welcome you back. While you were away your roots were raised, and in a number of cases soldiers' families were thrown out of their homes without any redress from the city authorities."

"You go on Stump, He Cries. You boys should go on the stump. It won't hurt you, and will help a lot toward cleaning the city. The contractor's odds are against you, but show them you can fight just as well for right as for wrong as you did for the city."

Mr. Moore then told of the work done by the Atlantic Deepwaterways Association and how he had been instrumental in sending a regiment of engineers to France to build up European waterways.

"I want you to be impressed with the magnitude of your own country," said Mr. Moore. "If your trip abroad has been of any benefit to you now is the time to show it."

He raked his right arm for a snout, then smashed his fist into the palm of his left hand.

"Great heavens, men!" he fairly shouted. "What have I been doing since I was thirteen years old, but laboring, laboring for myself, laboring for my family, laboring for other people in this city and in the halls of Congress."

"I am the father of eight children. I have to keep my eye on the grindstone, same as you do. But I'm not so poor, thank God, that I need any unearned money from anybody. Folks may give money to the campaign, but they'll give me nothing."

Outside a storm was gathering. During the earlier part of the meeting faint lightning flashes flickered through the window blinds, and the rumbling thunder sounded at intervals. A gust of cool air swept through the room and then in a trice the lightning snapped, and the thunder cracked, and the rain lashed the lastly closed windows.

Inside Storm, Too. Inside another storm. The quiet conversation of Congressman Moore gradually changed. He shot out facts that tingled the ears of the 200 men in the room. The fire of his eyes flashed out from under his high forehead and his restless arms and his fighting fists pounded an added force to his words.

"I'll no more take orders from Penrose than I'll take orders from Vare!" he shouted. And the men applauded.

"Who picked Tom Smith for Mayor?" "Vare!"

"Who picked the Deutsch for the Fifth ward?" "Vare!" they fairly shouted.

"Who picked Ambler for state insurance commissioner?" "Vare!" again there was a shout.

Thunder and lightning and applause went fifty-fifty when the congressman laid down the steps to the hallway of the building. As he was about to leave the White Elephant, a lightning bolt, in a terrific thunderclap, struck a telegraph wire, rolled along it and disappeared.

Through the driving rain to a waiting automobile, and then to the Independent Republican committee meeting at 5700 Germantown avenue.

The hall was larger than that of the North Philadelphia, and it was crowded to the doors. The cheers that greeted Mr. Moore lasted long enough to embarrass him a bit.

Demagogue Day Passing. "The old-time leaders like to hunc the public," he said, "the men drinking in every word. The old-time leader thinks he knows how to play the citizen, the soldier, the church, for whatever he can get out of them. But he's done up. He's fast growing wise to the wiles of the demagogue, and he's going to let it on registration and election day."

Mr. Moore then told of the work done by the Atlantic Deepwaterways Association and how he had been instrumental in sending a regiment of engineers to France to build up European waterways.

"I want you to be impressed with the magnitude of your own country," said Mr. Moore. "If your trip abroad has been of any benefit to you now is the time to show it."

He raked his right arm for a snout, then smashed his fist into the palm of his left hand.

"Great heavens, men!" he fairly shouted. "What have I been doing since I was thirteen years old, but laboring, laboring for myself, laboring for my family, laboring for other people in this city and in the halls of Congress."

SPROUL HAS NEW IDEA TO FIGHT LIVING COSTS

Governor, in Salt Lake City, Considers Methods of Reducing High Prices

Special Dispatch to Evening Public Ledger, Salt Lake City, Aug. 19.—Governor Sprout, of Pennsylvania, has obtained numerous new ideas regarding methods to fight the high cost of living.

He intends to place them in operation when he returns to Harrisburg. The Governor is here attending the convention of governors of states.

"While I believe," he said, "that Pennsylvania has done as much as possible in this regard, I have gained some ideas which, worked out, will make the co-operation of the states with the profiteering and hoarding more effective."

Federal control of railroads is contributing to the high cost of living through high passenger and freight rates, according to the Governor.

Speedy return of the lines to private ownership in as good condition as before being taken over by the government, is favored by the Pennsylvania executive.

Governor Sprout scored the Plumb plan by which it is proposed by the workers that the railroads shall be governed by a committee of fifteen members to represent the general public and ten members of the employed. He called the plan unfair.

The Warfield plan, by which the railroads would collect 4 per cent of their investment, any surplus to be divided equally among the public, the workers and the earning railroad, he characterized as makeshift.

DOONER FAVORS MOORE

Hotelman Sees End of "Despotism" if He is Elected

Edward J. Dooner, proprietor of Dooner's Hotel, and a leader in Irish-American affairs, favors the candidacy of Congressman Moore for the mayoralty nomination.

In a letter to Congressman Moore, Mr. Dooner declares: "Philadelphia is the only spot on earth where a military despotism is tolerated."

"But," he continues, "with your election, I confidently predict a restoration of true representative government."

"I am particularly pleased with your announcement that it is not the purpose of your campaign to promote individual ambitions, or to indulge in personal attacks," wrote Mr. Dooner.

"Under your able and practical leadership, the time is ripe for a spontaneous uprising of the citizens to assume control of their own affairs."

TWO KILLED BY LOCKJAW

Boy and Youthful Hog Island Worker Victims of Infection

Two persons are dead from lockjaw following injuries received a week ago.

Six-year-old George Snyder, of 2013 North Eighteenth street, died in the Woman's Homeopathic Hospital from tetanus resulting from a sewer lid fall on his hand and crushing three fingers.

Michael Craven, nineteen years old, of 1740 North Wernock street, was caught by his left arm in a machine at Hog Island, where he was employed. Tetanus developed and he was taken to the Misericordia Hospital, where he died yesterday.

NEW DAYLIGHT BILL LIKELY TO PLEASE BOTH SIDES

Emil P. Albrecht Looks for Congress to Pass Both Sides

Emil P. Albrecht, president of the House of the measure repealing daylight saving, over the President's veto, said:

"Another bill, it can be safely said, will be introduced in Congress. I do not know what we could do right away, but we have plenty of time for action before next March, when the repeal of the daylight-saving act would be first felt. Between now and that time, we hope to be able to prepare a bill which will receive the approval of the agricultural element. We surely can find a way to please the farmers and yet continue to profit by daylight saving."

"It was a surprise to hear that the act repealing the daylight-saving bill has been passed over the President's veto. It shows the strength of the farmers as Washington. They were the chief and almost the sole opponents of the daylight-saving law."

"You all know Judge Patterson!" Mr. Vare exclaimed. "The fifteen years' record in the district attorney's office, in the city solicitor's office and on the bench of the clean, honest and upstanding young fellow is a pretty good guarantee for the future."

"Now, I want you men to take your division books and go from door to door. It'll be easy, and I can say to you men of the Fort-third ward that if the election were tomorrow Judge Patterson would win two to one."

Senator Vare took a nip at so-called "reform" in an address last night at the Independent Republican Club, Broad street and Erie avenue.

The senator said the workers of the ward, which is the Fort-third, would find the judge the easiest vote-getter that Senator Vare had ever met in his thirty-five years experience.

"What do they spell for reform?" Mr. Vare asked. "Happy Moore has been an organization man for twenty-five years. Where does he get off as a reformer?"

PEARL NECKLACES ASSEMBLED IN ANY DESIRED DEGREE OF IMPORTANCE

Posse Catches Jail Breaker Auburn, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Prison guards and a posse of deputies under sheriff Thomas Walker captured Charles Hultman, who escaped from the state prison here on Saturday night in the shadow of a water tower at Savannah, where he was waiting to board a West Shore freight train already in sight. The posse spent all day yesterday following Hultman's trail, which took them nearly twenty miles.

VARE SAYS PATTERSON IS GOOD VOTE GETTER

Senator Tells 43d Ward Followers He's Easy Man to Work For

"Some 'vote getter'!" This is Senator Vare's opinion of Judge Patterson, the Vare mayoralty candidate. The senator spoke last night at the Reed Republican Club, Broad street and Erie avenue.

The senator said the workers of the ward, which is the Fort-third, would find the judge the easiest vote-getter that Senator Vare had ever met in his thirty-five years experience.

150 CHILDREN ON PICNIC

Curtis Country Club Gives Outing a Lawndale

The picnic which was to have been held last week at the Curtis Country Club, at Lawndale, for 150 children, under the supervision of the State Dispensary, is being held today.

Children under fourteen years of age, some accompanied by parents, met at Seventeenth and Cherry streets, met at 9 o'clock this morning and took a special trolley car to Lawndale. The picnic was provided through the generosity of the Automobile Club of Philadelphia.

Nurses from the North, South and West Philadelphia dispensaries were in charge of the picnic and provided lunches for those children who did not bring food from home.

COUNCIL CANDIDATES TO BE PICKED TODAY

Both Factions Must Complete Tickets—Last Chance to File Petitions

WADE MAY ENTER THE RACE

Neither Republican faction has completed its slate for Council and the Republican organization still has two places on its ticket for row offices unfilled.

Both factions must complete their slates today, as the time for filing nominating petitions for the primary, September 16, expires at midnight.

Independent councilman candidates have been requested to file their nomination papers and the Independents will endorse their candidates after their papers have been filed.

Vare leaders may try to make inroads on the independent strongholds in the Thirty-eighth and Forty-eighth wards by taking advantage of the dissatisfaction caused by the make-up of the independent slates in those wards.

Select Councilman Ira Garman, Independent, may be slated by the Vare organization from the Forty-sixth ward, and Common Councilman Harry Davis, former captain of the Athletics, from the Thirty-eighth ward.

Dissatisfaction has arisen in the Forty-sixth ward over the slating of Common Councilman Francis F. Burch for Council by the Independents. Garman, who has always been an independent, announces that he will run, but says he has not sought Vare support.

Trouble has been brewing in the Thirty-eighth ward, where A. Lincoln Acker is the leader since the Acker forces slated Representative Sigmond J. Gans for Council. Davis threatens to run and the Vare organization it is reported, will support him at a workers' meeting in the Thirty-eighth ward tonight.

Such action would be counted on to make serious inroads in the Acker organization.

Select Councilman Bradenburgh, elected by the Penrose-Independent forces, is reported to have led the march into
