THIS STARTS THE STORY

A house party is being held at the country home of Katherine and Bingham Harvard. Among the guests is one Conrad Belknap. Katherine discovers him cheating at cards. Convinced that he is concealing his real identity and that he is there for some ulterior purpose, Katherine determines to ferret out the myster . She has formerly had experience as a police headquarters detective and has been known as Lady Kate of the police. She intercepts a telephone call of Belknap's to a woman confederate named Roberta, and, in turn, speaks to the woman. Realizing that he is suspected by Katherine. Relknar threatens to accuse of a crime her brother, Roderick Maxwilton, who is believed to be dead. Bingham Harvard, who once bore the title of the Night Wind, becomes suspicious of Belknap and of Katherine's attitude toward him. Reberta arrives on the scene under the name of Seporita Cervantez, a pianist, who is to enterthe guests. Harvard attacks Belknap one night, after he has received notes from both Katherine and Roberta from a balcony of the house. Belknap does not recognize his assailant. At midnight Katherine discovers Roberta in the grounds with a strange man whom she he-Heves to be her supposedly dead brother Roderick. Later, hidden in Roberta's room, she witnesses a quarrel between her and Relknap in which he accuses Roberts of deceiving him.
