It was constantly argued during the middle ages that a man is bound to rule his wife

What makes a man different after he's married?

DID it ever occur to you that every married man has a double personality? Why is your husband different from the man you married? What is the reason? You probably know a dozen couples who are unhappily married. Why? What is the matter with marriage?

Havelock Ellis, the eminent English sociologist, says that nine times out of ten it is the man's fault and then he gives some startling reasons for his theory. What do you think? In a brilliant and searching article in the September Pictorial Review, Mr. Ellis tells why husbands and men are two different things—and how this difference lies at the very root of "the marriage question."

He says that marriage is a risky experiment and nothing more. And that the system that worked five hundred years ago won't work today. The war has created a tremendous upheaval in the marriage relationship.

What is going to happen? Read what this supreme authority has to say on this subject in his sensational article in Pictorial Review for September called "What Makes a Man a Husband?"

This is the first of a remarkable series of articles on marriage which will appear in Pictorial Review this Fall.
