

U. S. TO INVESTIGATE PORK STORAGE HERE

State Agent Reveals 30,000 Pounds, Much of Which Has Been Held 16 Months

QUANTITY BRANDED UNFIT

Thirty thousand pounds of pork have been held in cold storage in Philadelphia warehouses from eleven to sixteen months.

Mr. Simmers stated today there had been ten more carcasses of calves in the batch labeled by the government yesterday which were not in the warehouse when the federal agents arrived with their writs.

These ten calves, according to Mr. Simmers, had been sold to local butchers. "I located them all after half a day spent telephoning," said Mr. Simmers, "and served notice that if they were not taken back by the seller I would make an arrest. The calves are now in the cooler of the firm that owns them. The storage warehouse would not take them back."

Approximately 50,000 pounds of fish stored in the Philadelphia market district will be destroyed because the owners have kept it in cold storage until it is beginning to decay rather than put it on the open market and lower prices.

The fish is stored at Seaside Heights, N. J., where some of it was taken more than a year ago after previous storage in other plants.

One firm owns 511 boxes. This meat has been in storage for eleven months. It has one more month to go before Mr. Simmers "tags" it and declares it unfit for sale in Pennsylvania.

The decision rests with the United States district attorney's office as to whether this pork shall be labeled and seized on the theory that, having been in storage so long, there is a presumption it is hoarded food.

Second Lot Is "Tagged"

The second lot of pork, consisting of twenty-five boxes, has been in storage for sixteen months and has been "tagged" by the pure food agent.

Unless it is decided that the federal laws supersede the state laws making it illegal to sell food in storage more than a year, these sixteen boxes will have to be disposed of elsewhere.

The boxes of pork average from fifty to seventy-five pounds to the box, hence the aggregate weight is in the neighborhood of 30,000 pounds.

It became known today that one firm had sold 9000 pounds of meat, held in a local storage house, for "tankage."

The meat will be cooked up, and the grease and other salable by-products extracted. The residue will be sold as fertilizer.

The sale of this meat for "tankage" was disclosed by Mr. Simmers, who also revealed an effort which the big meat dealers are making to literally "save their bacon."

Daily, according to Mr. Simmers, the packers are taking tons of old meat out of storage, for fear the government will libel and seize it.

Take Meat From Warehouses

"I had notice only this morning of the shipment of a quantity of meat, which was taken out of one of the local warehouses," said Mr. Simmers. "In the last few days the packers have taken tons of meat out of storage. This is meat which cannot be sold in Pennsylvania."

In a panic, fearing government action, some of the packers are said to be consigning their aged food to themselves in other cities outside the state.

FOUR OF ONE FAMILY KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

Trolley Hits Car Carrying Phila. Man's Father, Stepmother and Two Children

OCCURS IN N. Y. STATE

Four persons, including the father and stepmother of Olin Kemmerer, of 29 North Sixth-third street, were killed today when an automobile was struck by a trolley car at Green Bush, N. Y.

Two children who were killed are said by the sheriff of Rensselaer, N. Y., to be the son and daughter of Mrs. Kemmerer by a former marriage.

Mr. Kemmerer, who was found in Camden after a four-hour search today by the detective bureau, says his father has no stepchildren.

Green Bush, where the accident occurred, is in Albany county, adjoining Rensselaer county, where the Kemmerers lived.

The dead are: Emilen Kemmerer, father of the Philadelphiaian.

Mrs. Kate Kemmerer, Emilen Kemmerer's stepmother, and Olin Kemmerer's second wife, and Olin Kemmerer's son, a fourteen-year-old son of Mrs. Kemmerer.

Dorothy, said to be her nine-year-old daughter.

Olin Kemmerer is the manager of a five and ten cent store in Camden. He was located there early this afternoon.

by Sergeant Charles Hood, of the detective bureau. When the first report of the accident was made to the local detective bureau by Sheriff Sharp it was only known that Kemmerer worked in some one of a long list of chain stores in this section.

Mr. Kemmerer, the father, has a brother, Byron Kemmerer, living in Allentown, Pa. Sheriff Sharp was in business with Emanuel Kemmerer at Green Bush, selling farming implements. Olin Kemmerer, the son, was in Franco with the Seventy-ninth Division. He returned in June.

The accident occurred at 7:35 o'clock this morning. According to Sheriff Sharp Emilen Kemmerer was driving the other members of his family to Albany.

At a cross-roads, ten miles from the Kemmerer home, the automobile was driven across the tracks. The trolley, approaching at high speed, was hidden by trees.

The machine was in the middle of the tracks when the trolley crashed into it. Emilen Kemmerer was instantly killed.

The woman and the two children were rushed to the hospital, Dorothy dying three minutes later. The boy died fifteen minutes later, and Mrs. Kemmerer lived an hour.

The engine of the automobile was torn from the machine and thrown sixty feet.
