Price-Fixing Combine Could Not Exist, Fuel Official Tells Senators

SAYS PROFITS FELL IN 1919

By the Associated Press Washington, Aug. 26 .- Denying that a combination among bituminous coal operators to fix prices exists, J. D. A. Morrow, vice president of the National Coal Astociation, told a Senate coal investigating committee today that such a combination would be impossible if attemphed. Prices at the mines, he said, have declined under the competition which prevails and are lower than they were a year ago. Profits also are lower, he declared.

re are about 5000 separate com mercial producers operating approxi-mately 7000 mines from which bituminous coal is regularly shipped." Mr. Morrow said. "In addition there are some 2000 operators with about 3000 nines who begin producing and selling coal whenever the price goes up a lit-tle and offers a profit to them.

"Moreover, there are hundreds of thousands of acres of coal lands along railroads on which new mines can be readily and quickly opened by any one so disposed. Such a condition oblously does not lend itself to restrictive combinations among producers

Lincoln is said to have decided that the right length for a man's legs was the length necessary to reach the ground.

The length and nature of the message would seem to determine the proper size of space to be used.

This is a small-space advertisement because it carries a short message without illustration.

As publishers we buy small-space and large-space advertisements; and as publishers we sell largespace and small-space advertisements in our magazines both here and abroad.

As buyers and sellers of advertising space we do not believe there is an iron-clad rule governing the best practice in all cases alike.

In consulting with prospective advertisers we avoid offering a universal cure-all with identical dosage.
