Jane finally scleeted the best pair and sewed up the worst of the rents. She reflected as she did this, that the mended heel would show above her pump, but there was nothing else she could do tonight. Last Sunday she had determined to go through her stockings, she knew that a little judicious mending when they needed it would prevent all of this worry, but Jane was too apt to put on a stocking, tucking the offending hole down out of sight. This, of course, down out of sight. This, of course, made the hole so much worse that the Legion.

When Jane finally crept into bed beside the sleeping Joy, she was again resentful. After all she did all she could. If she hadn't a baby to take care of, and office hours to observe she might take the time to groom herself more carefully. But she knew in her heart of hearts although she did not heart of hearts although she did not admit it even to herself, that she did not spend her time taking care of Joy. and that if she systematized things at all she could manage beautifully with Mrs. Mapes's help. Mrs. Mapes took From Thoroughfare Wharf a great part of the care of Joy off Jane's untidiness. The stockings which Jane had mended so hurriedly the night before showed an unmistakable hole across the instep where a bad run had widened perceptibly. Her shirtwaist was badly crumpled, and she looked warm. However, her little black hat which she had made herself, crushed down over the curly hair redeemed her. and Ruth hoped that Scott would not notice the discrepancies. And Scott didn't. He was plainly taken with Jane, and Ruth forgot the lack of niceties in Jane's dress as she listened to her talk. Just before she left, she whispered to Ruth in an aside:

"I have something to tell you."
Ruth carried Jane off to the bedroom apparently for some powder, ostensibly to hear the news. She was as delighted as Jane expected her to be, and asked all about Bob, what he did, what he looked like, where she had met him and all the other hundred and one questions that a woman always asks at such

Who Made the First Baby Food?

WHEN I wanted to wean my baby and find a food which would agree with him as well as my own milk had done, I asked my doctor, "Who made the first baby food?"

"Nestlé's," he said. "They originated the modified powdered milk form of baby food many years ago, and now it has the largest sale of any baby food in the world."

Then they must know how to feed babies, I decided. And so it turned out. For my baby didn't seem to feel any difference at all when we changed to Nestlé's Milk Food—and all my fear and worry was gone.

New Gingham School Frocks Ready for the Sound of the First Bell

Girlish, neat, trimly tailored, all that school frocks should be to satisfy mother and young daughter; they are made of fine, durable gingham in most attractive plaids.

The one that is sketched is in brown, red or blue plaid trimmed with plain-color gingham to match. Black featherstitching done by hand trims the pockets and collar.

Another style in red or green plaid is finished with a clean touch of white tucked organdie. The patch pockets, the vest and the collar all show white tucked organdie bound with gingham. Sizes 12 to 16 years, $5.

Gingham Regulations

Straight box pleats from the well-tailored shoulder yoke to the hem give character to the regulation that is sketched. It is a golden brown, trimmed with white braid. Sizes 6 to 14 years. $5.50. This style is also in white with a blue collar. Sizes 6 to 16 years.

Summer Frocks Reduced to $2 to $5

Many of these will do for the first months of school, as there are voiles and organdies in white and colors and a few ginghams. Sizes 6 to 14 years. They are all mussed and in broken sizes.

Junior dresses, sizes 15 and 17 years, of organdie and voile are $7.50 and $10, greatly reduced because they are mussed.

400 Pretty Waists Are Special at $1.85

A third, a half or even more has been taken from the original prices of these waists, because they are mussed and sizes are incomplete.

You'll find white organdie, plain and fancy voile and some dainty organdie with cross bars of color. Frills, lace edges, tucks and embroidery trim these pretty things. Sizes 36 to 46.

Boys' Norfolk Suits With Extra Bloomers $16.50

To keep as a best suit or to wear to school. One of these will give good service. The suits are of all-wool cassimere in gray and brown mixtures, mannish mixtures that the boys will like. In the Daylight Store on the Gallery you can see how attractive they are.

The coats have inverted pleats and belts all around, and the bloomers are lined throughout. Sizes 10 to 18 years.

Camera Bags Are New

So called because they are much the shape of folding cameras and have a similar strap handle. They are in plain color or mottled leathers in various grainings purple, gray, navy, black and green with interesting silk linings. Inside each bag is a mirror, powder box and a little tube for invisible hairpins. $3.50. (Central)
