

JUST GOSSIP ABOUT PEOPLE

Nancy Wynne Hears the Supper Club Will Be Held at Bellevue-Stratford This Season—She Chats About Other Things

YOU'D be glad to hear that the Supper Club, which Mrs. Hutchinson Scott chartered before the war at the Bellevue-Stratford is to be a certainty again now that peace has come. Mrs. Scott is living in New York, you know, but she will come over for the meetings and they will be held as before in the Red Room or Rose Garden of the Bellevue-Stratford as the need may be. There will be the usual men's committee of prominent men, among them Mr. Robert K. Cassatt, Mr. Sydney Hutchinson, Mr. John C. Bell, Mr. Samuel Bell, Mr. John C. Groome, Judge Willis Martin, Mr. Edward Crozer and a number of others.

I hear that they have decided to make the membership very restricted. It's too bad, but it has to be, because the membership is so large it's impossible to dance. Nearly every member is liable to bring eight to ten guests an evening, and so the only thing to do to make things comfortable for those who belong is to have a small list. No matter how popular a dance is, it loses its popularity, the more the more becomes too crowded, don't you think? That club was always great fun. I am so glad Mrs. Scott will chaperone the parties; she knows so well how to do those things. I happened to meet her on her way to Cape May yesterday to stay with Betty and her small grandchild for a few days, and I certainly welcomed her and the news she gave me about the club.

THE William A. Liebers have opened their home in Bryn Mawr again. They had a hard time this summer, and Liebers was very sick, and so they have had to take a house in Narragansett for the summer; they were only able to occupy it a week altogether, as Mrs. Lieber stayed with her husband. Mr. Lieber's father, General C. N. Lieber, of Washington, went up to Narragansett, however, and Francis, the Liebers' little son, who is nine years old, spent most of his time with him. Mrs. Lieber, you know, will give the tea at which Edith Newlin, her young cousin, will be introduced to society in October. The Newlins live so far out in the country it would not be possible to give the tea at their home.

SOME clearing out at Cape May this week? So many people have left there to go to their homes on the Main line, out in Haverhill, North Reading and all the other suburbs. However, many of the cottagers are there and the Ned Crozers, for instance, gave a small dinner at their home on Wednesday night. Mrs. Crozer and Mona, who have been South for a while, returned last week. Panning Grange has come in from Cape May, and is holding two weeks up in North East Harbor with Hannah Elliott, who was up there for the summer with her family. Kathleen Ritter, who, by the way, has the unusual nickname "Critic" among her intimates, has been very popular in Cape May this year. She went back to Ardmore yesterday. She is to be a debutante, you know. Her father, Howard Ritter, will give a tea for her in October. I'll tell you who is down at Cape May now visiting Helen Sewell, Betty Davis, Helen, by the way, has been so wonderful in tennis, and the tennis courts this week. Did I tell you she and Eddie Cassard won the mixed doubles again at the Ocean City tournament last week?

ISABELLA WANAMAKER has been having a wonderful trip through the West. She's on a week-long tour, and has joined Conde Vaulain in Rochester at the Horse Show. Isabella's horses were shown at Newport, too, though she was in the West; in fact, she sends them to most of the shows. They certainly are fine ones, too. Speaking of horse shows, you'll think of the one usually attend them. The William du Pont Jrs., who have been doing the southern shows, are in Wilmington now attending the horse show there.

Somehow, I would not like to be a thoroughbred horse. I think of the kind of like the Prince of Wales or some other celebrity, never able to be "just folks." It must be fierce being shipped around the country all the time, never having a chance for a quiet time to think and rest. NANCY WYNNE.

CUT DOWN OLD H. C. OF L. AND EAT OIL MADE OF BURRS

Chemists Tell of New Wonder Foods—Hubbard Squash Also Made to Yield to Science

FOLKS! Will be eating building stones next! Whole meat, shark flesh are no longer strange to man's palate. And scientists are adding daily to the list of edible foods calculated to tempt the human palate.

The members of the American Chemical Society, meeting in convention in the Bellevue-Stratford, are adding a few strangers to the list.

Prof. L. H. Rhoads, of the Department of Agriculture, in North Carolina, has extracted a new edible oil from the seeds and the burr of the well-known cockle burr which sticks to your trousers and skirts along country roads.

The oil is a light oil, looks like linseed oil and tastes like olive oil. It is destined to make, according to chemists, an extremely palatable adjunct to salads.

Children are said to enjoy the new bread which is made from a mixture of wheat flour and a flour produced from peanuts, and the oriental soy bean.

Many people are acquainted with the avocado alligator pear, which tastes like a salad and is as luscious as a cantaloupe. Chemists and food experts are now advocating that the avocado pear be converted into a valuable edible oil. It is predicted that the oil once on the market will become much better known than the vegetable as an article of food.

Chemists are extracting other edible oils from the Hubbard squash, which is growable anywhere in the United States and can be made very cheap, and from the okra seed which folks put in soup these days.

The discovery of new foods is one of the many contributions that the chemists of the country are making toward the reduction of the high cost of living.

$50 A WEEK TOO LITTLE Family of Nine Needs More, Compensation Board Is Told

A weekly income of $50.50 is insufficient for a family of nine, consisting of three adults and six children, with living prices as high as they are now.

This statement was made at a meeting of the compensation board yesterday afternoon by counsel for Andrew F. McGilligan, of Ardmore, Pa., during a hearing of the appeal of the Auto Car Company, which was ordered to pay Mr. McGilligan $2 a week for 300 weeks as compensation for the death of Arthur S. McGilligan, who was killed while in the company's employ.

The company declared the family was independent. McGilligan's attorney introduced statistics supporting his statement that a $50 income was insufficient to provide for the family.

A decision will be given by the board later in the week.

$16,000 TO HOUSE CAR Philip Rosenbach Tires of Arrests on Wrong Parking

Philip Rosenbach, clubman and art connoisseur, dismayed at having been haled to court by traffic policemen twice in less than a week, has paid $16,000 for a stable property at 1318 Chancellor street, as a garage for himself and his friends.

This is declared to be the highest price ever paid for a stable of the size in the business center of the city. But that is not the story.

Mr. Rosenbach has been accustomed to driving to his place of business, not far from the stable he has just bought, every morning in his motorcar. Day storage in accessible public garages has for some time been at a premium.

In consequence it was found necessary by Mr. Rosenbach to park his car for several mornings in a side street. Twice within six days traffic policemen have "pinned" him for allowing his automobile to stand in one place for a longer time than the rules of the Police Department allow.
