Lynch has it on all the bantams in height and reach. He is the lankiest bantam in the game. He has virtually the same height and reach measurements as Tendler, yet is at least fourteen pounds under Tendler's weight.

Lynch is an excellent hitter. In all his recent fights he has been depending too much upon his right hand approximated, shot a 74, with Platt and overlooking the valuable asset of a good left. That Williams victory gave Lynch the impression he was a one punch knockout king and that idea alnost ruined him for a time when he bumped into one squall after another. Only one other bantam has been conceded a chance for Herman's crown. Tommy Walsh has been waging a campaign in behalf of Joe Burman for the last year with no result. The closest Herman and Burman came to meeting was at the Olympia last year, when they were matched to clash in a special show, but Herman ran out of the bout.

Burman vs Lynch

Burman and Lynch will meet at Park on Wednesday night. These are the best two boys of their weight in the game. Lynch showed his class against Herman. Burman never had this chance, but must have class if he hopes to beat the freakish Lynch. Pete Herman has not defended his sentiment of the local hero of the nanearly three years ago. UMPIRE CHASES SELF

MANAGER BERT YEARSLEY and his noble band of diamond sweepers bit the dust at Norristown last night, when some visiting gentlemen, representing Harrowgate, scored six perfectly good, untainted runs while Norristown Pros were amassing a total of two.

"'Tain't right, it ain't," muttered Manager Bert, as he walked off the field, "On Thursday we beat the Hillsdale bunch, five love, and when we stack up against this gang from Ken-sington we go flooie. It ain't right, I say, it ain't right." Perhaps it wasn't, but the fact remains that Harrowgate gave the home crowd a most beautiful trimming and made it so unanimous that no one was in doubt. A score of 6 to 2 is very conclusive.

In the sixth Umpire George Boone made a decision at second base which made a hit with every one except the made a hit with every one except the Harrowgate crowd and the umpire behind the plate. Pagett was on first and Miller hit to Cruthers. It looked like an easy double play, but Allie McWilliams dropped the ball. He stretched out and tried to pick it up before the runner arrived and Boone said he did it. Immediately there was much confusion. Boone refused to change his decision, and when appealed to, Umpire Sam Griffiths, who officiated behind the plate, reversed the ruling.

Boone refused to change his decision had been changed and chagrined because his integrity had been questioned, Boone right field fence for a home run. Vitt filled to Walker. Roth skied to Strunk. Witt threw out Ruth. One run, one hit, no errors.

MeWilliams Juggles

Allie McWilliams made a sensational play in the third, when he got in front of Schaeffer's grounder, juggled the ball with one hand and recovered in time to throw out the runner at first.

Pres Cruthers, who once toiled for Connie Mack, played well at short. He covered lots of ground and was especially strong on the defense.

Disher made a preat stop on Carris's line in the fourth. Eddie whanged out and tried to pick it up before the runner arrived and Boone said he did it.

Immediately there was much confusion down the third-base line in the fourth and the Harrowgate man speared in time to the fourth and the Harrowgate man speared the ruling.

THE first time Ruth came to bat yesterday Noyes fed him a fast ball. The babe was under it, but didn't hit it squarely. He popped a foul to Thomas. Second time up, Noyes served another fast ball and the Baltimore bear lifted it on a long fly over the right-field fence. The ball bounced in the middle of Twentieth street.

Third time up, slow balls were offered. Ruth smacked one that went on a line to right and cracked the fence about a foot below the top for a double. Fourth time up, curved balls were thrown and Gawge whacked a single to right that sped like a "75" shell. Fifth time up Noyes just pitched, shut his eyes and wished hard. It was another
