Knights Templar Jubilee at Independence Square

The program for the world peace jubilee meeting in Independence Square this afternoon under the auspices of the Knights Templar of the United States includes:

A new call for liberty, for modern American freedom, a crusade led by Knights Templars today, sounded in Independence Square this afternoon.

Addressing an assemblage that packed the historic place to its uttermost bounds, Major General Charles Maxwell Clement, U. S. A. (retired), former commander of the Twenty-eighth Division, addressed the "call to arms" to his fellow members of the Knights Templar of the United States in the following words:

"We Templars must lead in the supreme effort for a better day, such in its own vocation striving to the utmost for the common good, each putting aside the profiteering spirit that has enmeshed us all."

"Buckle on Swords, He Says" "I appeal to you all to rush into this fight armed as templar warriors, with the sword of justice and the buckle of Christian fortitude. We must be content with a less percentage of gain and with the same pennies of profit in each article produced as before the war."

SAYS LAFEAN KNEW BANK'S CONDITION

MacBurney Testifies He Told Former Commissioner Months Before North Penn Crash

IS HELD IN $75,000 BAIL

Daniel F. Lafean, at a hearing today before Magistrate Rooney, was charged by James N. MacBurney, the examiner who reported the insolvency of the North Penn Bank, with having knowledge for months of its financial weakness and that he steadfastly refused to close its doors.

Asks Lafean to Close Bank

"I told him," said MacBurney in court today, "that the condition of the North Penn Bank was a constant menace to the community and to its depositors. I asked that he take immediate action and close it."

MacBurney Promised Aid

"Besides," he added, "Charlie Amble has a lot of state funds in the bank and he has told me he was going to put a whole lot more of state moneys in the bank to help it out."

Calls for Unity

"Today to save the world we must rally without thought of self to increase production of everything—this is the only way to make living better and cheaper."

32,000 Democrats Missing; In Moore Camp? Is Query

McCain Shows Registration Figures Indicate Donnelly Organization Will Support Independents—Anti-Vare Combine Gains

LOST—Between the senatorial elections of 1914-1916 and the registration days of 1919, 32,000 Democratic voters who disappeared from the voting lists of that party. Any information as to their present whereabouts will be thankfully received, etc., etc.

Registration Returns for the Three Days of this Year Show that approximately 21,862 Democrats registered as such. The number of Democratic votes cast in the election for state senators in the old-numbered senatorial district April 1916 and the election returns for even-numbered senatorial districts in 1914 show a total Democratic vote of 54,370.

The difference between the registered Democrats this year and the votes actually cast by the Democrats for their senatorial nominees in 1914 and 1916 shows that 22,508 Democrats who voted then failed to register for the present campaign.

In Vare's District

In Senator Vare's own district, the First, in 1916, his Democratic opponent, David Martin, Republican, was opposed for the Senate by Richard V. Farley, Democrat, in 1916. Farley polled 8791 votes, yet in the three days' registration just past, only 3209 of the 8791 registered as Democrats.
