Moore Interview With Col. McCain

indicate no other possible outcome. The people of Philadelphia are aroused. They have asked themselves the question 'Can we stand four more years of municipal government like the past four? Shall we put contractor czars over us again? Can we vote for and support the men who were responsible for the Fifth ward riots and election murder?'

"As Republicans can we vote for the men and the system that has made this city known all over the world as 'corrupt and contented?' I've seen enough in my campaign to tell you that deep down in my innermost heart I believe, as the candidate opposed to these infamies, that I will be nominated and elected."

"You have been accused of being pro-German, with opposing the aspirations of labor and of a personal ambition to rule," I continued.

As to the Enemy's Charges

"I've heard all of those charges and more, too. They are absolutely false. If I had feared such charges I would never have entered on this campaign. I expected to be misrepresented, and I have been," was the reply, as Mr. Moore settled himself back in his desk chair.

"Before I decided to even consider the invitation tendered me in Washington by a committee from the One Hundred, I was informed by personal friends that all these charges would be brought against me. But that fact did not for an instant enter into the question of my acceptance.

"I did not seek the nomination. Even after the subcommittee from the One Hundred had visited me in Washington and I had heard all their arguments I did not accept their invitation. Instead, I came to Philadelphia and looked over the situation. I talked with some of the city's leading business and professional men, and then and not till then did I decide to enter the contest.

Considers It His Duty to Run

"I regard my candidacy as a duty I owe the city.

"If the charges you have mentioned were true and I knew they would be brought up against me, I wouldn't for an instant have had the assurance to be a candidate. I did not fear them then; I do not fear them now.

"Do you know why?"

And once more the Congressman grew animated and pointed a long forefinger to emphasize his point.

"Because this contest for control of Philadelphia is not a question of the personality of the candidate. It's a question of common honesty and civic decency. It's a fight of self respecting, proud, upright, home-loving, decent Philadelphians against a system. A system controlled by the contractors that has made them millionaires at the expense of the taxpayers. A system that doles out places to thousands of minor officeholders at small salaries, and then elevates its favorites, some of whom can deliver their own vote and no more, to high positions and keeps them there year after year, the bosom friends of the bosses.

Decent People Demand Change

"The curtain has been torn away in this campaign. The millionaire contractors and their handful of subbosses at high salaries have been exposed. The decent people of Philadelphia are demanding a change. They are in open revolt.

"I have defied the bosses. They have thrown out a smoke screen to fool the public by denouncing me and accusing me of nearly everything. But it has failed. I'm going to win, and if my life is spared I'm going to give Philadelphia an administration that will give the lie to the declaration, 'corrupt and contented.'"

"Of course, you're aware that the Vare organization charge that you have an understanding with Senator Penrose, and that you will be his representative if you are elected Mayor?"

Denies Penrose Alliance

"I've heard that charge repeatedly made. There might be some reason for it if I had entered into any agreement or understanding, expressed or implied, with Senator Penrose or any of his friends. You will observe that I say, 'With Senator Penrose or any of his friends.'

"Senator Penrose has never directly or indirectly, or through any of his friends, asked me to do or promise to do anything for himself or his faction. There is no understanding between us. Senator Penrose will receive the same courteous treatment that I would accord to any citizen, and nothing more, when I am Mayor. I am absolutely unpledged to any political leader or boss.

"It would be absurd folly to make a campaign to unseat certain bosses because of their selfishness, disregard of the people's rights and corruption of the Republican party, only to set up some other bosses who would continue to keep the people in subjection as the contractors have done."

"Have you any specific plans for the betterment and improvement of Philadelphia?"

Constructive Program

"Yes. The development of the port of Philadelphia has been my hobby ever since I entered public life. By that I mean transportation. If once we can develop our transportation facilities by rail, river, trolley and subway we have solved the greatest problem of the day.

"Unlimited and unhindered transportation facilities means the growth of our domestic industries, the employment of labor and the increased importance of Philadelphia as a great manufacturing center. Even as it is with the facilities we possess, our commerce is second only to New York. I would strain every nerve to increase and extend our transportation facilities by land, river and sea.

"I have agitated the improvement of the Delaware for years, with the result that 150 additional shipways have been constructed and employment given, as statistics show, to 60,000 additional workmen.

"I would strive not only to bring labor to our city but make labor profitable. I should do everything possible to encourage the extension of our playground facilities. They afford breathing spots for the children.

To Fight for Housing Facilities

"I would better our housing facilities and encourage builders to extend their operations in the erection of suitable homes for our people. I would encourage every effort for the reduction in the price of commodities. I would enter into the life of our people instead of holding aloof from them and being accessible to but a chosen few."

"Is it your purpose if elected to clean out the organization office holders root and branch in the City Hall?"

"It is not."

The Independent Republican candidate shot out the words like hammer blows. Then he went on:

"I have always been practical in the matter of my politics. It would be exceedingly impractical to say the least, to 'clean out City Hall,' as you express it. It would be little less than disastrous to dismiss employes who are familiar with the city's work and its necessary routine simply because they were Republicans of another stripe.

"I have no hesitation, however, in saying that city employes who, as political workers, big or little, are perniciously active in attacking our candidates and organization, or who are guilty of overt or corrupt acts will have to suffer for their misdeeds. They are not safe men in any position.

A Friend to "The Little Fellers"

"There is another class of office holders for whom I have a genuine sympathy," continued Mr. Moore. "They are what the bosses call 'the little fellers.' They are men who hold clerical and other jobs at a low salary. They have no hope for the future. Many of them are past middle age and if thrown out of the positions which they have filled in City Hall would be virtually helpless. I can recall half a dozen such instances, several of whom became mere human derelicts.

"These are the men who help to carry their division or precinct. They get the little salaries and do all the work, while the bosses and the so-called big fellows get the large salaries and smoke the good cigars.

Vares Are Doomed

"Our organization, and do not forget there is behind me an organization that has been in existence for three or four years of well trained and practical workers that has been keeping a record of the pernicious active workers, big and little, on the organization side. We purpose to act fairly and with good judgment in every case. On the other hand, I feel that I would be immeasurably ungrateful if the men who support our ticket did not receive the recognition they deserve."

"Do you care to make any estimate as to the probable Independent majority?"

"No. I prefer to leave figures and estimated results to the political arithmeticians. I am content to express the sincere belief that the Vare organization is going to have the ground cut form beneath it at the primaries. The decent citizenship of Philadelphia is against millionaire contractor rulers and all their works."

Patterson's Talk With Col. McCain

when he represented the Fifteenth ward in the Legislature thirty years ago.

Doesn't Mind Heckling

"I guess you're right," was his laughing answer. "I presume it does run in the blood. I was in earnest, though, when I said the warmer the campaign grows the better I like it. I have had some refreshing experience. I really enjoyed my trip to Hog Island where they heckled me. The smell of battle is attractive. The shafts aimed at me and the fire of questions are something I enjoy. It's a battle of wits. It's the kind of a thing that keeps one mentally active."

"What's the conception you have formed in your own mind of an ideal Mayor—the official who would measure up to your notion of what a Mayor should be?"

Definition of "Ideal Mayor"

At the question the little clusters of wrinkles at the corners of his eyes bunched together and the judge again smiled and instantly replied:

"My ideal Mayor is a man to whom the city's interests would at all times come first; who is loyal to his friends, and yet who can be so without injuring the city's welfare in the slightest. A chief official who will leave the politics of the city to the politicians, while he runs the business of the city government as it should be run."

"What will be your general attitude if elected Mayor?"

"Well, as my campaign manager would say, for I can't well say it myself, when I am Mayor my greatest endeavor will be to act with justice toward every one—to know no political fiction. As far as I am concerned, I will endeavor to be such a Mayor that even the newspapers, though antagonistic to me, will be compelled to admit that I have views that are correct, and that I am endeavoring to give them the best possible administration. I will give to the city the best service that is in me.

"You expect to reward those who have been loyal to you and who have sustained you in the campaign?" I suggested.

Will Reward Friends

"In the matter of appointments I expect to recognize my friends. However, my first consideration at all times will be the best interests of the city and the necessity for doing that which will be to the advantage of the people."

"Have you given consideration to the character of the officials, your appointees, who would have charge of bureaus and departments?"

"In every instance I will select the best men I can find for the place. The men I shall appoint to office will be of the higher class. They will be broad-minded and efficient. Where technical knowledge is requisite men possessing only the highest qualifications will receive the appointments."

"Do you care to say whether or not you will select for high positions to your gift any of the men who are now filling those offices?"

"It is too early for me to say just what I would do. I do not think that is a question that should be discussed at this time."

Has Made No Pledges

Judge Patterson hesitated for an instant, as though the subject demanded further expression, and then continued:

"I desire you to say for me that I have made no pledges. I have given no promise to any one that I will be for this man or for that man; who shall be appointed or who shall not be appointed. Neither directly or indirectly have I given any pledge or promise as to what my course will be in connection with any act of mine when I am Mayor.

"I wish it understood that if any man entertains the impression that by supporting me he will be appointed to office he is laboring under a very great misapprehension."

"In view of its importance as a campaign issue will you define your attitude on the subject of contracts and contractors?"

If I am elected, city contracts shall without fail be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder. The terms of all contracts must be of such a character that they will not favor any one bidder or contractor over another. After the work has been started I shall see to it that it is not controlled by politicians or passed upon by inspectors controlled by interested contractors."

"Have you any specific plans for city improvements in your mind?"

As to City Improvements

"Yes, I have one in particular," Judge Patterson arose and took from his desk a letter, with memoranda attached, which he consulted as he replied to my interrogation.

"I do not think that either Mr. Moore or myself has been quite free enough in our expressions on the subject of the Frankford elevated.

"I have here in my hand a letter which asks me to make a specific declaration upon this subject. Generally speaking, it will be my endeavor to carry through the transit plans according to the original scheme, particularly with reference to the Frankford L.

"It should be continued through to Rhawn street and connect with the Byberry surface line. It should also connect with the subway. It will be my earnest effort to at once complete this very necessary part of our transit system.

"There is one other subject that will receive my immediate attention, and it is the condition of the Ridge road from Wissahickon station to the county line," continued Judge Patterson. "It is in a wretched condition and needs repaving. It has remained in a neglected state entirely too long. It is one of the most important highways in the city. In some places it is not fit for vehicle traffic, and I am not in favor of attempting to remedy its present condition by patchwork repairs; and, moreover, it should be repaved clear to the county line, so that it will be in perfect condition, not only so far as the trolleys are concerned, but also for wagon traffic and automobiles."

"Have you anything suggestive in mind with regard to other city improvements?"

Wooden Blocks a Failure

"Yes, wooden block pavements are a practical failure. I am opposed to them. When they commence to go under the wear and tear of heavy traffic they last but a comparatively short time. If not, then the surface bulges and destroys the thoroughfare, and hence requires endless and costly repairs.

"I cannot say definitely what I would suggest in their stead. I am of the opinion that most anything is superior to the blocks. Asphalt, I believe, would stand up better under heavy traffic."

"What other improvements in a general way would receive your attention?"

"I would give every encouragement to the construction of a larger and better sewerage system. It is sadly needed in certain sections of the city. Philadelphia is growing rapidly and I know of nothing better than to give support and encouragement to home builders by affording them needed facilities in the way of extending our water and sewerage system.

"As to the Vare organization, do you desire to say anything about it?"

"Nothing but this: The opposition has taken occasion to attack me over the shoulders of the Vares. I am the candidate of the Republican organization and am a legitimate object of attack. There is no necessity of attacking me, however, from behind the shelter of the Vares.

"I might add another thing. I honestly desire to thank the newspaper writers of the city for their treatment of me. The newspapers have been against me, but, notwithstanding, the newspaper reporters have treated me with a courtesy that I appreciate.

"I am also under obligations to the ladies who have worked in my behalf, and I deeply appreciate their efforts."

CAILLAUX PUT IN HOSPITAL

Ex-Premier of France Leaves Prison for Sake of Health

Paris, Sept. 13.—(By A. P.)—Joseph Caillaux, former premier, who has been in prison for more than a year charged with having had treasonable dealings with the enemy, was transferred to a private hospital at Neuilly, a suburb of Paris, this morning.

This follows a request by his counsel early in the week that he be removed from the prison, on the ground that his health was so bad as to cause anxiety.

WON'T GIVE UP BELA KUN

Austria Refuses Hungary's Demand, Asking Proofs of Murder Charge

Paris, Sept. 13.—(By A. P.)—The Austrian Government has refused to accede to Hungary's demand for the extradition of Bela Kun, virtual dictator at Budapest during the communist regime, asking for proofs of accusations of murder and theft made against him, according to Vienna newspapers.

The government note to Hungary states, it is said, that upon Bela Kun's arrival in Austria he was the bearer of 200,000 crowns.

Generous Award to Shore Soldiers

Atlantic City, Sept. 13.—Taking advantage of a state law, the existence of which only lately was discovered, city commissioners have voted to pay every municipal employe who saw active service in the army or navy the difference between the wage he received while in uniform and what he would have received had he marked time to keep the home fires burning.
