

State Militia Ends Boston Lawlessness : Pershing's City Troop Escort : Deauville Fashion

CARDINAL MERCIER of Belgium and Cardinal Gibbons at the arch-episcopal residence in Charles street, Baltimore.

AT RIGHT Massachusetts militiamen restoring order in the Boston police strike. Troopers rounding up hoodlums on the Boston Common after a raid on the gambling game run openly there in defiance of authority.

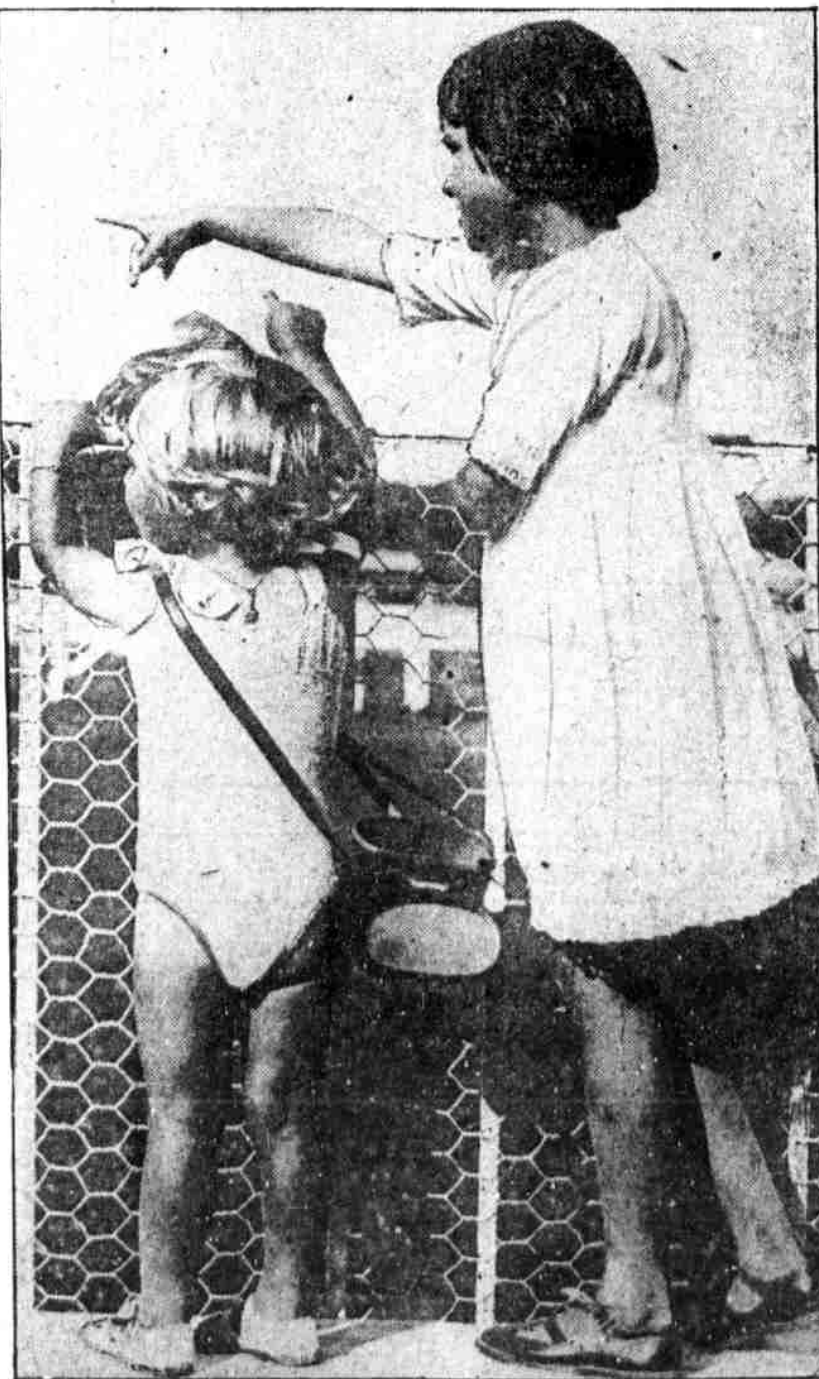

GEORGE GASTON QUIEN, called the man who betrayed Edith Cavell, on the stand during his trial in Paris, where he was found guilty and sentenced to death for having betrayed the martyred English nurse.

DETACHMENT of First City Troop, led by Captain Thayer, that rode in advance of General Pershing on his visit to the city, made up of veterans who served as officers in the world war.

MORRIS BAILEY, sixteen years, returning to the United States after two years' war service. He followed his father and brother to the front as a stowaway, both of whom were killed. He fought at Chateau-Thierry and St. Mihiel and won a French Cross at Toul.

THIS ABBREVIATED costume may never be popular at American race tracks, but it was a great hit at the Deauville, France, races recently.
