AUTO PINS POLICEMAN AGAINST OWN HOME

Furiously Patrolman Arrests Three Occupants of Car for Reckless Driving

A zigzagging automobile early today pinned James Curran, a patrolman, on duty, against the wall of his own home, 3644 North Eighth street, injured his left knee and bent the back of his watch.

When Curran recovered his breath he arrested three of the occupants of the machine. Two owners jumped out and ran. The prisoners were arraigned later before Magistrate Wrigley in the Germantown and Lycoming avenues station.

Curran was walking his beat about 7 o'clock this morning and turned north into Eighth street from Rising Sun lane. He saw an automobile zigzagging suddenly and came over the curb with a yell. Curran backed to the wall and was rammed against the side of his house.

The men arrested by Curran said they were William McIntyre, 2531 North Mascher street; James Moran, 2723 Water street, and John Maguire, 428 West York street.

Kidnapped Children Found in N. Y.

Detective Joseph Coogan is expected to bring back from New York today the two children of Dominick Bomero, who were kidnapped from their home at 1631 South Franklin street, last Tuesday. Albert Peplito, a neophyte of the Bomero family, who is accused of kidnapping the children, was arrested in New York city and will be held to await requisition.

The children, Pauline, aged thirteen years, and John, aged five, are alleged to have been hired away from home by Peplito while their parents were at work.

"WOOLLY" LOOKS QUITE SAD BUT HE'S FULL OF MISCHIEF

Girls Will Call Him "Cute" When He Is Finally Placed in the Monkey Cage at the Zoo

THE children will love him! All the girls will call him "cute" and one and all will get the idea that he's solemn and dignified and sort of sad.

What—why the new woolly monkey at the zoo?

This new simian has many biases. In the first place he is Humboldt's Woolly Monkey, which Latinized becomes Lagothrix Humboldt. And then too he is Micoon Barriganda down in South America, where he originates. The natives call him that and it means "big-bellied monkey."

The new arrival at the zoo, is still in the laboratory being examined and treated and acclimatized. He appears very dissatisfied in his small cage. He lives up to his native name in that he looks as though he did not have enough exercise and for this reason he lost any svelte figure that he might have had. Woolly is a large monkey, four feet from head to toe and four feet more in his long prehensile tail.

That tail, by the way, is one of the simian's characteristics. With it he can grip with steel-like strength, and if let loose on the floor is like as not to drag chairs, umbrellas or whatever is lying around loose, around with him. For that reason, although he is a favorite pet, he is also a bothersome one. His sad look belies him, too; he is far from nursing any secret melancholy and he can prove it on occasion. Mischief is his middle name and Charlie Chinlin has nothing on him for grotesque antics.

He came to the zoo last Saturday from the Orinoco river, with a carload of South American animals and birds and he will be placed in the monkey house in a few days, as soon as his physical examination is completed. Once there, his beautiful woolly hair, his general friendliness of nature and his trick tail ought to quickly endear him to the zoo's visitors.

WORLD'S BEST HOTEL, COSTING TEN MILLION, TO BE BUILT AT SHORE

22-Story Structure Will Cover Block on Boardwalk—Gimbels May Furnish It

A $10,000,000 hotel, with 2200 rooms, the greatest hostelry in the world, is being planned for Atlantic City.

Gimbel Brothers, of this city, have already tentatively received the contract for furnishing the building, which will cover an entire ocean-front block, extending back to Pacific avenue.

The structure will be located about midway between the Million Dollar Pier and the new Ambassador Hotel in Chelsea. New York and Baltimore interests have already bought the site. It has been learned, for $1,000,000—about $2000 a front foot, which is about one-quarter the price of land nearer the center of Atlantic City.

The building projected is a twenty-two story structure. It will cost approximately $10,000,000 to construct, with an additional $2,000,000 to furnish.

WOMAN WINS NOMINATION

Conshohocken Democrats Name Mrs. Frank Wilson for School Board

Mrs. Frank Wilson was nominated for school director on the Democratic ticket at the primary in Conshohocken Tuesday. This was the first time a woman was nominated for this office and much interest centers upon the November election. Women have aspired to the office before in Conshohocken, but neither Republicans nor Democrats would ever consider them on the ticket.

Coincidental with the primary election, and striking an unusual note in political events in this town, were the names of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Collins, both drawn as nominees for school director on the Democratic ticket.

The Republican party is not supporting any woman nominees this time in Conshohocken.
