

PHILADELPHIA TO BE WELL REPRESENTED IN GOLF MEET

6 QUAKERS TO PLAY FOR LESLIE TROPHY

Philadelphians Will Figure Prominently in Tournament for Golf Title of Three States

HE MAY take the high drive as usual but unless the Granddaddy is sadly off in condition the Quaker City fans will thrill with pride when at least six entries are made from this city on the Lesley Cup team for the championship of three states.

Against the local stars upstarts do not loom greatly in the possibilities with the exception of Dave Herron, national champion; Bill Fowkes, semifinalist and twice a national medal winner, and Ed Byers, the captain. Byers is a Pittsburger, a former national champion, whose play has been rather rocky this season.

Herron's play, outside of its brilliancy in the national, is an unknown quantity abroad and it may be that the veteran "Bill" will again do the honors for the sake of safety first.

Pat Grant, who walked off with the state championship no later than last Saturday, forces his own entry on the team, for he craved through a field at Wilton, where he had to meet in the last rounds of the national.

Wood Tewkesbury, national medalist; J. Paul Tait, national medalist; George Hoffman, local champion; Ed Clary, who had Quimet beaten for twenty-seven holes in the national; Norman Maxwell, best of the amateurs in the Philadelphia open, made up the rest of the "six" Quaker City entry.

The main argument at the present is over Max Marston, Merion, who has

Lightweight Fighter Declares Reports of His Death Greatly Exaggerated

RECENTLY HURT IN FALL

By SPICK HALL. "As Mark Twain once remarked on a near-fatal occasion, 'The reports of my death have been greatly exaggerated.'"

So spoke Grover Hayes, one of the greatest lightweight fighters that ever donned the padded mitts in Philadelphia, when asked if it were true that he was dead as the result of a fall at a local shipyard on September 12. He had been laboring in the shipbuilding same for two years.

Hayes was hobbling around on crutches today at the Misericordia Hospital when he was questioned to give the real dope on his condition.

"No it isn't true that I'm dead," he said. "I understand that the papers said I had cashed in my checks, but I haven't. Please correct this little mistake for me in the Evening Public Ledger. Of course all of the papers had me dead, it may be hard for me to prove that I'm not, but honest I'm alive, and I hope that you will take my word for it rather than the dope that appeared in the public press."

As Hayes said it is hard to believe that the "Battler," because of the Sunday newspapers of Philadelphia stated yesterday that he had passed away, but Hayes was always an honest man and an honest fighter, hence it is only right that this narrative should take precedence over the published reports of his demise.

Hayes came to Philadelphia in 1906 from Chicago. He was brought here by the late Jack McGuigan, who for many years was one of the most prominent fight promoters in the East.

Hayes is known here and elsewhere as "The Battler," because he has engaged in more than 200 fights in the ring. He began his career in Chicago when he was eighteen years old and fought about forty battles before he was entered in the record books. He was born in Chicago, August 10, 1887. Hayes boxed last over two years ago at a Red Cross benefit shown at Shible Park. Hayes lives at 5726 Hunter street.

Divots Will Fly Fast When These Golfers Meet

No teams have been definitely picked for the Lesley cup golf interstate matches next week, but the probable line-up follows:

- PENNSYLVANIA: Dave Herron, Norman Maxwell, Bill Fowkes, Paul Tewkesbury, George Hoffman, Ed Clary, Francis Oulmet, Tom Griffin, Ray Gorton, Fred Wright, R. W. Brown, F. W. Whittemore, E. K. Sawyer.

played on the New York team and from Baltusrol up to the later local tournaments here.

New York has extended him an invitation to play for the Gothamites this year. He will probably linger over his answer till he sees what his chances are for playing with the Pennsylvania team, picked as easy winners this year.

Each state, Massachusetts, New York and Pennsylvania sends a team of ten men to play singles and doubles in match play. The play is at the famous National Links, Southampton, this year, October 3 and 4.

The Philadelphia hopes will get their chance to brush up for the pickings of the other two states at Westminster this week in the play for the Galt cup. Norman Maxwell, the slender wizard hereabouts, already has two trips on the cup, which is about as gorgeous a trophy as is offered, and he picked it up in his satchel in the twilight Saturday.

All of the best talent here is expected in the running.

Women Getting Set. Nobody can see much else but a feminine star of this city, taking away the national women's title at Shawnee next week. With Mrs. Barlow, eastern and local champion, Mrs. Vanderbeck, former national champion, Miss Mildred Averly, finalist last trip, Mrs. Cathie Fox, and Mrs. G. Henry Stetson, to clear up the path. Philadelphia hopes to land this belt, having come so close to both the men's open and amateur.

The play is over a course well suited to women and a course with which the women of this city are thoroughly familiar.

Most of them have already won honors there.

PUTTING ONE OVER

This is not a picture of a hold-up. It only shows Lee J. Eastman, president of the Philadelphia branch of the Packard Company, pitching the first ball in the game between the New York and Philadelphia offices at Tabor last Saturday.

Charles Stemmer's May and Combs' Carrie Emma yesterday came through with victories, totally surprising the spectators on hand watching the races. The events were staged on the previous performance system of handicaps, over the club course of four and one-half nautical miles. After the race many of the yachtsmen immediately proceeded to the Columbia Yacht Club for the lounge meeting being held there.

The May, in winning the class under 25, went into a tie with Wall's Yank, winner of the second race on Saturday, and John Lynn's Alice, early season victor. The Alice attempted a second victory yesterday, but lost by a margin of fifty-four seconds.

For the second time within two days Harry Bright's Hattie Bert suffered a defeat in the attempt to clinch the larger class honors. Yesterday it was Combs' Carrie Emma that pulled the unexpected, and glided through to victory by a margin of just five seconds.

The Carrie Emma crossed the line just fifteen seconds ahead of her previous performance of thirty-three, while the Hattie Bert was twenty seconds behind time. Thirty-five seconds divided the pair at the line, and the Carrie Emma, declared the Carrie Emma the winner. The Hattie Bert, Wedu and Carrie Emma are not tied, and will fight it out for the supremacy on October 3.

TRIPLE BOATIE FOR FARRAGUT TITLE

Three Boats Deadlocked in Each Class at Fine Delaware Carnival

The final race of the series of three for the title of the Farragut Sportsmen's Association, held on the Delaware river yesterday, resulted in a triple tie between three boats in each of the two classes. No single boat competing for the honors was able to register two victories during the season, and as a result a special pair of races between the trio of boats tied in each class will be held Sunday, October 5, to determine the winners.
