ESKIMO MUMMIES ARE ON WAY HERE

Dr. H. B. Van Vailin Wires University Museum of Finding Prehistoric Specimens

PARTY AT NOME, ALASKA

A telegram was received today at the University of Pennsylvania from Dr. William B. Van Vailin, head of the University Museum's Arctic expedition party, who has arrived at Nome, Alaska. Dr. Van Vailin announced that he had with him a collection of extraordinary value, including the mummies of prehistoric Eskimos, which may clear the problem of the racial origin of the residents of the frozen north.

Dr. Van Vailin said he would sail from Nome to Seattle on October 1. He is expected to arrive in Philadelphia with his collection in about three weeks. In his telegram the explorer told of a perilous journey through the regions of ice. The trip extended over a period of two years. At one time there was uneasiness concerning the party, as the explorer was long silent. His message from Nome had rejoiced because of the assurance of his safety and the promise of a rich addition to the treasures of the museum.

Seymour was driving the machine containing the five other men. The police say the car was running down Broad street at high speed. Smith was on the hood.

Near Morris street the speeding machine struck an automobile driven by John J. Deaver, 124 North Alder street. Seymour's car was hurled to one side and hit a tree. Smith's head struck the sidewalk. The others were pitched from the automobile.

Deaver was not hurt and his machine was only slightly damaged. The injured men were taken to St. Agnes's Hospital. Later Seymour was arrested by the police of the Fifteenth street and Snyder avenue station.

ADMIRAL PENDLETON DIES

Former Navy Yard Commandant Victim of Chronic Bronchitis

Rear Admiral Edwin C. Pendleton, former commandant of the Philadelphia Navy Yard, died Saturday night in the Naval Hospital, after a month's illness with chronic bronchitis. The rear admiral was born in Richmond, Va., in 1847, and was appointed to the Annapolis Naval Academy by President Lincoln in 1863, and was graduated four years later. He served for a year on the Minnesota and was then promoted to ensign. He was made master in 1870, lieutenant commander in 1880, commander in 1879 and captain in 1902. He attained the rank of rear admiral in 1907 and retired two years later. League Island was left without a commandant in 1907, owing to the death of Rear Admiral B. F. Tilley, and Rear Admiral Pendleton, then a captain, took his place. At that time he was commander of the battleship Missouri.

Miss Byers, Who Refused to Attend Summer School, Returns to Her Home

Members of the board contended Miss Byers broke her contract when she did not attend special school last summer. Professor Fisher explained that the contract was on a twelve months' salary basis and required that Miss Byers teach ten months and have two months' vacation and such continued training as the board of education should advise.

New problems in international trade that have arisen as the result of the war are being discussed here by the British manufacturers and improved methods of financing and merchandising are expected to grow out of their visit here. They are the first of many similar delegations to come, representing many branches of commerce and manufacture.

"Switzerland has many things that we feel there is a market for in the United States and the reverse is also true. Our purpose is to establish personal contact with the manufacturers interested and thus lay the ground-work for a great commercial exchange."

STORE THIEF GETS FORTUNE IN GEMS

Jewelry Worth $25,000 Taken From Ninth and Market Streets Establishment

$40,000 IN FURS RECOVERED

A $25,000 jewelry robbery and the recovery of stolen furs valued at between $40,000 and $60,000 marked the continual battle of wits between police and criminals yesterday.

The jewels were stolen from the store of Harry E. Kerstine, northeast corner of Ninth and Market streets, in broad daylight. The robbery was discovered by him shortly before noon.

The stock of the store is said to have been intact early in the morning, but when he visited the store at noon the side door had been jammed open and thieves had made a careful selection of the stock.

A delay in opening the investigation was occasioned after Kerstine reported the robbery because no detectives were available. Later Detective John Fisher was assigned to the case.

Boy of 16 Arrested
Abel Bellows, sixteen years old, Marshall street near Fairmount avenue, was later arrested. The police believe he knows something about the crime. The furs were recovered after detectives arrested two men accused of maintaining clearing houses for furs stolen in New York and other places.

The men are Samuel Popkave, Viola street, and Joseph Holstein, who gave an address on Callowhill street. They had a hearing before Magistrate Pennock in City Hall and each was held in $5000 bail for court.

Rich Loot Found

A search of the homes of the two men, the police say, revealed trunks filled with valuable furs stolen from New York on August 27.

More than $80,000 worth of furs were stolen from two New York fur stores on that date. The furs in the homes of the two suspects are part of the consignment, which was all sent here for distribution, the police say.

A relative of Holstein, arrested in New York on a charge of having participated in the robberies, is said to have broken down and confessed, his confession implicating the two men arrested yesterday.

Little Chinese Brook Outgames Shipmates

Celestial on the Manchester Castle Wins Chopsticks at Fantan

"The little brook purrs and winds, sparkling under the all-wise sun."

"The members of the Chinese crew of the steamship Manchester Castle are ready to swear that "the little brook, etc." does all that, and then some.

"The little brook, and so on," is the American equivalent for Lee Sing, Sing Wah, or some other Chinese name. Lee Sing, Sing Wah, or whatever it is, is the original of Fenyson's brook. He goes on forever. That is, he goes on winning forever.

And the worst of it is that the Chinese refuse to eat with borrowed chopsticks. It is against their religion. All but the cash and chopsticks formerly nursed by other members of the crew.

SALE OF RITZ HOTEL DENIED

Vice President Provan Declares There is Nothing in Report

David B. Provan, vice president and general manager of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel Company, denied today that the hotel had been sold and that it would be used as an office building. His denial followed a statement coming from Daniel N. Linnard, a California hotel builder, who, while at Atlantic City recently, said that the Ritz-Carlton was to be changed into an office building.

"Such a report is injurious to the business of the Ritz-Carlton," said Mr. Provan. "Guests grow restless and uneasy, thinking the doors will be closed, when no such step has been decided upon."

Rumors that the site has been acquired by other interests have been circulating recently.
