

The Best Health-Insurance Is a Clean Colon

THERE ARE TWO WAYS of insuring yourself against disease. One is to pay big premiums to an insurance company which will pay you so much a week when you get sick. And if you get sick, most of this money will have to go to the doctor who tries to make you well again.

THE BEST WAY is to keep the disease-resisting forces of the body so well organized and equipped as to guarantee health. Then you can enjoy life right along, and make it pay you premiums instead of paying premiums on a policy.

This can be done only by keeping the colon clean and free from clogging. For the most eminent medical authorities tell us that about 90% of the sickness we have is directly or indirectly due to constipation.

Nujol is the best health insurance "policy" in existence, because it keeps the colon clear and clean without deranging or weakening any of the other organs. It is the only food of constipation which has no unpleasant or dangerous "come-back".

Nujol is not a drug. Every particle of it that goes into the body comes out of the body. But on its journey it softens any mass that may be impacted in the colon and lubricates the way so as to make it easy for nature to move the obstruction and properly get rid of it.

Nujol never interferes with digestion or any functions of any organ. It is not absorbed by those millions of little "mouths" in the intestine which suck in nourishment from the food passed along by the stomach. Its sole job is to keep things moving in an orderly, comfortable way. And it does this without any pain—does it equally well for babies, children, adults and aged folk.

Try Nujol. Get a bottle from your druggist today.

For valuable health booklet—"Thirty Feet of Danger" free, write Nujol Laboratories, Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey) 50 Broadway, New York.

Warning: Nujol is sold only in sealed bottles bearing the Nujol Trade Mark. All other pills, based on Nujol, may injure from substitutes.

"FLU" EPIDEMIC FEAR FAST WANES IN CITY

Absence of Grip Cases Causes Doctors to Doubt Outbreak This Year

Mothers who have worries over the possibility of a new epidemic of influenza this fall and winter, and others who have felt the same uneasiness, were relieved today when it was reported that physicians here are generally disposed to think that there is no serious danger.

Just a year ago Philadelphia was in the grip of an epidemic, but at present it is almost free from anything resembling influenza.

During September alone last year 2000 cases were reported, and there were probably as many more which never were recorded.

Last month seventeen cases diagnosed as influenza were reported at the office of Dr. A. A. Cairns, chief medical inspector of the bureau. Immediate investigation by medical inspectors usually found the patient had recovered in two or three days and was back at work.

Doctor Cairns said there was nothing to designate the cases as the epidemic form of influenza. He doubts if there is any epidemic influenza in the city at this time, and believes most of the cases thought to have been the genuine influenza have been merely severe colds.

Precautions should be taken during wet weather, such as was experienced this week, that the feet and clothing be kept dry.

The 1918 epidemic began in August and reached its height before October, and physicians who have studied the disease say that an epidemic, if there was to be one, would have shown itself before this time.

SEEKS A WIFE IN CHESTER

Virginian Tells Mayor He Is In Market for Nice Girl

"Jim" Rawson, of Richmond, Va., wants some "nice" Chester girl to marry him. He has written Mayor McDowell requesting the chief executive to aid him in finding his ideal here.

Rawson is thirty-three years of age, does not chew or smoke, except to the extent of a single pack of cigarettes every two weeks. He does not swear and likes to stay home nights, he says, and "Jim" says he formerly worked in a Chester shipyard.

"If I am only fortunate enough to come into the realization of my desire," Rawson writes, "I will come right up and claim my bride. I will go to work in the Chester shipyard again. I want a girl from Chester and nowhere else."

BECK'S WARNING ROUSES COMMENT

Former Assistant U. S. Attorney General's Attack on Unions' Attitude Discussed

FOUNDRYMEN HEAR TALK

Warnings voiced by James J. Beck, former assistant United States attorney general, at the annual banquet of the American Foundrymen's Association, were widely discussed today. Points in Mr. Beck's address last night at the Bellevue-Stratford which stirred comment were:

The constitution is threatened by anarchy stalking in the guise of labor unions.

The restoration of law and order is the greatest task now confronting America and its Allies.

The refusal to operate railroads and mines should be legally made sedition and punishable as such.

The residents of the United States are far too tolerant of violation of the law.

Former Speech Recalled

It was recalled today that Mr. Beck, in his constitution day speech here in Independence Hall, attacked those who undertake to centralize power at Washington and change the system of government, saying that there was menace to the republic in such efforts.

Mr. Beck's subject last night was "The Crisis."

He pointed out that the country is now going through the same unsettled conditions experienced for several years following the Revolutionary War. "He asserted that free institutions in this country and England are in greater peril now than ever.

"He stated that in the steel strike 'outside pressure' is being exerted to 'choke America into submission.' Quoting from the book of Foster, leader of the strike, Beck said that Foster advocated destruction of the government and of all private property.

Must Crush Specter

"It is time for all people to crush this rising specter of lawlessness," he said. "It is time that we forgot our troubles in other parts of the world, and devote ourselves to the immediate task of restoring reign of law. I would have, in addition to the laws on the statute books preventing restraint of trade, another law, and that is, if any combination of men endeavors to dictate to the American people or the government their demands and say, 'You will obey us or starve,' then that offense should be equivalent to sedition and punished accordingly."

The convention continued its sessions this morning.

Man Held in Suitcase Theft

George Yates, a negro, of Dickinson, Tenn., was arrested today charged with stealing two suitcases and several suits of clothes from the home of Samuel Bell, Sixteenth street near Spruce. He was held for court without bail by Magistrate McLeary at Central Station. Yates was caught on the third floor of the building by D. G. Johnson, a painter, who was working on the building. After a struggle Johnson turned Yates over to the police.

LAW SCHOOL "RECOVERING"

Has Creditable Enrollment and Experiences Revival of Activities

After passing through the most demoralizing period of its history, the law school of the University of Pennsylvania is resuming peacetime "strength" with a creditable enrollment and a revival of activities.

The "rush" season for the law clubs has begun in the hope that many law students will be secured for membership. The war in several cases entirely depleted the membership of the clubs and fraternities, and alumni members in some cases are now instrumental in re-filling the membership rolls.

The clubs of the law school are the Shattwood, Hare, Miller, McKenn and Wilson, and the fraternities Phi Delta Phi and Delta Chi. The fraternities both suffered severely and had to discontinue operating during the war. The same was true of several of the clubs, while others had but two or three members at the opening of school this year.

YOM KIPPUR BEGINS TODAY

Jewish Day of Atonement Will Start at Sunset

The Day of Atonement, the most solemnly observed of all the holy days in the Jewish calendar, begins at sunset tonight and will last until sunset tomorrow. The day will be observed by services in synagogues throughout the city, lasting all day.

The Day of Atonement is one of the most picturesque holidays observed in any religious calendar. It is known to the Hebrews as Yom Kippur, and all orthodox and reformed Jews observe the day by rigid fasting. They are not allowed to partake of either food or drink from sunset tonight until sunset tomorrow night. In the synagogues the worship lasts throughout the day. It is marked by special prayers in which all the sins are named in order, and forgiveness is asked. As each sin is named the penitent strikes himself over the heart with clenched fist.

Another unique feature of the observance of Yom Kippur is the sounding of the shofar, or ram's horn, which is blown only on the most important holidays. Special prayers are recited in memory of the dead.

PROFITEERS' FOES TO CONFER TODAY

State Welfare Director Will Hear Evidence of Tenants' Protective Association

NEW LEASE IS SUBSTITUTED

The most important conference since the beginning of the fight against the alleged rent profiteering in Philadelphia will be held this afternoon in the offices of Frank B. McClain, executive director of the State Board of Welfare Commissioners, in the Finance Building.

Exhaustive evidence collected by the various Tenants' Protective Associations pertaining to abuses on the part of property owners of the city will be presented to the meeting. Representatives of these associations, members of the Philadelphia Real Estate Board and legal advisers for the organizations will be present.

Mr. McClain has announced his intention of bringing before the public the rent gouger and all other profiteers, the prosecution of whom comes under his direction. He will instigate an investigation here, it is said, and will immediately start a campaign of publicity.

Another important step toward the ameliorating of the rent situation here was taken yesterday when the new form of lease, which is being advocated by the Tenants' Association, was presented to Attorney Charles J. Hepburn, counsel for the Real Estate Board. The provisions of this lease, which are being kept secret but are aimed at reducing the chances of speculation in realty, were decided upon finally yesterday morning in the office of Richard T. McSorley, counsel for one of the associations.

Owls Get 900 New Members

The close of a three months' campaign conducted by Nest No. 1778, of the Order of Owls, came last night with 900 new members enrolled. Sixty-one persons were initiated into the order at the session held in Rittenhouse Hall, Fifty-third street and Haverford avenue.

SLEEPS IN FERRY TERMINAL, WAKES TO FIND SHOES GONE

Man Lets Out Howl When He Discovers Loss—Learns Footwear Was Sold on Street Nearby for Dollar

There is one man in Camden who wishes he was constituted like Macbeth and "could sleep no more." For an innocent little nap in the Camden ferry this morning cost him one perfectly good pair of shoes. With the price of shoes vying with the altitude record of Roland Roloffs, their loss is serious.

The shoes were not being carried; they were tightly laced about the feet of the man, and as his name is not to be mentioned, it may be said that they are "some feet."

The man, who works in this city, arrived somewhat early for the ferry and decided that he would take a nap in a waiting room. He had hardly dozed off when the bumping of the ferryboat into the dock awoke him. He leaped to his feet and started to run for the dock when he suddenly discovered that instead of a heavy pair of shoes, his sock-covered feet were patting on the wooden floor.

Mr. Man let out a howl. He instinctively felt in his pockets first, then rushed back to the bench, but the shoes were gone. In vain he rushed, shoeless, about the ferry; there was none who had seen the daring thief.

And then came the worst shock of all. One of the men approached by the shoeless one gave him the laugh. "A fellow sold a pair of shoes up the street a few minutes ago," he said, looking down on the bright blue socks which stared up at him. "From the size of them they must 'a been yours. He got a dollar for them."

It was adding insult to injury. When last seen the man was hiding in one corner of the waiting room.

"I can't go home," he explained. "The wife won't believe me if I tell her that some one stole my shoes."
