No Change in Refined Sugars

New York, Oct. 6.—The refined sugar market continues unchanged both as to conditions and prices. Local refiners, as usual, still refrain from accepting new business, and prices are low, less 2 per cent for cash, for the granulated. Argentine refiners are distributing some 50,000 tons of sugar. Haves are unchanged at 100.00 for 90-cent centrifugals.

NEW WEEK STARTED WITH BROAD, EXCITING MARKET

Specialties Given Another Spectacular Whirl as Shorts Scramble to Cover—Entire List Buoyant

New York, Oct. 6.—The new week opened with an exciting bull market today, with broad and buoyant trading and spectacular rising prices. It was one of the old-time Monday morning bulges such as usually followed during the height of excitement in every big upward market swing.

There were many reasons, however, for this fresh outburst of speculation. News from Washington concerning the President's condition was much more reassuring. Then came the London cables telling of the utter collapse of the British railway strike, with a complete victory for the government. Supplementing this cheering bit of news was the convincing testimony of the steel strike being on its last legs. Reliable advice of wholesale dealers from the traders' ranks, coupled with all of these invigorating influences was the strong technical position of the market disclosed on Saturday.

GENERAL ASPHALT MAKES ANOTHER SKYWARD TRIP

Spectacular Rise of $7 in the Common and $11 in the Preferred at Opening. It is not often the local market is witness of such excited trading as witnessed at the opening this morning.

The movement in the General Asphalt shares was truly spectacular, and by reason of the scant supply of stock and the recent loss ground retrieved, but both issues were swept into high ground in a most sensational manner. Before the end of the first fifteen minutes of the trading the common had soared $7 to 145, or $7 above the recent top price, while the preferred went skyward to the extent of $11 to 216, which is $5.50 above the previous top notch.
