Philadelphians, Back From First State Convention, Enthusiastic Over Prospects

TO WIELD GREAT POWER

Philadelphia members of the American Legion, home after the convention at Harrisburg last week, express greater confidence than ever over the ultimate strength of the former service men's organization and the part it will play in the life of the nation.

Members drew new inspiration from the convention and return to the task of securing new members with additional inspiration, one member said.

King Albert of Belgium will be accorded a rousing reception by the American Legion should he visit this city, according to Frank W. Melvin, who engineered the appearance of Cardinal Mercier at the legion meeting in the Academy of Music.

"A committee on public functions has been appointed," said Mr. Melvin, "and when the date of the king's arrival in this city is ascertained this committee will request the Mayor to invite his majesty to the legion reception."

R. R. Hogan, chairman of the marine post, who has been devoting much of his time to the American Legion in Philadelphia, has promised his active support in arranging the reception.

National Meeting Soon
With the permanent organization of the legion in Pennsylvania perfected at Harrisburg the next big interest of the legionnaires in this and other states will be the national convention, which meets in Minneapolis November 10, 11 and 12.

The Pennsylvania delegation of 100 members will be the second largest at the national convention. New York, having the largest membership in the country, will be represented by the largest delegation.

Most of the Philadelphia posts will meet this week to hear reports from their delegates to the state convention.

Would Elect Hogan
Tonight Marine Post No. 186, whose membership is rapidly nearing the 1000 mark, will meet at the Marine Corps Club, 1217 Chestnut street.

It is the hope of the marine post to have R. R. Hogan, formerly a major, elected to the vice chairmanship of the marine representation in the legion at the national convention.

It is the opinion of Franklin d'Olier and Lucien Breckenridge, who are associated with the national headquarters, that the American Legion in Pennsylvania is highly organized and is perhaps the most enthusiastic state organization in the country.

George E. Tyler, state commander of the legion, expressed himself as delighted with the manner in which the organization is gaining strength and prestige in this city and state.

QUARANTINE BENEFIT EXPLAINED BY KRUSEN

City Health Chief Advocates Education as to Need of Isolation

Overcoming aversion from quarantine by a health education campaign is urged by Dr. Wilmer Krusen, director of Public Health and Charities, in discussing today "The Schools and Health." He thinks such education is much more effective than legislation.

Dr. Krusen says: "A new course of study has found its way into the public schools—that of health education—so that the children will not only learn the practical lessons of personal hygiene and sanitation, but carry such information home to the parents."

"In the experience of every health officer health laws must be enacted as a measure of power to protect the general public from outbreaks of disease and to preserve the health of the community. We find that such laws are partially protective. They may require the quarantine of persons with infectious or contagious diseases, but they cannot compel persons to obey the commonsense laws of personal hygiene. Health education has been found to be far more effective than legislation, or at least education has been very instrumental in bringing about a more stringent observance of the legal health requirements."

POOR RICHARDS TO ELECT
Former Governor Stuart Only Candidate for Presidency of Club

A new president will be elected by the members of the Poor Richard Club at the annual meeting this evening at the clubhouse, 239 South Camac street. Richard A. Foley will retire and former Mayor and Governor Edwin S. Stuart has been nominated as his successor on a ticket which has no opposition.

But the election will be only one event of an evening which will be full of events. The annual dinner will be held at 6:30 o'clock and from then until they part there will be a series of interesting happenings, most of which will be in the nature of surprises.

At the business meeting two amendments will be voted upon. One is to increase the membership dues and the other makes the president, vice president, secretary and treasurer ex-officio members of the board of directors, with right to vote at all board meetings. The election of officers will take place at 8 o'clock, immediately after the dinner. Besides the name of Mr. Stuart the ticket includes the following:

For first vice president, Karl Bloomington.
For four additional vice presidents, Cyrus L. K. Curtis, Richard A. Foley, Harry T. Jordan, W. F. Therildson.
For secretary, Jack Lutz.
For treasurer, J. M. Fogelsonger.
For directors, Harry L. Applator, Gilbert M. Gable, Frank C. Goldner.
