

LEGION 'SITS TIGHT' ON DE VALERA VOTE

Leaders Assert, However, Condemnation Does Not Apply to Irish People

NOT AIMED AT REPUBLIC

The American Legion of Pennsylvania is firmly behind its resolution declaring Eamon de Valera a traitor, despite many protests received from Irish societies.

But the resolution directed against the so-called "president of the Irish republic" does not include in its indictment either the Irish people or the Irish republic set up by the Sinn Fein.

George F. Tyler, state commander of the legion, today made these points clear in an explanation of the action taken at the state convention last Saturday when the much-discussed resolution was adopted.

"The American Legion of this state has officially gone on record as having adopted this resolution unanimously at a convention of representative delegates from all parts of the state, and there is no intention of rescinding it," the state commander said yesterday.

Sufficient evidence was presented at the convention, Mr. Tyler said, to warrant such action.

Thomas E. O'Neill, newly elected president of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, was silent as to whether his society would ask the Irish members in the Legion to withdraw their memberships.

"It was a very regrettable incident; the work of British propagandists, I am sure. I cannot say now whether our society will take any further action on the matter or not, but the resolution they adopted Sunday night denouncing the adoption of the resolution at Harrisburg," Mr. O'Neill said.

The de Valera resolution was adopted at the state convention was unanimously indorsed at a meeting of Lieutenant Henry Houston Post, of Germantown, at a meeting held Monday night. The membership of this post is $12. The indorsement came after Colonel Millard D. Brown, formerly of the Twenty-eighth Division, one of the post's delegates to the convention, had explained the measure.

Fourth Naval District Post, No. 195, American Legion, has received a letter from Secretary of the Navy Daniels accepting an invitation to join the organization. The letter was read and cheered at a meeting in the Bellevue-Stratford last night.

The letter was addressed to Captain F. S. Van Boesereck, temporary chairman of the post. It was announced that during the membership drive nearly 300 new names were added to the post's membership roll.

William H. Greener, Jr., who was the post's delegate at the recent Harrisburg cantonment, reported on the convention.

MEN STRIVE FOR HOSPITAL

Teams Determined Not to Be Outdone by Women Again

Men in the University Hospital $1,000,000 campaign are at work today, determined to gain better results than those of the first day's drive, reported at noon yesterday, when it was found that the four leading men's teams were far behind the four leading teams of women.

The reports of the campaign made at that time showed $240,034.50 had been subscribed to the fund. The team led by Mrs. William C. Spruell, wife of the Governor, showed the high mark for the day with subscriptions totalling $38,300.

The next three teams of the women's division were those of Mrs. C. W. Hacker, $31,000; Mrs. George W. Pepper and Mrs. George W. Franzler, $18,300; and Mrs. E. Dolson Altman and Mrs. W. J. O'Brien, $17,350.

TO AID STRIKING PRESSMEN

Local Unions Would Contribute Recent Wage Increase to N. Y. Fight

Members of the Printing Pressmen's Union of this city will all probably contribute their recent increase of $8 a week for day men, and $11 a week for night men, to the striking pressmen in New York city until the strike there is settled.

This announcement was made today by George F. Crow, business agent for the local union.

"The motion to make the contribution was up before the union at the last two meetings and is now in the hands of the executive committee. I do not doubt but what the committee will act favorably upon it."

France to Hold Election Nov. 16

Paris, Oct. 8. — The date of the French elections was officially announced yesterday, November 16 being designated.

Advertisement for Cordo Wing Tip shoes, featuring a shoe illustration and text: "Special THIS WEEK ONLY WE INVITE YOUR CLOSE INSPECTION TO OUR REMARKABLE SALE THIS WEEK..."

ADMIT NOAH GOT DRUNK, BUT INSIST HE REPENTED

Clergymen Here Quote Bible in Support of Chemists' Statement on Planting of a Vineyard When Flood Receded

Clergymen of this city agree with the statement of Dr. Henry Leffman, a chemist, that Noah became drunk after he left the ark, but, they point out, he repented of it afterward.

Dr. Leffman in an address last night at the City Club, contrasted conditions in days long passed with the present day and asserted Noah's first step after leaving the ark was to plant a vineyard and his next to become drunk.

The Rev. Dr. Homer W. Tape, district superintendent of the Antislavery League, said today there are plenty of vineyards, but their existence gives no one the right to get drunk.

"It might have been all right for Robinson Crusoe to plant a vineyard and drink wine made from the grapes it produced," Doctor Tape declared. "But Crusoe was lying alone. The moment he found another human being on the island he would be forced morally to consider the effect his drunkenness produced."

"The Bible tells us," Doctor Tape said, "that Noah's son, Ham, laughed at him when the son discovered the patriarch's condition. Thereupon Noah placed a curse on his son. But his other sons sympathized with him and covered him. The incident of Noah shows that even in those days indulgence in strong drink did harm."

EDUCATOR ADVOCATES SCHOOL SURVEY HERE

Secretary of Association Declares Obvious Evils Show Need of Thorough Inquiry

Survey of Philadelphia's schools is urged by Bruce M. Watson, secretary of the Public Education and Child Labor Association, Witherspoon Building.

"Some statements," he said today, "can be accepted as facts; for example, that more than 20,000 school children are constantly on part time owing to lack of school rooms; that last year a constantly changing group of school children, averaging 5000 in number, were without teachers; that there is pulling and hauling and distrust between the school board and its employees, and between the different branches of the school service; that many school buildings are unfit for use; that results of school work are appalling; that things are going from bad to worse."

"On the other hand, there are high spots even in this educational mess. A school system that developed men like Dr. William L. Lewis and Dr. Albert Lindsay Roland—good enough to be chosen from all the country for important positions in the cabinet of Commissioner Thomas E. Finegan—must be superior at least in places."

Harlan Heads Princeton Seniors

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 8. — The senior class officers in elected yesterday are John Marshall Harlan, of Washington, president; Erdman Harris, Sevierville, Pa., vice president; and William Irving Harris, Orange, N. J., secretary.

COAL EXPORTS HERE SHOW BIG GROWTH

September Shipments Reach 246,646 Tons in 55 Steamships and 3 Sailing Vessels

Tremendous increase in the exports of coal from the port of Philadelphia is shown in the figures for September made public today. A new record was established.

There were shipped to foreign ports, according to the commissioners of navigation, 246,640 tons of anthracite and bituminous coal in fifty-five steamships and three sailing vessels.

A big gain was also recorded in the shipments of coal to coastwise ports during the month of September. Eighty-six vessels with 129,314 tons of coal sailed from here, as against thirty vessels with 71,732 tons during September, 1918. This indicates an increase of 77,602 tons for the month just ended.

The arrivals and sailings during the month of September were greater than any other month since the outbreak of the war. The foreign arrivals and clearances for the month were 299 vessels with a tonnage of 1,240,225. Compared with the same month last year a gain is indicated of 107 vessels and a tonnage of 428,303.

In the coastwise trade the arrivals and sailings for September were 423 vessels with a tonnage of 761,261, showing an increase of 108 vessels with a tonnage of 284,478 over the figures for the same period last year.

The value of the exports from the port of Philadelphia during the month of August, the latest obtainable, shows a loss of $2,430,897, compared with the same month in 1918. The total value for August was $39,876,417, as against $39,307,314 for August, 1918. The import values show an increase of $324,113, the total value for the month of August reaching $8,709,533, against $8,387,120 for August, 1918.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

HOG ISLAND BREAKS RECORD OF WORLD

Delivers Fifty Completed Ships to Government in Ten Months

Will Launch One Today

A world's record for the delivery of completed ships has been established by the American International Shipbuilding Corporation, at Hog Island, by the delivery to the United States shipping board of the 7825 deadweight ton steel cargo carrier Nobles, which has been accepted by the government.

This makes a total of fifty steel cargo carriers of 301,250 deadweight tons delivered to the new merchant marine of the United States in ten months by the yard, a record that surpasses by far the achievements of any shipyard in the world.

During the ten-month period in which the Hog Island shipbuilders were establishing the world's record, all the shipyards in the United States delivered to the shipping board 545 steel ships of a deadweight tonnage of 3,576,487, of which total Hog Island's share was in excess of 9 per cent as to tonnage and nearly 10 per cent in the number of ships delivered.

Twenty of the fifty ships delivered have carried their initial cargoes from the port of Philadelphia, and all of them have functioned perfectly on their voyages during which time they have covered over 480,000 nautical miles and have carried in excess of 600,000 tons of American products to all the important ports of the world.

The fifty-ninth ship will be launched at the Hog Island yard this afternoon. It will be named the Coahuma County, in honor of the work of the citizens of Coahoma county, Miss., in the five Liberty Loan drives. The vessel will be christened by Miss Louise Mosley, of Clarkssetown, Miss. The sponsor will be accompanied by a party of twelve pretty Mississippi girls. The vessel will be launched from Way No. 29 at 1:30 p. m.

CAN'T SKATE TO READING

Small Boy Has to Abandon Journey on Wheels

After leaving Philadelphia on roller skates for a journey back to his home in Reading, Joseph Dillon, eleven years old, found the skates would not work on country roads, and is waiting at Abington for new means of rapid transit.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

By skating and walking he got as far as Meadowbrook, where he became so hungry that he suggested the extension of hospitality at one of the country estates. There, as he ate, he told his story. Now the Abington police are trying to get in touch with his father, Joseph Dillon, Sr., of Reading. The boy and his mother have been visiting relatives in Twenty-second street, near Indiana avenue.

WAR BOAT STANDS TRIALS

New Destroyer Jacob Jones Beats Contract Speed Requirements

Speed exceeding expectations is being shown by the new destroyer Jacob Jones, which is being tested today at Rockland, Me. The vessel was built by the New York Shipbuilding Company, Camden, to take the place of the destroyer of the same name which was lost off the Irish coast in the war.

The four-hour speed run and other trials are being held today. The destroyer's contract speed is thirty-five knots an hour, but in the first Rockland tests it made 36.85, and averaged 35.39 in five high speed runs.

The four-hour speed run and other trials are being held today. The destroyer's contract speed is thirty-five knots an hour, but in the first Rockland tests it made 36.85, and averaged 35.39 in five high speed runs.

The four-hour speed run and other trials are being held today. The destroyer's contract speed is thirty-five knots an hour, but in the first Rockland tests it made 36.85, and averaged 35.39 in five high speed runs.

The four-hour speed run and other trials are being held today. The destroyer's contract speed is thirty-five knots an hour, but in the first Rockland tests it made 36.85, and averaged 35.39 in five high speed runs.

The four-hour speed run and other trials are being held today. The destroyer's contract speed is thirty-five knots an hour, but in the first Rockland tests it made 36.85, and averaged 35.39 in five high speed runs.

The four-hour speed run and other trials are being held today. The destroyer's contract speed is thirty-five knots an hour, but in the first Rockland tests it made 36.85, and averaged 35.39 in five high speed runs.

The four-hour speed run and other trials are being held today. The destroyer's contract speed is thirty-five knots an hour, but in the first Rockland tests it made 36.85, and averaged 35.39 in five high speed runs.

The four-hour speed run and other trials are being held today. The destroyer's contract speed is thirty-five knots an hour, but in the first Rockland tests it made 36.85, and averaged 35.39 in five high speed runs.

The four-hour speed run and other trials are being held today. The destroyer's contract speed is thirty-five knots an hour, but in the first Rockland tests it made 36.85, and averaged 35.39 in five high speed runs.

The four-hour speed run and other trials are being held today. The destroyer's contract speed is thirty-five knots an hour, but in the first Rockland tests it made 36.85, and averaged 35.39 in five high speed runs.

The four-hour speed run and other trials are being held today. The destroyer's contract speed is thirty-five knots an hour, but in the first Rockland tests it made 36.85, and averaged 35.39 in five high speed runs.

The four-hour speed run and other trials are being held today. The destroyer's contract speed is thirty-five knots an hour, but in the first Rockland tests it made 36.85, and averaged 35.39 in five high speed runs.

The four-hour speed run and other trials are being held today. The destroyer's contract speed is thirty-five knots an hour, but in the first Rockland tests it made 36.85, and averaged 35.39 in five high speed runs.

The four-hour speed run and other trials are being held today. The destroyer's contract speed is thirty-five knots an hour, but in the first Rockland tests it made 36.85, and averaged 35.39 in five high speed runs.

The four-hour speed run and other trials are being held today. The destroyer's contract speed is thirty-five knots an hour, but in the first Rockland tests it made 36.85, and averaged 35.39 in five high speed runs.

The four-hour speed run and other trials are being held today. The destroyer's contract speed is thirty-five knots an hour, but in the first Rockland tests it made 36.85, and averaged 35.39 in five high speed runs.

The four-hour speed run and other trials are being held today. The destroyer's contract speed is thirty-five knots an hour, but in the first Rockland tests it made 36.85, and averaged 35.39 in five high speed runs.

The four-hour speed run and other trials are being held today. The destroyer's contract speed is thirty-five knots an hour, but in the first Rockland tests it made 36.85, and averaged 35.39 in five high speed runs.

The four-hour speed run and other trials are being held today. The destroyer's contract speed is thirty-five knots an hour, but in the first Rockland tests it made 36.85, and averaged 35.39 in five high speed runs.

The four-hour speed run and other trials are being held today. The destroyer's contract speed is thirty-five knots an hour, but in the first Rockland tests it made 36.85, and averaged 35.39 in five high speed runs.

The four-hour speed run and other trials are being held today. The destroyer's contract speed is thirty-five knots an hour, but in the first Rockland tests it made 36.85, and averaged 35.39 in five high speed runs.

The four-hour speed run and other trials are being held today. The destroyer's contract speed is thirty-five knots an hour, but in the first Rockland tests it made 36.85, and averaged 35.39 in five high speed runs.

The four-hour speed run and other trials are being held today. The destroyer's contract speed is thirty-five knots an hour, but in the first Rockland tests it made 36.85, and averaged 35.39 in five high speed runs.

The four-hour speed run and other trials are being held today. The destroyer's contract speed is thirty-five knots an hour, but in the first Rockland tests it made 36.85, and averaged 35.39 in five high speed runs.

The four-hour speed run and other trials are being held today. The destroyer's contract speed is thirty-five knots an hour, but in the first Rockland tests it made 36.85, and averaged 35.39 in five high speed runs.

The four-hour speed run and other trials are being held today. The destroyer's contract speed is thirty-five knots an hour, but in the first Rockland tests it made 36.85, and averaged 35.39 in five high speed runs.

The four-hour speed run and other trials are being held today. The destroyer's contract speed is thirty-five knots an hour, but in the first Rockland tests it made 36.85, and averaged 35.39 in five high speed runs.

The four-hour speed run and other trials are being held today. The destroyer's contract speed is thirty-five knots an hour, but in the first Rockland tests it made 36.85, and averaged 35.39 in five high speed runs.

The four-hour speed run and other trials are being held today. The destroyer's contract speed is thirty-five knots an hour, but in the first Rockland tests it made 36.85, and averaged 35.39 in five high speed runs.

FORBES 1115 CHESTNUT ST. (OPPOSITE KEITH'S)

REMODELING REPAIRING

Don't Let the Bugaboo of High Prices Deter You From Buying Furs! (Buy From the Manufacturer!)

Here is brief, succinct advice, that may well be digested by all women in Philadelphia. It is the advice that will appeal to the business-wise husbands of you who love and desire fine furs. It is frank, free advice that is offered by this organization of Manufacturing and Retailing Furriers as a medium of consultation between you and your husbands. Buy from the Manufacturer—

Because we can save you many, many dollars on every purchase, whether you wish a Rich, Sumptuous Fur Coat of Surpassing Elegance or a Scarf, or a Stole that will be the means of adding so much to your comfort and stylishness during this Fall and Winter. Just because we do thus manufacture direct, buying our skins in early and preferred markets, we are further enabled to keep in closest touch with the Masters of Fur Style—which is added authenticity of the mode of all our Furs.

High Style and Low Price is summary of this remarkable Fur business—Talk it over with your husband!

Included among the pelts purchased by us many months ago, and recently fashioned, are the numerous examples of Fur Garments as listed here:

We Will Reserve Your Purchase on Payment of a Small Deposit

Table listing various fur coats and their prices, including Marmot Coats, Australian Seal Coats, Natural Muskrat Coats, etc.

Table listing fur sets and scarves, including Natural Raccoon Sets, Taupe Nutria Sets, Hudson Seal Sets, etc.

The Newest Forbes Hats. The handsomest Hats in Philadelphia. Hundreds of the Velvet and Hatters' Plush and Duvetyn Hats that are the rage for Fall wear. Off-the-face hats, sailors, jockey hats, close-fitting turbans, soft crushable hats. All colors that Fashion demands, such as black, navy, sand, taupe, Victory blue and in various notable combinations. They are popularly priced from— $5, $7.50 & up

Advertisement for Oppenheim, Collins & Co. featuring illustrations of women in dresses and text: "Oppenheim, Collins & Co. Chestnut and 12th Sts. Will Hold Tomorrow—Thursday Extraordinary Sale of Dresses For Women and Misses"

We Accept Liberty Bonds and Purchasing Agents' Orders