SENTIMENT BEARISH IN MARKET FOR CORN

Strike Along Water Front of New York Induces Buying Near Close

Chicago, Oct. 9.—Rumors about an embargo upon certain classes of shipments to the port of New York rattled corn toward the close today. The recovery was preceded by depression, due to weakness in the cash article, particularly in the Southwest where losses of as much as five cents a bushel were recorded, and more liberal offerings from the country.

The market started firm on covering by shorts, and some buying through commission houses, induced by unsettled weather in the belt, which offset whatever bearish influence yesterday's sending prices below the previous close. Toward the close there was buying on the strike along the waterfront at New York.

It was also finished firm after having a start to the north and covering by local interests and covering by shorts, but strong spots brought out selling by commission houses, and the market became heavy. The demand improved again in the final dealings.

Exporters were on the buying side, and prospects of bad weather caused bullish sentiment, as did the possibility of the crop and a lack of accumulation of supplies.

Leading futures ranged as follows: Year's crop (low delivery):

COTTON IRREGULAR AS EXCHANGE OPENS

Realizing Sales on Long Lines Offset Bullish Character of Early News

New York, Oct. 9.—There was considerable irregularity to the early cotton market today, the disposition to realize profits on long lines offsetting the bullish character of the early news.

First prices were 10 points higher to 7 points lower. Liverpool cables came slightly below expectations, but there were further heavy spot sales there.

There was continued realizing and southern hedge selling later and active months were 50 to 57 points below last night's close, with December selling at 22.55.

Prospects that a cold snap would follow the present rain in the south failed to check the early selling, but was a sustaining factor and probably encouraged buying on a scale down.

It contains no chloroform, and is therefore safer to use. It is non-damaging, non-corrosive, has full electrical resistance and the required low freezing point—minus 50° Fahrenheit. It is the only liquid that is recommended for use in ALL one quart extinguishers of the carbon tetrachloride type. It will enable you to refill ANY one quart extinguisher, thus keeping your supply down to a minimum if you have extinguishers of various makes. It is the only refill liquid for one quart extinguishers that is nationally advertised and has national distribution. It is not an experiment, being used and enthusiastically endorsed by hundreds of leading corporations all over the country.
