Line to Willow Grove.

That it was his purpose "to file a bill of equity against the Ravid Transit Company for the purpose of specifically enforcing the control of the purpose of specifically enforced by the specifically enforced by the state of the Cheltenham and Willow Frove Passenger Railroad af, the time this street railway was built," is the statement of Mr. Woodward in a recent letter to the Automobile Club of Philadelphia.

Mr. Woodward said last night that the action would be started as soon as he had collected necessary data. The bill is to be filed in behalf of Mr. Stevenson and of all of the owners of land bounding on the Oll York road.

Officials of the P. R. T. decided to discontinue lighting Old York road and the suburban highways over which the lines of the Glenside division run last month. The decision was made after the trolley company had provided free lighting in that section for over twenty years.

It was stated that in the franchise pleas of the residents.

The club received an answer from Lewis S. Sadler, state highway commissioner, stating that the lights had been installed upon the initiative of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company and maintained by them in order to protect what they seemed to regard as a dangerous operating situation. He further stated that the highway department cannot assume obligations of lighting highways.

Complaints against the condition of the Old York road have been made by mersons who must use it on their way to and from Philadelphia. They state that not only the section from Olney avenue to the city line is abominable, but the concern to restore the free lighting service it formerly maintained along the highway.

More Buildings Are Now Under Construction Than Ever Before

Reports indicate that more building permits have been issued in this country recently than ever before. There has been a scarcity of dwellings in almost every community, but new houses are going up everywhere.

This Means That Rugs Are in Greater Demand Than Ever

And this greater demand, together with the constantly increasing cost of labor, accounts for the general scarcity and the higher prices—and the fact that all quotations from the mills are much higher than the prices we paid for our stock. All of which means there is-
