WHEN YOU ARE ENTERTAINING-JUST A BUNCH OF POSIES-FOR THE ENGAGED GIRL-CYNTHIA

By CYNTHIA

For Love or Money

Dear Cynthia. Well, here we are ing, resolving that a girl should marry for money and not love. There are four girls in the debate, two on the nega-tive side and two on the affirmative side.

Now here is a subject for you fellows and girls to discuss: Come on, Dan B. and you other interesting people, here's your chance to tell a club of very nice young girls which you think a girl should marry for.

I believe that money will never buy happiness, and when marrying a poor man for love, he will work himself up in the world for the love of you, but marrying a rich man, there is no love.

SAVORY CHAFING-DISH SUPPER SUGGESTIONS BY MRS. WILSON

Chicken a la King, Crab Meat Dewey, a Macaroni Rabbit and Other Dishes to Tempt Your Guests

My MRS, M. A. WILSON Copyright 1019, by Mrs. M. A. Wilson All Rights Kennyed.

THE housewife who has no maid and wishes to entertain informally will find that the chafing-dish supper has very many advantages. The table for this supper may be arranged in the usual manner or it can be set with the usual luncheon doilies and a large centerpiece and a low flat bowl filled with autumn leaves. These makes nice decorations.

Place small dishes of saited almonds, olives and radishes or celery covered with cracked ice on the table. Much of the preparation may be made early in the day, so that none but the essential work need be done in time for the supper.

And now to prepare a menu: Salted Almonds Radishes or Celery

Daily Fashion Tall, by Florence Rose T IS only in the wardrobe of the It is only in the wardrobe of the woman who enjoys something of leisure—the society woman, if you will that the afternoon frock has a place. The woman who is busy with money getting or with household cares during the day may blossom forth in as gala attire in the evening as a more "leisured" sister, but she has few opportunities for the afternoon frock, and most of her social engagements are of necessity in the evening. In wartimes there was a general falling off of interest ecessity in the evening. So now when you see an attractive fernoon frock it is a real joy. It is something that you had rather forgotten about until recently.

There is still the tendency for the extremely short sleeve in the afternoon and the decolletage is sometimes extreme and sometimes only slight, as it is in the rock sketched today. And a black-and-anite sketch is really quite inadequate a give an idea of this frock, for its harm lies so much in the color—American beauty strikingly combined with duck satin. No novice in designing sould dare to use the color as it is here—in a large ribbon bow placed at the et side. Then you must imagine to carself the effect of the hat, which is of anerican beauty colored velvet with the state fancies of the same shade on ther side of the brim. Brooches, bracelets, carrings, necklaces — particularly necklaces — have great value as "value" givers to the costume. The string of pearl beads with a black frock is a notable example of this. The one touch adds distinction, but let the woman who has a black frock and a string of pearls add a few "echoing" touches—say a white pearl pin, white kid gloves, a white boot tops—and where is the distinction of that costume? Gone entirely! The "value" of white as a contrast has been lost by overdoing the coutrast. Anything that produces a "spotty" effect in costumes should be avaided. Focus the contrast in one strong touch—or two at most. A green parasol and a green petticoat will make a dark blue tailored costume very chic but not if there are also green silk stockings, green grapes on the hat and a string of green beads at the neck.

Caring for Pans

Stretch a piece of picture wire or ord over the kitchen sink. Over this hang old pieces of papers. Use them to wipe the grease from frying pans and pots, etc., before putting them into the dishwater. This will prevent grease from coating the sink and stopping up the sink spout.

Also use paper to wipe off the stove, table, sink and floor where grease and other things have been spilled on them.
