

Making the Rounds With the Doctor Among the Indisposed at the Zoological Gardens

THE ELEPHANTS of the Philadelphia Zoo are oiled at least once a year. The baby elephant goes on feeding placidly while the keeper, using a long-handled brush, applies a soothing coat of oil. In this way her beauty skin, which would otherwise become very stiff and dry, is kept in baby softness. Ledger Photo Service.

MISS FATIMA HIPPO has a little dental work attended to. She behaved splendidly while her molars were being filed. The patient did not insist on gas, nor did she show any signs of emotion. Ledger Photo Service.

THE SPIDER MONKEY has taken something that didn't agree with him at the Simian Fraternity banquet. But he is determined to get well, so he takes his medicine like a little man. Ledger Photo Service.

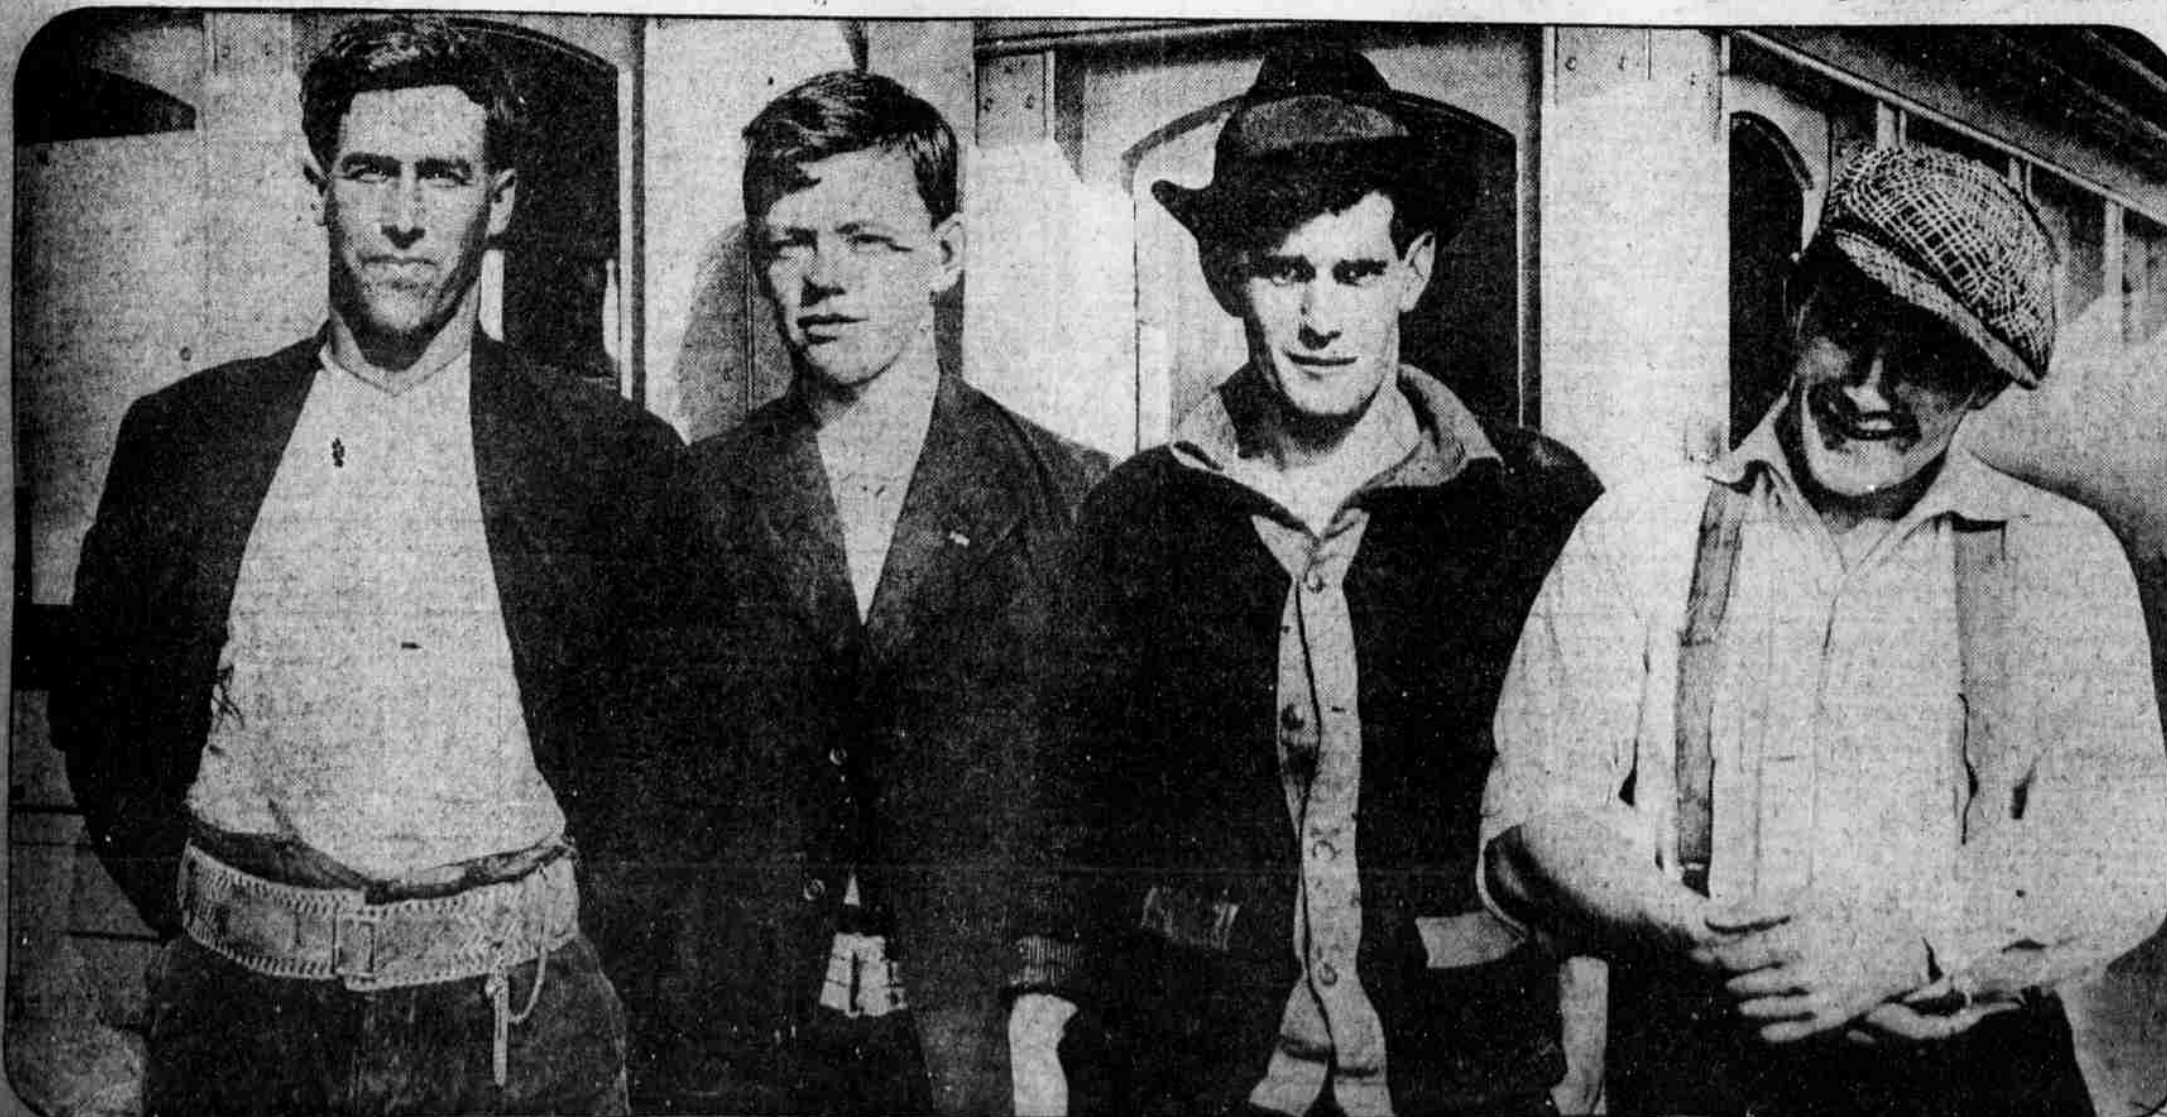

THE BOA CON- STRICTOR gets a mouthwash of cream of bismuth dipped on a tooth- brush for his sore mouth. Ledger Photo Service.

COLONEL JOHN C. GROOME, organizer and chief of the Pennsylvania state constabulary, who returned to his summer home in Bryn Mawr after twenty months' service overseas in France, Russia and the Baltic. The colonel's name has been suggested as director of public safety in the new mayoralty cabinet. Ledger Photo Service.

DOCTOR COOK, who thought he had made a famous polar discovery once upon a time, now thinks his new oil well is a tremendous gusher. He says he wouldn't think of selling out for any amount of money, because he will be a millionaire real soon—he thinks. (c) International.

SURVIVORS of the schooner Onato, picked up at sea while drifting helplessly 300 miles from shore, who arrived here on the steamer Zirkel. The rescued men say that their captain and first mate were crushed to death by the shifting cargo. The captain of the Zirkel says he saw the bodies of two men on the deck of the wrecked schooner. The four survivors were taken off at the Gloucester immigrant station for investigation. Officers of the rescuing steamer suspect mutiny. Left to right are Thomas Moulton, Ernest Prizard, Lorenzo Ash and Douglas Nichol, all from Newfoundland. Ledger Photo Service.
