

SCORNING INJURY, WOMAN SWAINS

Mrs. Jane Nesbit, Trying to Walk Home After Trolley Crash, Collapses

FIFTEEN HURT IN ONE DAY

An aged woman, severely injured in a trolley car collision in which seven other women passengers were hurt, walked more than two squares from the scene of the wreck before she collapsed. She was taken to the Episcopal Hospital. Her condition is serious.

The collision between two trolley cars happened at Front street and Allegheny avenue last night, and was one of a series of traffic accidents in which fifteen persons were injured yesterday. Two of the injured have fractured skulls and may not recover.

Mrs. Jane Nesbit, sixty-seven years old, 528 West 13th street, was the woman who attempted to walk to her home from the scene of the collision. She is suffering from severe shock and fractures of two ribs, and probably from internal injuries. The seven other injured women were treated at a nearby drug store.

They were: Mrs. W. C. Hackett, 700 Federal street; Camden; Mrs. Mary Cullen, 2067 Rutledge street; Mrs. Lillian Schaeffer, 3422 Frankford avenue; Mrs. Louise Flasser, 3520 North Marshall street; Mrs. M. Black, 2914 North street; Mrs. Katie Mason, 3856 North Marshall street; and Miss Margaret Schmidt, 3473 Jasper street.

Lamose Salpino, 5113 Ridge avenue, suffered a fracture of the skull when struck by an automobile at Germantown avenue and Walnut lane last night.

Aloysius Wall, 63 Walnut lane, his companion, was badly cut in the same accident. The motorist did not stop. Salpino is in the Germantown Hospital. His condition is serious.

Henry Bonaill, 643 Dicks avenue, lost control of his motorcycle at Eightieth street and Lyons avenue. He crashed into the horse of Mounted Policeman James Davis, of the Sixty-fifth street and Woodland avenue station. Davis was thrown from his horse but not injured. Bonaill is in the University Hospital with a fractured skull.

Another man whose skull was probably fractured is Frank Herschaft, of 2532 Tasker street. He was riding past Twenty-fourth and Oakford streets on his motorcycle when he ran into the automobile of Albert Bracci, of 2128 Latona street.

A taxicab and a touring car collided at Sixtieth street and Gibson avenue. The taxi was driven by Albert Clavson, 1005 Belmont avenue, who was unhurt. Three of its passengers were injured. They are Mrs. Mary Faunce, 2130 City street; fractured shoulder; Jacob Mangold, 2131 South Sixty-first street, lacerated face, and his wife, Mrs. Anna Mangold, severe shock. The automobile was driven by Alfred Whiting, 209 Wistar street, who was accompanied by his wife and children, none of whom was hurt.

PLAN END OF ZONE FARES

McCarter Meets Representatives of Jersey Municipalities Today

When Thomas N. McCarter, president of the Public Service Railway Company, meets representatives of the New Jersey municipalities in his office at Newark today plans for the abolition of the trolley zone system will be discussed. Conclusions arrived at will be reported before the Public Utility Commission at Trenton tomorrow.

Representatives of the municipalities have declared repeatedly that the zone system is a failure and they will not tolerate it. Mr. McCarter has reversed his position upon the zone system and now favors its retention. His attitude, he explained to the commission, is based upon increased fare receipts.

The decision of the Utility Commission, after the result of the conference is placed before it tomorrow, is expected to settle the matter finally.

ORCHESTRA BUSINESS ASSET

E. B. Morris, Urging Subscriptions, Points to Commercial Value

The Philadelphia Orchestra is a commercial asset as well as a cultural asset to this city and should be supported as such in the opinion of E. B. Morris, president of the Girard Trust Company. Mr. Morris today issued a statement in behalf of the orchestra's million-dollar endowment fund drive.

"The orchestra carries the name of Philadelphia to other cities and always carries it with credit," the statement reads. "It visits New York from five to seven times a year; Pittsburgh, five times; Baltimore, five times; Wilmington, five times; Cleveland, three times; Toronto, Detroit, Toledo and other cities at least once a year, and each time impresses the people of those cities with the high caliber of the ability of this city to do well whatever is attempted here."

Mr. Morris quotes an editorial from a newspaper in one of the cities visited by the orchestra in which the organization is warmly praised.

Church Marks 20th Anniversary

The twentieth anniversary of the founding of St. Paul Presbyterian Church, Fifth street and Baltimore avenue, of which the Rev. Dwight Witherop Wylie is pastor was celebrated with special services yesterday. An anniversary program, including addresses by prominent clergymen and musical numbers, has been arranged for every night this week.

Stabbed Fatally in Fight

An argument over a game of cards led to the fatal stabbing of William Slowers, colored, twenty years old, according to a confession, which the police say was made by Thomas Banks, colored, twenty years old, North Forty-sixth street. Slowers' body was found in the rear of a house at Forty-sixth and Poplar streets by Vincent De Bas, a lamplighter.

SHORT AND STURDY

To turn in close quarters. This Brockway coal truck has shown under hard service the typical stability and character of the Brockway truck. Its short wheel base and sturdy construction enable it to handle profitable loads in close quarters.

The body can be lifted to shoot coal across lawns or down man holes. Come in and show you the many interesting points of construction and design. Call, write or phone.

"SOS" AND GIANT SEA WAVE FAIL TO DAUNT RADIO GIRL

Never Been "Out" Before, but Miss Cora Weber Takes Command of Wireless on Board Boston Liner Grecian

"Full many a stormy wind shall blow Till Cora comes again." All the old songs of the sea will have to be rewritten since Miss Cora T. Weber, 1929 North Gratz street, a wireless operator, has taken to sailing the bounding main.

Miss Weber, who "shipped" on the Grecian, a passenger and cargo ship, for Boston, Saturday afternoon, was the first woman to go to sea to do a man's full job and draw a man's pay. Her duties and accommodations are the same as those of a male wireless operator and she is expected to hold down the job like a regular sailor.

A few women have gone to sea to assist wireless operators, but they only "listen in" on the messages and did not do the work. Miss Weber is to receive and send messages, clean and repair apparatus, and do all the necessary work around the wireless "shack."

Can't Get Male Operators The Marconi Company, which engaged Miss Weber, finds it almost impossible to get men for the position. They have five ships in port for every operator in their employ, and were very glad to accept Miss Weber's offer to help them out.

This is not very ancient "mariness" holds a first-class commercial wireless license, number 18,996, which she took out in Baltimore some months ago. She will begin at a salary of $100 a month, in addition to three dollars a day subsistence.

At the Marconi office they say this position may tempt a good many tired "stenos" who feel that a dash of sea air and $100 a month is just what they need.

They have some doubt, though, whether the marines' subsistence offered will quite take the place of the daily sundae and movie.

Never Been to Sea Before Miss Weber was a professional pianist before she began playing on a wireless key. She recently graduated from the Chamber Wireless Institute, 2046 Arch street, and this is her first position. She has never been to sea before, but has no fear of the indispension of the deep.

"I've been on pleasure trips down in Chesapeake bay," she said on the pier before she stepped on the gangway of the Grecian. "At times was about the only girl on the boat who got any pleasure out of the trip. I don't get sea sick and nervous like a lot of girls, and this little run to Boston hasn't got me bluffed a bit."

She has a "stateroom" on the Grecian and expected to have a fine trip. At the Marconi office they have a lot of confidence in Miss Weber and feel sure that like many other women, she will make the sparks fly when she gets down to work.

PHILA. AIR LINE CHARTERED

Gets Right to Establish Service From Easton to New York

Following approval by the Public Service Commission of the application for incorporation of the Easton Aero Service Corporation, the State Department has issued a charter to the company, which will conduct a passenger service between Easton, this city and New York.

It is the first charter for an airplane corporation to carry on a transportation business in the state. The Public Service Commission in its approval for charter purposes stated that the corporation will be subject to such rules and regulations as the future might show were necessary to control air service and its competition with already established lines of transportation.

OPEN in the Chestnut St. Shops

You noticed in Saturday's paper, no doubt, that, acting upon a suggestion of the Chestnut Street Association, the Transit Company has agreed to a new subway schedule, effective November 2. This schedule will provide a train every three minutes during the non-rush hours and every one-and-three-quarter minutes during rush periods. Christmas shoppers will appreciate this new order of things, and it is only one of the many civic improvements which the proprietors of the Chestnut Street Shops have secured for the benefit of the buying public.

SOMETHING new for a first course or dessert is a thing to be welcomed, and hothouse grapes from Belgium are something different and delicious. Henry R. Halliwell & Son, Broad Street below Chestnut, have immense perfectly shaped bunches of them, the third post-war shipment. The vines on which these grapes were produced are over 300 years old. Their roots are outside the hothouse, so that no injurious dampness will reach the grapes and while still green, they will mature to perfect flavor. Each grape is dusted with a camel's-hair brush to preserve its exquisite coloring. When you see the grapes at Halliwell's you will readily agree that the result is well worthy of such effort.

WHEN a mar recommends a household appliance you may be sure that it is satisfactory in every respect, and so I was delighted to discover in a recent issue of a woman's magazine a veritable "ology of the fireless cooker, written by a mere man. And, of course, when you think of fireless cooker, the Ideal Fireless Cookstove comes to mind immediately. You expect perfection when the name "Ideal" is bestowed upon an article, and perfection, where a fireless cooker is concerned, means positive heat imprisonment. Scientific insulation, stratified and fireproof, accomplishes this in the Ideal Fireless Cookstove. A special demonstration is being held at the store of J. Franklin Miller, 1612 Chestnut Street.

CLEAR crystal, in all its limpid loveliness, occupies an important corner in the store of Hailey, Banks & Biddle Company. There are candy jars with fairy-like turrets and jam jars which are so much favored for gifts, and many other interesting and lovely pieces which would make most acceptable presents. Compotes of clear crystal with incrustations of gold and silver borders are exceptionally beautiful and always useful. Roses look their loveliest in a vase of pure crystal and a crystal dish piled high with fruit makes an exquisite centerpiece for the dining table. The crystal corner is well worth a visit, for its beauties are too many and too wonderful to put into words. It is just the place to go when you are looking for a wedding gift.

WONDERFULLY soft and comfortable is the Faultless English Down Furniture at the store of H. D. Dougherty & Co., 1632 Chestnut Street. A davenport with great soft cushions filled with down and upholstered in velours or tapestry to harmonize with your furnishings adds to the character as well as to the comfort of your living-room or library. Placed before a huge, roaring log-fire, a davenport gives to your room an air of hospitality such as that possessed by many Colonial homes of the South, and which is due in no small measure to that style of decoration which makes the fireplace the focal point of the room. Arm chairs and wing chairs can be upholstered to match the davenport, and you will be more than pleased with the quality of the materials for that purpose which you can obtain at Dougherty's.

SUSPECT'S SUICIDE BLAMED ON POLICE

Friends of Alleged Mt. Carmel Embezzler Denounce Failure to Take Away Pistol

INQUIRY WILL BE ASKED

City Hall police were denounced today for alleged laxity in allowing George E. Feast, general manager of the Mt. Carmel Iron Works, who shot and killed himself yesterday, to keep a revolver in his possession after he had been arrested.

Feast was arrested here Saturday night. He had a hearing before Magistrate McKeon and was held in $5000 bail, in default of which he was ordered returned to Mt. Carmel to answer a charge of embezzling more than $20,000.

He started for Mt. Carmel yesterday in custody of a constable. When his train neared Tananqua, he obtained permission to get a drink. The constable heard the report of a revolver shot and ran to the end of the car to find Feast lying dead on the floor. A revolver was in his hand.

Friends of the dead man in this city and Mt. Carmel declared today they will call upon Superintendent of Police Robinson for an explanation of the apparent police laxity that allowed the accused manager to retain a revolver after having been arrested and held in bail.

Feast was well known here. He was a member of the Manufacturers' Club and spent most of his time there after his disappearance from Mt. Carmel about three weeks ago.

Usually, prisoners taken to City Hall are locked up overnight, and carefully searched. This, apparently, was not done in Feast's case.

Feast, it is argued, was overwhelmed at the disgrace that followed his arrest. He declared repeatedly to the police he was innocent of the embezzlement charge. He emphasized that the books of the Mt. Carmel Iron Works had not been gone over for several years and that the alleged shortage of $20,000 was due to an error in bookkeeping.

Feast had a wife and two children in Mt. Carmel where he was well known and highly respected.

Why We Do Not Sell Toilet Preparations Containing Lead Compounds

The dictionary says that "lead acetate, or sugar of lead, is a crystalline salt prepared by dissolving lead or litharge in vinegar or pyrogenous acid," and that "in large doses it is a violent irritant poison."

As used in so-called HAIR RESTORERS or SKIN PREPARATIONS, one would not get lead acetate in "large doses," of course; but the analytical chemist and the physician who are associated with this Store advise that lead, so used, is nevertheless a poison. They quote many authorities to prove that lead poisoning is a common and often very serious condition, leading to various maladies not always easily traceable to the true cause.

A leading medical authority says: "The clinical importance of the subject and its complexity are very largely increased by the fact that lead poisoning at times appears in most peculiar clinical guises, and the nature of the condition is likely to be overlooked, particularly if a source of intoxication is not readily suggested by the history."

Another authority says: "Hair dyes and cosmetics notoriously contain lead, and have frequently occasioned paralysis, ophthalmia and other unpleasant symptoms."

Other noted works on toxicology will be quoted from time to time to show why we do not sell certain preparations containing lead, mercury or any other drugs declared to be harmful in the particular formulae refused admittance to our Toilet Goods Store.

These precautions we have taken and are taking so that our customers may feel assured that every one of the hundreds of Toilet Preparations sold here is entirely SAFE to use for the purposes intended.
