Fire in Textile Mill

Friction in the clutch of an auto-matic drier in the textile plant of Kelly & Foust, C and Tioga streets, is believed to have caused a slight fire in the factory last night. The blaze was extinguished by the watchman. The drier was repaired and is in operation

A few days later she is found dead in her home. Beatrice admits that the woman was murdered in her mother's home and that she had her servants remove the body in the middle of the night to the woman's own home. Paul Harvey, a detective, takes a room at the house of Mrs. McNab, follows her to be lead to be the large than the starters he discovers house of Mrs. McNab, follows her to a lonely house, where he discovers Prall, who, after admitting that it was Mrs. Hartshorne who caused his min, but denying responsibility for the murder, dies, Harvey investigates Mrs. Hartshorne's past, finds she has a public record and gets a line on the murderer, her former husband. He summons the chief of police and Mrs. Hartshorne's maid, who proves to be the woman's sister-in-law. She denies her brother had anything to de with the murder, declaring that she committed shields.
