Nancy Wynne Talks of the Day's Doings in Society. Miss Bartlett's Engagement Announced at Tea Today

THE debutante for today is Emory Bartlett, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. North Emory Bartlett, and a niece of Mrs. J. Wellington Shannon, of this city. Mrs. Bartlett was Miss Bertha Kennedy, a sister of Mrs. Shannon, who was Miss Emelie Kennedy.

Emory is a very sweet girl, as some one seems to have found out early, for do you remember last week I hinted that a bud who would make her bow soon would announce, or rather her parents, would announce her engagement the same day.

Well, this is the case, and she is engaged to Robert Perry, of Germantown, and it's a mighty nice match, too. They are both awfully popular young people. Among the ladies who will receive by Mrs. Bartlett today are Mrs. John M. Kennedy, Mrs. Frederick P. Kennedy, Mrs. Wellington Shannon, Mrs. Russell Jones, Mrs. Richard B. Mattison, Jr., Mrs. Francis Lawson, Jr., of New York; Mrs. John Dickey, Jr., and Mrs. O. La Forrest Perry, who incidentally is the mother of Emory's fiancé.

John Lippincott, Frances Neely, who, by the way, was introduced yesterday at a tea at the Acorn Club; Dorothy Whiting, Laura Gales, of Framingham, and Louise Harding will receive with Emory.

Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett will give a dinner, followed by a party, after the tea. The additional guests at the theatre party will be Frank Rodgers, Harris Williams, William Dawson, Nelson Perry, Raymond Ball and Melvin Deolittle.

TODAY is going to be one grand drive for the Orchestra Fund, which is, by the way, a very interesting one. The Arcadia will present all its luncheon proceeds to the committee collecting for the fund and the Ritz-Carlton will give its luncheon proceeds to this committee. I think quite a sum should be the result, don't you, for the two places are certainly popular?

Mrs. Van Rensselaer entertained at the Arcadia luncheon on Saturday. Mrs. A. J. Dallas Dixon and several others.

CERTAINLY the clans are uniting in entertaining the John R. Drexels, who are visiting here. They have not been out for quite a while, you know, and so the nieces and nephews and friends have given quite a number of dinners and luncheons. The Drexels and their friends will entertain them tomorrow night, and Mrs. Robert Montgomery gave a luncheon yesterday for Mrs. Drexel.

They will go back to New York the early part of next week. I understand, Mrs. Drexel's mother and sister, Mrs. Troth and Miss Emily Troth, who live in West Philadelphia, have recently returned from a stay in New England.

THE Rutherford McAllister will give a debutante dance this evening at the Huntington Club. The debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ross, there will be several dinners before the dance. The George Williams, Jr., who have Peggy Taylor, of Baltimore, for their guest for several days, will give a dinner at the Whitehurst, and the Edgar Baries will give a small dinner for their daughter Margaret before the dance also.

I SAW Gaius Baird at a party recently and she did look so smart. She is tall, you know, and has fair curly hair and the most attractive features—so plump. She was wearing an old rose frock of embroidered and plain georgette and a wide satin ribbon encircled her waist. It was most becoming and then Gaius carries her clothes so well. It must be a joy to have a daughter who looks so well groomed and smart upon all occasions.

LITTLE son is just about four years old, and when mother, a short time ago developed a slight case of measles, he was very much concerned. He went about the house on "tippy-toe" and every five minutes would inquire earnestly: "Don't you feel a little better, Mother?"

One afternoon when Mother was convalescing and really and truly feeling much stronger, Daddy suggested a walk to his small son. Well, it happened that on the way they stopped for a few minutes at a friend's house and that friend inquired: "How is mother?"

With a grave, self-important little air he answered: "Oh, she's had the case, but she's better now." NANCY WYNNE.
