

MRS. RACHEL AVERY, VOTES LEADER, DIES

Strict Secrecy Maintained Until After Body Had Been Cremated

WAS A NATIONAL FIGURE

After her body had been cremated the first public announcement of the death of Mrs. Rachel Foster Avery, national leader in the woman suffrage movement, was made late yesterday.

Mrs. Avery died Sunday in the University Hospital following an operation. She is survived by two daughters.

Long a resident of this city Mrs. Avery moved to a farm she bought near Doylestown, and in the last few years became known as a successful woman farmer. She was one of the earliest workers for equal suffrage.

Mrs. Avery was closely associated for years with Susan B. Anthony, Dr. Anna Howard Shaw and others in hard-fought campaigns for ballots for women.

She was a prominent figure in the nation woman's suffrage convention held in St. Louis last March.

Rachel Foster Avery was born in Pittsburgh, December 30, 1858. She was a daughter of J. Heron Foster and Julia (Mannell) Foster.

While she was at Cornell speaker Mrs. Avery won her chief fame by her managerial and secretarial work. She had charge of numerous conventions and directed the successful Nebraska campaign. For more than twenty years she was corresponding secretary of the National Woman's Suffrage Association. She assisted Susan B. Anthony in the preparations for the international council of women held in Washington in 1888, and was corresponding secretary of that body from 1888 until 1893. She was corresponding secretary of the National Council of Women of the United States, from 1891 until 1894; first secretary of the International Woman Suffrage Association from 1904 to 1909; and vice president of the National Woman Suffrage Association from 1908 until 1910, and president of the Pennsylvania Woman Suffrage Association from 1908 until 1910.

MRS. WILSON SEES COST CUT IN ANOTHER "TEA PARTY"

Evening Public Ledger Food Expert Urges Boycott on High-Priced Articles—Criticizes Women Who Store Unnecessarily

"A LITTLE Boston tea party of our own wouldn't be a bad thing. Boycott the foods that rise in price. Laying in a stock before the price goes up, as the storekeeper suggests, is the surest way of making the price go higher and higher."

Mrs. Mary A. Wilson, food expert of the EVENING PUBLIC LEDGER, warned housewives at the food fair in the First Regiment Armory yesterday to use the greatest possible economy in cooking and buying. There is little use, she believes, in trying to teach economical cooking to women who are extravagant buyers.

"We are facing worse times than we ever thought of during the war. At the first rumor of a shortage, housewives begin to stock up and collect more than they know what to do with."

Supplies Are Going Bad

"During the last week, more than a hundred Philadelphia women have asked me what can be done with 100 pounds of whole wheat flour that has men's bugs in it, a case of raisins that has become wormy and numerous other foods which they have stocked up at a rumored shortage. One woman heard of a salt shortage and bought enough to last her at least three and a half years."

Boycotting high priced and scarce foods, Mrs. Wilson suggested, was the best way to keep the warehouses filled and insure reduction in price.

Housekeepers in Brooklyn and other cities, she explained, have recently decided to refuse to buy eggs at a dollar a dozen, butter at a dollar a pound and sugar at a price above eleven cents.

"Substitute intelligence and common sense for hoarding and waste, and the cost of living will come within the reach of all," said Mrs. Wilson. "In New England, a hour time ago, they had a Boston Tea Party, and were proud of it. Some of that same spirit is needed right now to face the problems of food costs this winter."

HELD FOR 8 THEFTS, BOYS ACCUSE 3 MEN

Two Youths Confess Burglaries, Police Say, and Tell Where They Disposed of Loot

Three men who, the police say, were accused of acting as Fagins by two boys under arrest for eight burglaries, were each held under $800 bonds today by Magistrate Harris in the Thirty-second street and Woodland avenue police station for a hearing.

They were Manuel Stetel, of Third street near Pine; Edward Matto, of Fifty-second and Spruce streets, and Jack Gabriel, also of Fifty-second and Spruce streets. All were accused of receiving stolen goods and Gabriel faced the additional charge of conspiracy to commit a felony.

The police say that Fred Little, fifteen years old, of Sixty-sixth street near Girard avenue, and Thomas O'Boyle, nineteen years old, of Orianna street near Westmoreland, confessed they had robbed a number of residences and had sold their loot to the three men.

When the men were searched they had about $400 worth of jewelry, which

Tailor Says He Was Stoned by Strikers or Their Sympathizers

Joseph Menallo, a tailor, working at Tenth street and Washington avenue, was held in $400 bail for a further hearing today, for firing a revolver at supposed strikers and other workers who stoned him on his way to his place of employment.

Menallo told Magistrate Coward in the Seventh and Carpenter streets station that he had bought the revolver to protect himself from the daily assaults of the strikers. The hearing was held over until Friday to give Menallo, who lives on Alder street near Federal, a chance to procure character witnesses.

STREET ACCIDENT FATAL

NEW NATIONAL

SEXTET

Motor Row has never welcomed a better and more attractive car than the new National—the finest automobile that National has ever built in twenty years of pioneering, development and achievement.

For the National "Six" has charm and dignity to recommend it. It is smartly continental, with low-hung body and lines straight as an arrow. It is built in five custom body styles—Touring Car, Phaeton, Roadster, Coupe and Sedan.

And the engine!—it is the ablest that National engineers have ever created—tough as rawhide and abundantly endowed with flexible and unobtrusive power that makes for road mastery, easy driving and quiet operation.

You'll like the National Sextet, we know, the instant you see it, and you'll have a most wholesome respect for this new and finer National when you proudly sit behind its wheel.
