

HALLOWEEN PLANS—ADVENTURES WITH A PURSE—DANCE FROCK—DO POPULAR GIRLS MARRY?

MRS. WILSON SUGGESTS SOME MENUS FOR HALLOWEEN SUPPERS

And Also Gives Some Ideas for Unusual Decorations on the Refreshment Table

White Icing Decorates Cakes of Various Kinds With Lantern Faces and Appropriate Symbols

By MRS. M. A. WILSON

ON HALLOWEEN evening the good fairies are permitted to make themselves visible to their many friends...

It is truly a wonderful night for the romantic maiden to delve into the future and find, or try to find, her luck when seeking for the knowledge of her future life partner.

And in the midst of much hilarity many games are played; there is a bobbing and ducking for apples, spinning the plate, postoffice, heavy, heavy, what hangs over and forfeits.

Other old legends told that this one night in the year the spooks or ghosts were permitted to roam the earth, so that, to escape their notice, all must go masked—hence our young folk disguised themselves and wandered forth from house to house seeking entertainment...

Let your young folk entertain their friends with a good old-fashioned Halloween party; let them play the old games of long ago and then close to the magic hour of midnight serve a real old-fashioned Halloween supper.

SOME SUGGESTIVE MENUS

- No. 1 Cider, Olives, Salted Nuts, Sardine and Potato Salad, Jack o' Lantern Cakes, Coffee
- No. 2 Cider Cup, Celery, Gloucester Cod a la King, Cheese Sandwiches, Fruit Cakes, Coffee, Nuts, Raisins, Apples
- No. 3 Salted Nuts, Baked Virginia Ham, Potato and Pepper Salad, Rolls, Butter, Ice Cream, Coffee, Radishes, Home-Made Pickles, Fried Oysters, Potato and Celery Salad, Rolls and Butter

Have corn husks and pumpkins for the decorations; use autumn leaves, strung together, for wall decorations. Cover the table with a silken cloth and then with linen tablecloth and place in the center of the table a new wooden pail filled with cider.

Now wire the handle so that it will be in an upright position. Wrap the handle with yellow tissue paper and fasten a small jack o' lantern made from a small pumpkin to the handle so that it will hang in the well of the bucket.

Hollow out a medium-sized pumpkin and cut in it a jack o' lantern and set bowls in the pumpkins to hold the radishes, pickle and sandwiches, sugar, etc., and make tiny pumpkins from the yellow crepe

Mrs. Wilson Comes to the Rescue and offers practical suggestions for overcoming the lack of sweets during the present sugar shortage.

This Is Her Advice.

When the recipes call for one cup of sugar, use one cup of white corn sirup in place of the sugar and then reduce the amount of liquid required in the recipe to one quarter. This means that a recipe that calls for: One cup of sugar, One-half cup of milk or water, may be adjusted to this formula: One cup of white corn sirup, Four tablespoons of water, or One and one-half cups of sugar, One cup of milk or water, in place of which you may use: One and one-quarter cups of white corn sirup or molasses, Eight tablespoons of water or milk or one-half cup.

paper, filling them with hard candies for souvenirs.

How to Make the Cider Cup Place in a large bowl some crushed ice and

One gallon of cider, Three bananas, cut into thin slices, Two oranges, cut into thin slices, Three baked apples, cut into bits. Mix and then serve.

Sardine and Potato Salad (Twenty-five persons) Wash and then cook eight pounds of potatoes until tender and then, when cool, peel and cut into thin slices into a large mixing bowl. Now add:

One cup of finely chopped onions, One-half cup of finely chopped parsley, One cup of finely chopped green peppers, Two cups of finely chopped celery, Two cups of mayonnaise or cooked dressing, One-half cup of vinegar, One tablespoon of salt, One teaspoon of pepper, One and one-half teaspoons of mustard.

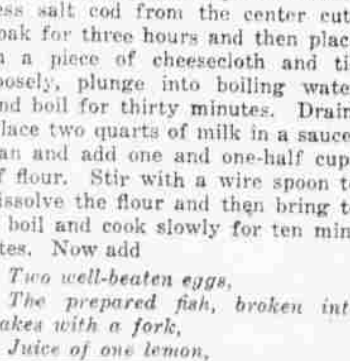

Toss to mix thoroughly and then prepare individual nests of lettuce and place three-quarters cup of the potato salad in each nest. Mold it into a cone and then lay four sardines, tail-end up, against the salad. Garnish with finely chopped parsley and serve.

Jack o' Lantern Cakes Bake a sponge cake in individual or muffin pans and then ice with chocolate water icing and make the lantern face with white icing.

Gloucester Cod a la King Select a three-pound piece of boneless salt cod from the center cut; soak for three hours and then place in a piece of cheesecloth and tie loosely, plunge into boiling water and boil for thirty minutes. Drain. Place two quarts of milk in a saucepan and add one and one-half cups of flour. Stir with a wire spoon to dissolve the flour and then bring to a boil and cook slowly for ten minutes. Now add:

Two well-beaten eggs, The prepared fish, broken into flakes with a fork, Juice of one lemon,

Please Tell Me What to Do

By CYNTHIA

Shall She Take His Arm? Dear Cynthia—Should I take a young man's arm when walking in the street with him? SARAH L.

A Bit Behind Times

Dear Cynthia—Read with much interest, letter signed "Ruth." Ruth certainly comes out with the truth. She expresses the opinion of about 98 per cent of the male sex about "dolls." Every fellow likes to see his girl look good and attractive and a little paint and powder never did or never will hurt a girl's face or reputation. I'll admit there are a few freaky make-ups that are utterly disgusting, but such are few compared to all that use powder.

We are living in the twentieth century and beauty cosmetics are only the signs of progress. Just as the airplane was invented for the betterment of travel so are cosmetics for the betterment of a woman's appearance, which is an important factor to her success in life.

Will some of the "blain" and angelic girls write me why they don't use paint and powder? Let's be reasonable and do away with the silly ideas that our great-grandmas had.

The only hitch about this is that cosmetics are not modern, but have been used for many, many centuries.

There Were Some Answers

Dear Cynthia—Do you remember Judy, who wrote a letter to your column a few weeks ago? I have seen her answers published in my letter, but perhaps I missed them, as I have been away from home quite frequently. At any rate, I should again like to add my contribution to the "K. I. O."

The subject of kissing is, I know, worn almost threadbare, and yet, Cynthia, no one has yet expressed my ideas on the subject, for when I said that a man loses his respect for a girl when she allows him to kiss her, "This, I believe, is quite true. We also hear people say (and I believe it) 'Why don't the girls save their kisses for their husbands-to-be?' Now, I am ready to ask my questions:

Why not apply the rule both ways? Why is it any worse for a girl to give privileges than it is for the man to take? Why should not a man keep himself as pure as the woman he is to marry?

Here is the whole thing in a nutshell: The majority of men expect girls to measure up to standards of which they themselves are short. Remember, I am not saying all the men, for that would not be true. I number among my masculine friends several who have the highest ideals, and who live up to them. This is one thing that I have discovered, Cynthia. And the man who has a sister whom he loves and respects is almost always sure to treat other girls with the greatest respect and consideration.

What I have said in regard to one-sided standards in the matter of kissing applies also to many other more serious things in life. Girls are condemned for flirting, for attending public dances, for going to questionable shows, etc., and yet the average man considers himself a free lance to do just what his rather elastic conscience permits. I, for one, am a believer in sex equality, so far as morals are concerned, at least. I believe I could write a volume without stopping on this subject, Cynthia, but I think what I have written will be sufficient to express my opinion.

I hope that some men with ideals will answer my letter and let me know that there are some who agree with me.

JUDY, AN AMERICAN GIRL.

To G. X. Y. and Sunshine Cynthia is sorry but as she has explained various things, she cannot bring about introductions between persons who write into the column, so G. X. Y. she cannot comply with your request, nor with yours either, Sunshine.

A Daily Fashion Talk by Florence Rose

DANCING is going to be even more popular this winter than it was last winter or the winter before. The boys who have been coming home from France are keen about it, and whether you are young enough to be their sweetheart or old enough to be their grandmother they will like you a lot better, after all, the only two people who are congenial if you can go through one of the new dances with them.

When a business friend comes to town, they aren't going to hang around his hotel for the evening. They are going to get him to come home with them. And if home is a place where they can pass a little time and forget their worries by dancing, so much the better. After all, the only two people who are congenial if you can go through one of the new dances with them.

And really it is perfectly appalling the number of dance frocks of the simpler sort that have already been bought at the stores and ordered at the dress-

DOES THE POPULAR GIRL GET THE BEST HUSBAND?

Or Is She as Apt to Marry as Her Less-Courted Sisters?—An Answer to One of the Latter

NOT so long ago an unusual letter came to the page. It told of a girl of twenty who by all the laws of everything should be popular. That is to say, she is pretty, well dressed and has a nice home with parents willing to let her entertain in it. In addition to this she is cheerful and, judging from the letter, intelligent and "human." Yet the girl is not popular.

I call this letter unusual because it was a frank outpouring of a wish so many girls are a bit too proud and vain to own up to.

"Now, to be honest," the letter reads, "I want to marry. I want a home of my own. I want a husband and children. I want all this, and I fear I am going to miss it all."

LET me tell you, dear little friend, you are not going to miss it all. It is the girl of your type who, in the slang of the day, "makes the best match" in the end. Follow the course of the average popular girl for five years. How do you find it? It runs temptuously through case after case; through flowers and boxes of candy, and where does it end after the five years? It doesn't end. That's just it. The career of the popular girl trails on indefinitely. She seldom marries early, frequently never marries at all and when she does it is more often than not a marriage mediocre in love.

makers. Not mere evening gowns, these—but gowns of the sort that are made with the express idea that the skirts are neither so long nor so narrow as to impede dancing.

The sketch gives you an excellent idea of the sort of gown that is ordered by the discriminating woman for her evening dancing. It is of rose-pink silk hung over a not too narrow drop of gold lace. The little shoulder sleeves are also of gold lace and the ribbon that goes over each shoulder and in a long loop at the left side is of steel blue.

just the kind of girl who gets the wonderful worthwhile man. But you must give him time to find you, for you are just a child.

Some one wrote to the page and suggested that you get some hobby or occupation and lug it to your room. Why don't you do that? Where worthwhile things are done you are just that much more apt to meet worthwhile people. And, besides, it is a queer but undeniable fact that as soon as we stop worrying about men they, the nonunderstandable, begin to worry about us.
