DEFEATS FORGOTTEN, TIGERS PREPARING FOR HARVARD TILT

Princeton Getting Ready to Hurl Full Strength Against Crimson and Yale-West Virginians Play Remarkable Football in Defeating Coach Roper's Eleven

By SPICK HALL

PRINCETON was beaten Saturday meant that he is fast for a 198 pounder, he is fast for any weight. Not only that but he holds his feet as well as be expected that this would cause a dense, mass of gloom to hang over the the football game and that poured a relentless rain on the playing field throughout the entire massacre. Of course, the Tigers are not re-throughout the entire massacre.

Of course, the Tigers are not region over their humiliating defeat, but they are not discouraged. And as a matter of fact there is no reason why they should be discouraged. They went into the game against West Vicginia minus the services of Keck, their, best tackle; Trimble, the man around whom the entire Praceton offense is built; Lourie and Garrity, two backfield men, who are much better than Destein Markey, who played in the Mountaineer tragedy.

Forget Easily

The student body, coaches, players, alumni and friends of Princeton even at this early date have virtually forgotten that the Orange and Black has been defeated on successive Saturdays by Colgate and West Virginia, teams that are, from their standpoint, far from their social equals. They are looking to the Harvard and Yale games. Before Saturday's game Coach Roper said that no matter what happened in the West Virginia game, he was not ternational Six-Day-Race Committee Coach Roper said that the matter what happened in the West Virginia game, he was not ternational Six-Day-Race Committee Coach Rope Six-Day-Race Committee Coach Rope Six-Day-Race Committee Coach Rope Six-Day-Race Coach Rope Six-Day-Ra the West Virginia game, he was not ternational Six-Day-Race Company, going to jeopardize his chances for his line. It isn't that I mind playing my best men against West Virginia, said Roper. 'for if they were all right I would do it in a minute. But they are not in the best condition and I don't propose to have them banged up in a game that means nothing to us when they can be so valuable against Harvard. that means nothing to us when the so valuable against Harvard races will be staged the closing day of the football season. Few people realize that Princeton. Yale and Harvard play all of their football with the idea of defeating only the other two members of the triangle. If, for example, Yale should beat Hartard and Princeton by decisive scores amount ever raced for in this or any other country. the members of the Blue eleven would not claim the championship of the world. It is true that a lot of football writers, notably those of New York ity try to impose the best one of the o-called Big Three on the public as

But the winners themselves do not But the winners themselves do not make any such claim. They simply play in their little circle and are satisfied if they win. They are not out for titles and they do not claim any and it is grossly unfair to the players and the institution to say that they make certain claims when the first they see of these claims is in a newspaper.

Preparing for Harvard

New Haven. Conn., Nov. 3.—W. W. Heffelinger, the famous "Pudge," who probably is the best guard Yale ever produced, hailed into town last night on his annual trip East for the purpose of helping our Eli coaches. He will spend his time priming Galt and Acosta. Yale's regular guards, for the coming big contests with Brown, Princeton and Harvard.

Bearing this in mind it is not hard to see why Princeton takes her defeat from West Virginia so lightly. The Tigers are preparing for the Harvard game text Saturday, and if they can win that the past is not only forgotten last is not into the "don't care column. This week Conch Roper will put his team through a few hard scrimput his team through a few hard script his hot looks today almost as he did then, as age has affected him only slightly. While helping in the coaching his to test the worth of the regulars, and the story is true—but possibly overdone. Bearing this in mind it is not hard

All West Virginia

There isn't much that can be said Hindle Sets Record on North Jersey Princeton's work against West Virginia Golf Links of Princeton's work against West Virginia. The game from a spectator's viewpoint was all West Virginia. Princeton had little chance to do anything, and when they did have they could do nothing. The mountaineers had lots of chances to perform, and they did. Princeton made but two first downs in the feur periods, completed only one forward pass for a gain of six yards and performed generally on the offense as though their hats were not in the ring.

Golf Links

Paterson, N. J., Nov. 3.—Fred Hindle made a new record for the thirteenth hole on the North Jersey Country Club links in the second round of match play for the Ray Doherty Cup when he sent the ball into the cup in a drive from fee, yet he was nosed out by Dave McGregor, 4 up and 3 to play, George Barber vanquished A. H. Smith, 4 and 3, and C. P. Cole defeated W. P. Blauvelt, 3 and 2.

on the orders as model that any sever not in the ring.

The Tiger defense was not what it was against Colgate and not what it will be against Harvard and Yale.

There was little individual brilliancy displayed by members of the Princeton team.

The one big, bright spot in Princeton's play was the punting of Scheerer, a substitute who relieved De Stefano.
Scheerer is a remarkable punter, and it was due largely to his kicking that the score was not greater than 25.
On one occasion he drove the heavy water-logged oval seventy five yards down the field across the goal line for a touchback. All of his punts were long, but were not as well placed as King's, who did the kicking for West Virginia.

Clever Kicking

Chicago. Nov. 3.—As a result of the startling upsets Saturday in the race for the Western Conference football champion-shipsashino State is the only undefeated eleven remaining in the speciacular struggle. But if the upsets should continue and Purdue defeats Obio State next Saturday, the Buckeyes will be in a compilicated the for the "Big Ten" honors, but the strong Obio cloven appears to have the championship already bassed. In the second period King had one chance to use his head in kicking and he took advantage of it. The hall was on chance to use his bead in kicking and be took advantage of it. The ball was on Princeton's 40-yard line, it was the fourth down with 8 yards to go, and it was up to West Virginia to punt. King could easily have booted it over the goal for a touchback. This would have given Princeton the ball on the 20-yard line.

But did King kick it over the line? We'll say he didn't. He took deliberate aim and kicked straight out of We'll say he didn't. He took deliber ate nim and kicked straight out of hounds; the ball rolling over at the 5-yard line. This play did not affect the result, but it gained 15 yards for West Virginia, and is just one example of the heady style of play that has been sinstilled into the West Virginia eleven by Coach MeIntyre.

Although the average person could see little except Captain Rodgers and King, there were nine other players always in the game for West Virginia. There is no doubt that Rodgers is one of the greatest fullbacks that ever wore the cleated boot. King, too, is a great halfback, but neither of these men would have been able to show up to such advantage if they had not had the assisting teamwork that was given them by their running mates.

When Rodgers ran with the ball he was given splendid interference. The hackfield blocked and clipped would be tacklers in a manner that reminded one of the haleyon days of Penn when Bill Hollenbach and Owsley Manier were wont to clip 'en down on the offense. Then, too, on the forward pass plays, the West Virginians gave King every opportunity to receive the ball by fine blocking of the secondary defense.

There was great interest in the playing of Tilden and Richards. The young New York phenom defeated Til den in two sets. Toward the end of the playing of the two stars the Phila-delphinn was seen to wraken a triffe in his usually fast pace. Time after time after the initial game Richards outguessed his more experienced op-ponent by drawing Tilden into the net, while the youthful New Yorker crossed shots to the far end of the court,

In the second set Tilden started off by winning the first game, and then lost the next four to Richards, who was playing cool-headedly and on the alert every minute of the time, and some of his returns of Tilden's drives, which seemed good, were remarkable. Tilden rallied in the sixth game of the set and won it, making the score i to 2 in Richards's favor, but Richards played strong in the next two games, winning the seventh castly and the last winning the seventh easily and the last after Tilden had played him to deuce.
