TEMPLE WINDOW GIVE ROOSEVELT

Memorial in Keneseth Israel, Portraying Life of Elijah, Dedicated With Ceremony

COLONEL CALLED PROPHET

Temple Keneseth Israel, Broad street above Columbia avenue, is attracting interest today because of the new Theodore Roosevelt memorial window which was dedicated yesterday with an impressive ceremony.

The widow, a superb production of English antique glass, reminiscent of the finest windows in thirteenth century English and French cathedrals, portrays outstanding events in the life of Elijah, the hero-prophet of Israel, as it was considered that the fearlessness and courage to assault evil in high places of the prophet of old stamped him as the prototype of Roosevelt.

"Had Elijah been born in our day he would have been a Roosevelt; had Roosevelt been born in Allah's day he would have been an Elijah," said Rabbi Joseph Krauskopf in his address of consecration told the large congregation.

"Immortal," says Straus. In similar vein, Oscar S. Straus, of New York, who was a member of Roosevelt's cabinet, told the audience that the light that will shine through this window into our hearts, it will symbolize his energy, his zeal, his passionate love of justice, his defiance of evil and his trust in God.

Whereupon a large American banner which concealed the memorial window in the north wall of the synagogue was drawn away, and a single sound of "taps" in the silent auditorium.

ANNUAL RED CROSS ROLLCALL BEGINS

Thousands of Workers Canvass City for Funds for Relief Society

HOME SERVICE FEATURES

Red Cross rollcall is on and thousands of workers are today starting the enrollment of members for the South-eastern Chapter. The city is brightened by Red Cross uniforms, placards, posters and banners telling that "service in peace and war of, by, and for the American people is the purpose of the American Red Cross."

"The home service section," said Mrs. Milton Stein, one of the leaders, "is not a charitable organization. It is a branch of the government itself. In carrying out its wartime obligations and its program of being an older brother to all service men, it has no other means of support than that of the government."

KING OF BELGIANS LAUDS HOG ISLAND

Sends Message of Praise to Yard President as He Leaves for Home

MR. BRUSH REPLIES

Matthew C. Brush, president of the American International Shipbuilding Corporation, has received a letter from Albert, king of the Belgians, expressing the royal admiration of the splendid work done at Hog Island, which he was able to observe at first-hand during his recent visit to Philadelphia.

While at the Hog Island shipyard, where he christened the army transport Centigee, the king was amazed with activities of the world's largest shipbuilding plant and commented especially upon the excellent repair corps of the employees of the shipbuilding company. When his tour carried him to Washington after his royal reception in Philadelphia, the king did not forget his visit to the shipyard and when the transport George Washington was about to sail from Portsmouth, Va., he instructed his secretary, M. L. Gerard, to forward the following message to Mr. Brush:

"Before leaving the United States the king of the Belgians directed me to express once more on his behalf to you, your officials and workers his admiration for the splendid work done at the Hog Island shipyard."
