Mrs. Stevenson Resigns After Twenty-five Years' Presidency of Acorn Club—Mrs. Arthur H. Lea New President

AFTER twenty-five years of faithful service as president of the Acorn Club Mrs. Cora Stevenson resigned today, the day of her silver jubilee in club life.

And this time she is leaving the club with a full and active membership of that club are more than sorry to lose this efficient woman as their head.

It is not that she could not be said of the way in which Mrs. Stevenson has conducted affairs in this large and important woman's club. She was made president in 1894 on the death of Mrs. J. Dennis Lippitt, who was the third president, and has faithfully performed the duties of that office and guided the little ship through many a storm until she is a leading organization in the city.

You know the Acorn Club was started in 1889 in a little room on Pine street near Sixteenth by ten young women, among them Miss Jeanie Clark, who afterward married Mr. William Gray and who died some years ago; Miss Katharine Shipton, later Mrs. E. J. Packard, and Miss Adeline Fisher, Emily Lowber, Florence Sibley, Emily Biddle, Alice Lippitt, who was Mrs. Dundas Lippitt, Julia Biddle, who was Mrs. Thomas Biddle, and Bertha Anderson Clark.

The club grew to a membership of forty and had in its ranks then only one married woman, Mrs. Thomas A. Biddle. Mrs. Dundas Lippitt, Mrs. Edgar Thomson and Mrs. Stevenson.

For the first party they gave they bought lamps which smoked, have been sold, and they also bought the cups and saucers, but they invited their guests to bring their own spoons. So you know it was some party. And at that time the club was named "The Acorn," as some of the far-seeing even then perceived the "great oak" in the distance, into which the club developed.

Mrs. Thomson was the first president, and later Mrs. Wayne MacVeagh was elected, but she remained in office only a few months. During that time the club moved from the Pine street room to the house 1302 Walnut street, where it remained for some time. There they remained a year; and then across the street they went to 1424 Walnut, but that time they required more than a year to get ready to move their Ladies and Penates. For that's all they needed and had for the first moving.

When Mrs. MacVeagh resigned Mrs. Dundas Lippitt was named president and she remained so until her death in 1894. At that time Mrs. Isaac Wister was vice president and she was not able to take over the responsibility of president and Mrs. Stevenson was elected.

Some of the older members who were among the first members of the club of the day when Mrs. Stevenson and Mrs. Wister went to see the landlord of 1424 Walnut street to ask for repairs to the clubhouse. They demanded were refused, and when they left Mrs. Stevenson came so wrathful that she made up her mind the Acorn Club should not have such humiliations to undergo again. So she had three or four meetings with them, these women undertook to buy the present property at 1618 Walnut street and to fashion the clubhouse themselves, and she was elected president.

Later they bought the adjoining house and have the Acorn Club as it stands today—a real, honest-to-goodness clubhouse for women.

There is a club for current events or for special study of any kind, but a real woman's club, where one may stay overnight if necessary to be in town; where one may sleep or dine or breakfast at will. Where one may rest or write or read, or even, as when the "flu" was so bad last year, drop in for a few minutes and take a bath before going out to town.

It is a wonderful club and much of its success is due to Mrs. Stevenson and to the able vice president, Mrs. Alexander J. Cassatt. It became president on the death of Mrs. Wister in 1897, and who leaves office today, together with Mrs. Stevenson and Mrs. Wister, and who has been president ever since the death of her cousin, Mrs. Willie Grant.

Mrs. Stevenson gave a lunch today at the club to the incoming and outgoing officers, the incoming officers, the governors and the nominating committee.

She was most charming in her farewell speech and summary of the club's history during her presidency. And she said she was more than glad to hand over her responsibilities to such an efficient person as Mrs. Arthur H. Lea, who succeeds her.

The club is in a splendid condition and nearly the entire debt paid. And think, in the years they have been there the property has risen in value from $80,000, which they paid for it, to $150,000, which is its assessment today.

Mrs. Jack Geary will remain as secretary of the club, but three positions left vacant by the retiring president, vice president and treasurer will be filled by Mrs. Lea, Mrs. Richard McCall Elliott and Mrs. Herbert Clark.

WHERE on earth do you suppose the idea arose and gained circulation that Mr. and Mrs. Henry Reid would introduce their daughter at a tea yesterday afternoon at the Bellevue? I heard it myself and several people saw it in print. Yet I thought it was odd because I remembered they had given a similar affair for Mrs. Reid in the spring. Well, any way, it was a wrong idea, and there was no tea as I found out by asking.

There is to be a dance on the 23rd of the month, but no second tea. Why should there be? The Reids live on Rex avenue in Chestnut Hill, in a most attractive house. One of those up-to-date low-ceiled, cream-colored and hardwood floored houses which are such open pictures of good taste and comfort. Open fireplaces you know, and just like a new place. They have a long porch, too, which is very attractive.

and Mrs. Joseph E. Widener, of Lynwood Hall, Elkins Park, will be the guest of honor at a dinner-dance on Thursday, December 18, to be given by her parents. Miss Widener will be one of this season's debutantes, and will be introduced at a tea in December.

Mrs. George Calvert Carter, of The Rectory, Bryn Mawr, has issued invitations for a dinner to be given in honor of her daughter, Miss Virginia Benson Carter, on Monday, December 22, at the Bellevue-Stratford, before the Saturday evening Christmas dance.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Benedict, of the Corners, Devon, will entertain at dinner on Monday, December 29, in honor of their daughter, Miss Anne D. Benedict, before the Saturday evening dancing class.

Mr. and Mrs. Stacy B. Lloyd, of Ardmore, will give a theatre party on Saturday evening, November 8, later taking the guests to the welfare dance at the Bellevue-Stratford.

Mrs. Robert C. Daniel, of Haverford, will give a tea on Saturday, November 15, in honor of Mrs. Herbert Coffey, whose wedding took place in October. Mrs. Coffey will be remembered as Miss Eleanor Hampton Verner, of Wayne. Mr. and Mrs. Casey, who spent their honeymoon at Lake Florida, will return today to their home in Wynnewood.

Dr. and Mrs. Strickler Coles closed Greenwood, their home in Bryn Mawr, on Wednesday and moved to their town home, 2103 Walnut street.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Hartman Kuhn will close Laurier, their place in Bryn Mawr next week and go to French Lick Springs for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Diston, of Rosemont, are spending a few days in Baltimore.

Mr. and Mrs. Eli K. Price, Miss Rachel Price, Miss Evelyn Price, Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Price, Jr., have closed their home on Berks street, Chestnut Hill, and opened their city house, 1709 Walnut street, for the winter. Mrs. Price will be introduced at a tea on November 23.

Mrs. William Logan Fox, of 300 Highland avenue, Chestnut Hill, and Mr. John W. Hilliard will spend the winter at the Morris apartments, 311 North 22d street, and expect to move in about November 15.

Dr. and Mrs. C. Dudley Saul, who have been absent from Chestnut Hill for more than a year, have returned with their family and are at present at the fine Germantown apartment. Doctor Saul spent nearly a year in France as captain in the medical corps of the army, and since his return spent several months in the mountains of Switzerland, where he was prepared for occupancy.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ridgway Deacon, Miss Dorothy De Haven Deacon and Master J. Ridgway Deacon, Jr., are at the Rittenhouse Hotel for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Maurice Steppacher, who recently returned from their honeymoon trip, will remain with Mrs. Steppacher's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Louchheim, Colony House, Melrose, Pa., until the completion of their new house in that vicinity. Mrs. Steppacher was Miss Cora Fleisher Louchheim before her marriage in September.

ALONG THE MAIN LINE
Mr. and Mrs. Cuyler Campbell Supple, of 201, are being congratulated upon the birth of their son, Brooke Elliott Supple, on October 26. Mrs. Supple was Miss Maud Morrison Wiggins, daughter of Mrs. Howard S. Anders, of City Line and Belmont avenue.

Mr. Alfred Duncan, of Overbrook, has gone to Lancaster to attend the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Lukes and Mr. James Bonner.

GERMANTOWN
Mr. James Warwick Price will give the first of a series of lectures on Current Events at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, in the lecture room of the First Presbyterian Church, West Chestnut avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Lenox Turner have returned from their wedding trip and are at home at 220 West Duval street. Mrs. Turner will be remembered as Miss Lulu Thurman.

Mr. and Mrs. James Jensen have returned from their wedding trip and are at home at 619 East Chestnut street. Mrs. Jensen will be remembered as Miss Caroline Cecelia Hoffman, of 695 Locust avenue.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lukes, Bride of Mr. James M. Bonner

MISS JAMES M. BONNER
Mrs. Bonner was Miss Elizabeth Catherine Lukes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lukes, of Lancaster and this city. Her marriage to Mr. Bonner took place today at 11 o'clock in St. Mary's Church, Lancaster

A beautiful wedding took place this morning in St. Mary's Church, Lancaster, at 11 o'clock when Miss Elizabeth Catherine Lukes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lukes, of Lancaster, formerly of this city, became the bride of Mr. James M. Bonner, son of Mr. A. J. Bonner, of this city.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Richard Hannagan, of North Wales, a cousin of the bridegroom, and was followed by a solemn high musical mass which was celebrated by Father Hannagan, assisted by the Rev. T. J. Crotty, of Lancaster, the Rev. William J. McAllen, of Ridley Park and the Rev. B. Brogan, of Philadelphia, S. J.

The sanctuary of the church was banked with white chrysanthemums and autumn leaves and the pews at the head of the church were arranged with tall posts of chrysanthemums.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and was attended by her sister, Miss Margaret Lukes, as maid of honor. She wore a gown of bridal satin made with a distended Spanish over-drapery of silk lace and embroidered in pearls. Her court train, which was attached to the gown from the shoulder, was embroidered with pearls. Heavy bands of the pearls were used at the end.

Her veil was of tulle, simply arranged under a crown of duchess lace and pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and gardenias.

The maid of honor's gown was of pale yellow satin, with a high collar and long sleeves. The bridesmaids wore light blue gowns with silver lace. The bridesmaids were Miss Alfreda Duncan, Miss Dorothea Miller, Miss Ethel Bonser and Mrs. Frank Atwood Starr of this city. They wore frocks of orchid-colored tulle, with insets of gold lace. The bridesmaids were Miss Alfreda Duncan, Miss Dorothea Miller, Miss Ethel Bonser and Mrs. Frank Atwood Starr of this city.
