LADY NANCY FULL OF "ASTORISMS"

Yankee Wife of British Peer Puts Pep in Campaign for Commons

CALLS OFF MEETING IN RAIN

Plymouth, Nov. 6.—Pacters on all the billioards and almost every attier Rvallable state announce that "Lady Astor is the only Lloyd George candidate" for the Plymouth seat in the House of Commons, or appeal to voters to "make history and elect the first woman member of Parliament." In the clubs, hotels and restaurants, tenrooms and public houses the election is the dominating topic of conversation.

The few who were uninformed had their curiosity aroused when the cam-paign was inaugurated by the spectacle of this brilliant woman, dressed all in black, driving through the streets be-bind a dashing team of sorrels, with sllk-hatted coachman, his whip and the bridles of the horses adorned with red-white-and-blue ribbons—the coalition reloves "Astorisms" is a familiar term in Plymouth since "Lady Nancy" took the stump, meaning the cryptic, punchy epigrams with which the lady enlivens her speeches, coining them readily to meet every question propounded by the becklers and express her views on the issues of the campaign. Yesterday she invented several new ones, among them:

"There is a difference between the working classes and the shirking class-

Lady Astor, in the course of her morning's drive about the constituency, stopped at Unionist headquarters. Descending from her carriage, she came face to face with Isaac Foot, her Liberal opponent, who happened to be passing. She smiled and said: "Good morning, Mr. Foot."

The Liberal candidate replied with equal cordinity and they talked together for fully a minute, Lady Astor chiding him good-naturedly: "You are far too progressive a man to be identified with the ancient mariner Asquith party. You are a good man, but you are going in the wrong direction."

She drove into the heart of a prolabor district of the city, where it was considered unwise for her husband, Lord Astor, to appear in the last campaign because of the rabid anti-Unionist sentiment. Her reception was in marked content, but was considered to the city of the city of the city of the city of the last campaign because of the rabid anti-Unionist sentiment.

because of the rabid anti-Unionist sentiment. Her reception was in marked contrast, her arrival being the signal for a gathering of the neighborhood women and children.

Asked whether sie would attend a previously arranged open meeting, in view of the fact it was raining, Lady Astor said: "No; that is where women have more sense than men. Men go to such meetings and shiver, got colds and go home to be nursed by their wives. We won't have the meeting."

In the course of four addresses made yesterday Lady Astor flatly favored state purchase of the liquer business and local option on the question of prohibition. She told one questioner that she favored the closing of public houses on Sunday.

she favored the closing of public houses on Sunday.

"Yes," she said, "I don't think the saleon is an edifying place in which to spend the Sabbath."

Her statement was loudly applauded. At one meeting Lady Astor found a Socialist delegation present and to it she quoted Scripture. She argued that Christiaulty was the only remedy for the world's ills.

"I don't mind telling you that I am a Socialist at heart," she said. "It is the most beautiful creed on earth, but there has been only one true Sorialist, and He said, 'Love they neigh

The Bible Her Answer

Asked regarding her oninion relative to charity. Lady Astor said she always had thought charity a bad thing for the receiver and the giver. The giver, she declared, got a sort of unctuious sense of piety, but it was fundamentally bad. She suggested that her questioner could find out all about charity in the thirteenth chapter of Corinthians.

In a lighter vein the candidate de-thirteenth chapter of Corinthians.

In a lighter vein the candidate declared that she did not care a "tuppence" for a political career, but that she would do what was best for all classes. She said she had seen so much suffering in the last five years that she could have no idea of ever leading what was called an idle life, there was so much to be done. Another point made by the speaker in one of her addresses was:

"I can't imagine a worse thing than

"I can't imagine a worse thing than a House of Commons composed entirely of Mrs. Astors, but one of them will do it a lot of good."

Praise by Lord Cecil

Lord Robert Cecil, in a letter to ady Astor, says: "At the present Lady Astor, says: "At the present time, with the party system more or less in abeyance, the personality of the candidates becomes of first importance. In the perennial controversy with greed and self, any one who knows you will be confident you will be found on the side with the angels."

be confident you will be found on the side with the angels."

Apart from personal considerations. Lord Robert says, he should vote for Lady Astor, adding: "If the House of Commons is to be truly representative of its constituents, it is essential it should contain some exponent of woman's point of view."

The campaign committee of the Labor party is considering the advisability of instituting a suit for slander against Lord Astor in connection with his characterization of W. T. Gar, the Labor candidate opposing Lady Astor, as a "not too successful manager of a co-operative boot manufactory."

The appellation has aroused the indignation of the supporters of the Labor candidate.

in a speech at a banquet here last evening.

"I know the hour of alliances has sounded for Spain," the former premier said, "but it is an hour for alliances contracted by the force of public opinion in common accord with the government and the king. Treaties of alliance with France, Great Britain and the United States would be the surest guarantees we could have to keep out of war. The moment therefore has come to establish our bonds not only with France and England, but with the United States and Portugal."
