E LLEN GLASGOW, among the established novelists of our country, easily stands in the front rank, says The North American Review. "None of the modern inducements to gain popularity by lowering her own fine standards of what the novel is and should be, have corrupted her."

Her first novel in more than three years, this is Miss Glasgow's comment on the changed currents of American life, With an artist's scruting, she has probed its depths, and has seen America knitting together—into a unity of ideals.

A DAMSEL IN DISTRESS

By Pelham Grenville Wodehouse

Fleeing from an irate and disapproving brother, she stepped into a taxi, and behold! there was a young man ready to do battle for her, with no questions asked.

And when the Cab whirled them away, leaving Percy in the middle of Piccadilly with a broken silk hat, there began one of the most amusing adventures that ever outraged English high society—a rollicking tale filled with surprising incidents.

PELHAM GRENVILLE WODEHOUSE, widely known as the author of "Uneasy Money" and "Something New," has here compounded the perfect prescription for romantic comedy.

Rhymes for Young Folks

Fortunately for the writers of verse

Fortunately for the writers of verse for children the young are not critical. If the rhymes lingle and tell a story they are usually satisfied. But the children are tolerant of literary excellence. Hence they like Stevenson.

They will also like Mary Carolyn Davis, who has written a lot of rhymes which have the Stevensonian quality added to a quality of their own. Miss Davis gets the child's point of view and in two or four lines she exhibits it so clearly as to surprise and charm the adult. Her book is about "A Little Frechled Person," and purports to be a record of impressions and reflections. Here is what appears under the title "Perhaps:" You never know, in this great world what wonders there may be Perhaps there's burled treasure out neath the cherry tree!

familiar with the point of view in this bit:

Of course I believe in fairles!
Of course I linow they're true!
Just think, if you were a fairy.
And no one believed in you!
These samples give a taste of the quality of the book.
Eleanor Ellis Perkins in "News from Notowa." has written verse of a very different kind which will please the young almost as much as Miss Davis's beautiful rhymes. It is about what Jiffy Wells saw and heard in Notown. He tells how the Notown beau tried to stay to dinner, and what happened when the Biggs foolishly attempt to change the mind of a setting hen, and the remarks of an organ grinder, how a well-known desperado is deprived of anticipated punishment and many other interesting and exciting things.
