WAR
A FEW middle western towns have begun to feel the first pinch of the coal strike. Their lights are going out.

STUDENTS AND POLICE
PEOPLE usually sympathize with Penn's undergraduates on the days of their jubilation.

THREE DAYS MORE
THREE days more must tell the story of whether Philadelphia is to preserve or repudiate its great orchestra.

MR. VARE ON REFORMERS
SENATOR VARE'S address at the dinner tendered Mayor-elect Moore in Washington was a political document of considerable interest.

Why Public Sentiment Gags
The conclusion is forced on outsiders who have studied the situation that the radical miners' leaders are forcing the strike neither for more money nor better working conditions.

Spin Along or Bump Along
Five Pennsylvania counties have voted in favor of bond issues for good roads.

Getting It Over
The President's willingness to accept mild reservations provided they do not nullify the league-of-nations covenant is not inconsistent with his course in the past.

Treaty as War Breeder
If, as Bethmann-Hollweg suggests, the peace treaty is a war breeder, it must be because it bears too lightly on the Germans.

A Happy Family Mayor has a problem to solve and needs a confident he will presumably take Council.

sanity in labor's ranks
MUST PURGE RADICALISM
All Attempts to Put Over Injustice by Mass Action Are Doomed to Failure

Germany tried it with the united Germanic nations behind her. But the rest of the civilized world rose in protest, and through blood and bitter travail of soul it fought the spirit of evil until it was subdued.

Aftermath in New Jersey
DEMOCRATS in New Jersey had a considerable element on the Republican side which passionately reclaims itself "wet" can do better than lead the policy of the state to believe that all the days of trouble passed with the election to the governorship of a man opposed to prohibition.

Danger Signals Face Railroads
Transportation Systems, When Operating Under Hybrid Management, Will Have Many Critics, Especially Advocates of Plumb Nationalization Plan

THE country is going to taste soon the sweets of privately operated railroads. How soon nobody knows, for it is typical of the inopportune with which this situation is being approached that the President is threatening to return the roads to their owners and former operators at the end of the year, though there shall be no suitable legislation providing for their return.

Back to Old System
What Congress, in its wisdom, is likely to provide is a return to government regulation of railroads by the Interstate Commerce Commission, a system which brought the railroads to the verge of bankruptcy, which stopped railroad development, which resulted in a grave transportation crisis at the outbreak of the war and forced the government operation of the roads.

Change Comes at Critical Time
The railroads will go back to private operation at a grave moment. The best informed persons look for a coal shortage this winter.

Boosting Philadelphia
Philadelphia is becoming a popular slogan. We have commercial bodies, rotary clubs and dining clubs galore, but the end is not yet.

Medical Fraternity
If, as Bethmann-Hollweg suggests, the peace treaty is a war breeder, it must be because it bears too lightly on the Germans.

Happy Family
When the incoming Mayor has a problem to solve and needs a confident he will presumably take Council.

MAYOR-ELECT MOORE'S LETTER
Philadelphia Commercial Museum is One of the Best-Equipped Institutions of Its Kind in the World.

THE Philadelphia Commercial Museum is the most fully equipped institution in the United States for advice and assistance in the extension of foreign trade and probably one of the best equipped anywhere in the world.

THE city is losing many of its capable employes because with the high cost of living and a fixed compensation at pre-war rates they can do better at private employment.

WILLIAM R. TUCKER, secretary of the Philadelphia Board of Trade, believes in keeping everlastingly at it on port and municipal questions.

CONGRESSMAN BUTLER, the Delaware representative, who used to be regarded as a Quaker, coming from an agricultural section, is now shown as much involved in big industrial and commercial projects as any other man in Congress.

E. J. STACKPOLE, president of the Philadelphia Telegraph, watched the Philadelphia election with a great deal of interest.

THEODORE B. PALMER, of the Philadelphia Ship Repair Co., is one of the best transporters this far developed among the shipping men.
