KRESS, AT SCHOOL, SILENT

Mrs. Charles G. Kress, the two-day bride of a medical student at the Uni-versity of Pennsylvania, who has en-tered suit here to have the marriage annulled, intends to sue her husband for tween her daughter and the bride's father.

"In January of 1917, when my daughter met young Kress, he was in a camp at Allentown. His father came down to see him, and Easter met him. He was very pleasant to her at the time, but the next day he refused to speak to her.

"We think his father saw an actor we know was jealous of young Kress, who filled him with a lot of lies about Easter. But we cannot get in touch to explain, and our attorney has also failed in that respect."

Mrs. Higby, in telling of her family, declared the bride is the granddaughter to Gaptain J. V. Higby, a New Orleans steamboat owner, who, she added, left an estate valued at $2,000,000. Her daughter, she said, is one of the heirs district.

While on her way from church yesterday Emma Letts, seven years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Letts, of Victoria Plush Mills, near Swarthmore, was struck and knocked down by an automobile awned and driven by the Rev. Dr. John C. Hanna, manager of the Retired Ministers Campaign, of 1705 Arch street, Philadelphia. The child's injuries are not believed to be serious.

While on the way to church yesterday in an automobile belonging to their employer, James J. Dolan, of Devon, two women domestics were injured when the machine rebounded after groom.

"I'll show them," Mrs. Higby declared today at the Continental Hotely where she is staying with her daughter.

"The father of my daughter's husband is of German descent and has the idea he is high and mighty. I'll teach him there is one thing his money can't buy. I'm here to fight him, and developments can be expected that will be surprising."
