

LADY ASTOR NEAR END OF CAMPAIGN

Voters of Plymouth Will Ballot
on Her Candidacy Next Saturday

HER WIT ENLIVEN'S BATTLE

Plymouth, Nov. 10.—While supporters of the two male candidates for the seat concede the merits of Lady Astor's arguments, they insist that a victory by her, should that be the outcome of the campaign, will not be "a walkover." It is pointed out that Labor in recent years has been making rapid strides in this normally Unionist stronghold and threatens to overcome the majority the Liberals thus far have held over the Labor poll. The uncertainty of the woman vote and the fact that prohibition has been projected into the fight lend additional complications to the situation, which, these observers contend, will result favorably to Labor and the "Asquithian" Liberal candidate.

But against this may be set the claims of Lady Astor, who characterizes herself as not a "sex" candidate and addresses her appeals to women because the "moral influence" of women is needed in England today in adjusting the nation's pressing economic and social problems.

Today the three candidates and their supporters will enter the last half of the strenuous race they have been going until next Saturday, which is polling day.

Her candidacy is attracting attention from Lansdowne to Inverness, both for the novelty of an American woman seeking to enter the House of Commons and for his pliancy, which, and pleasing personality under severe heckling at meetings.

In a packed schoolhouse a woman cried out: "I want to ask Lady Astor why she is all packed into a room like this." Quick as a flash came the retort: "Because men arranged it." To another heckler she said: "I'd rather be an M. P. for Plymouth than the first duchess of Europe." After a slight error of figures she had made she quickly rectified the same and said: "It was I've who admitted she was wrong. It was not Adam. If we women make a mistake we will say so. Upon prohibition she remarked: "I don't think the brewers and publicans are sinners. I will be perfectly square to the liquor trade."

Her views upon the punishment of the Kaiser "the worst that one can do to him is to leave him alone. If I were the Kaiser and felt that I had been sent from God to rule the world and found myself shut up in a Dutch villa, that would be punishment enough for me."

Again she said: "One of my enemies said I have a pretty face. I thought I had lost that fifteen years ago. It has buckled me up more than anything I have heard for a long time."

HOLDS SHIPS FOR VOTES

Seamen's Union Candidate Details

Crews in Italy Until Election
Rome, Nov. 10.—Captain Giulietti, secretary of the Seamen's Federation, who is candidate for office in the general elections, has ordered steamships of several lines not to leave until after the elections, in order to permit the crews to vote. The elections will take place November 16.

The order has caused a partial paralysis of commerce, which is especially serious in view of the fact that Italy needs to continue all possible activities in order to solve the many difficult economic problems resulting from the war.

PERMIT GERMAN ELECTIONS

Result in Plebiscite Areas Not Binding Upon Allies
Paris, Nov. 10.—(By A. P.)—The Supreme Council has decided not to interfere with the German municipal elections now being held in areas where plebiscites are to be taken under the peace treaty. It has decided, however, that such elections will be in no way binding upon the Allies, which will disregard them when the final settlement of affairs in the districts in question is affected.
