

DOUBLE BURIAL FOR BOYS SWEEPED TO SEA

Schoolboy Chums of Two Victims Await Arrival of Bodies Here

START VIGIL AT HOME

The two boys who lost their lives when swept to sea in a gunning skill near Atlantic City last Saturday may be buried together in this city.

Both funerals will be held Thursday. One boy, Raymond Isard, five years old, lived at 241 West Hansberry street, Germantown. The other boy, John Scott Ledbetter, sixteen years old, lived in Chicago. His grandparents live at 128 South Fifth street, and it was there today that the two chums probably will be buried together.

The bodies are expected to reach Philadelphia today. Mr. Isard is in Atlantic City caring for his son's body. Mrs. Ledbetter took charge of her son's body when it was brought back from Cape May, near which place the two bodies were recovered in an open boat.

Friends of the Isard boy are anxiously awaiting the arrival of their former chum's body. Several began a vigil near Raymond's house this morning which they say will not end until the body arrives home.

Neighbors and relatives are doing their best to console Mrs. Isard.

Fellow scholars at the Winchester Academy, Longport, where the boys were being educated, plan to send tokens of their love. A delegation from the school is expected to attend the funeral.

Tentative arrangements made for the burial of Isard, before the plan for a double funeral was advanced, fixed Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock as the time. The funeral is to be held from the Calvary Episcopal Church, Main street and Pulaski avenue, with the Rev. Franklin Moore officiating. Interment will be in Ivy Hill Cemetery.

BUCKS TRAFFIC, NOW HELD

Navy Sailor Accused of Stealing Automobile in West Chester

Failure to obey a traffic signal at Broad and Walnut streets last night caused the arrest of John Sims, a negro sailor, for stealing the automobile he was driving.

Sims, whose home is in Columbia, S. C., is stationed at the navy yard. Yesterday he had a furlough and went to West Chester. There, police say, when he got three blocks from town he appropriated an automobile parked along a curb and started in it for this city.

Going south on Broad street, he failed to observe that the traffic semaphore was set against him, drove past it and was halted by Reserve Patrolman Stever. Stever's questioning brought out the fact, according to the police, that the car was a stolen one, and Sims was arrested.

He will have a hearing today before Magistrate Pennock in the Central Station. Police are looking for the owner of the car.

INTENSIVE STUDY OF DRAMA PLANNED AT PENNSYLVANIA

Zelosophic Literary Society Organizes Graduate Committee and Will Stage $1000 Campaign to Further Project. Select Nine Plays

With the purpose of placing the study of drama on the same basis as science and other studies, a graduate committee, headed by Dr. Arthur Robson Quinn, one of the foremost authorities on drama in this country, has been organized by the Zelosophic Literary Society of the University of Pennsylvania. At a meeting held at the home of Doctor Quinn, at Cynwyd, Pa., a far-reaching program was outlined, including a $1000 campaign and the construction of a miniature stage, fully equipped. A series of nine one-act plays were selected and competition for places on the casts has been thrown open to the University. The plays will be presented at the initial performance before a select audience, including Professor Edgar Fahn Smith, the trustees of the University, authorities on the drama, prominent and influential Philadelphians.

The final effort will come in the spring, when a production will be presented at a prominent downtown theatre by the best talent of the year. Worthy dramas will be revived as well as those of contemporary playwrights, and writing of dramatic and dramatic courses will be encouraged. The Zelosophic Society will become a laboratory for trying new experiments in dramatic and stage technique.

Dean Quinn will be the critic of the graduate committee. He is an authority on American dramatics, is the author of the first collection of American plays ever published, is a prominent member of the Drama League and a member of the playwriting committee of the Drama League.

The coach will be Mrs. Sarah F. T. Price, who studied with Steel MacKaye, father of Percy MacKaye, a well-known dramatist. William M. Price, her husband, starred with Fanny Ward some years ago.

Lieutenant W. Ross Stevens, 531 North Sixty-third street, president of the combined Philomathean and Zelosophic Society committee which produced the "Masque of the American Drama" in 1917, is chairman of the graduate committee. Lieutenant R. A. Robinson, United States field artillery, is also a member of the committee. He is a member of Plays and Players.

Dr. Aubrey Hamilton, former student at Oxford University, England, where he was prominent in dramatics, will be the graduate property manager. The stage to be erected in the Zelosophic rooms in College Hall is being designed by two students of the architectural school, Joseph Morgenthaler, of Cincinnati, and A. Robertson, of Hamilton, Canada.
