

TO GREET HEROES OF CHESTNUT HILL

Several Hundred Service Men Will Be Honored Saturday at Banquet

CROSS WILL BE UNVEILED

Several hundred Chestnut Hill boys, who served in the various branches of the service during the war, will be formally welcomed home next Saturday. Elaborate preparations are being made by the committee in charge to make the celebration the greatest event in the suburb's history.

The former service men will assemble at Germantown avenue and Bellevue pike and will march down the avenue to the Chesheia valley drive, where they will attend the ceremony incident to the unveiling of a Celtic Cross, erected as a memorial to the Chestnut Hill boys who gave their lives for their country.

Following the unveiling exercises the men will march to Chestnut Hill Academy, where they will be the guests of honor at a banquet and entertainment to be held in the gymnasium.

The committee arranging the celebration is as follows: Bingle Northwick, chairman; Stephen Ager, B. P. Brachman, Francis H. Brown, J. C. Hunsberr, P. J. Conway, Lieutenant Hamilton Diston, Franklin S. Edmonds, James J. Fisher, Harry E. Friebley, P. F. Glynn, Arthur J. Godwin, Major W. G. Gribbel, J. H. Humphreys, John S. Jenks, Jr., Joseph M. Jennings, Daniel Lammot, Frederic Landstreet, Augustino Lorenzon, Major John F. McCloskey, James McCrea, Andrew O'Neill, Andrew T. Romon, Frederick E. Roth, Arch K. Schock, Edwin J. Schmitt, Joseph Sika, Theodore D. Star, John E. Walt, J. Harold Webster, Joseph B. White and C. C. Zantinger.

PUSH SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK

Philadelphia Association Urged to Help in Fight on Bolshevism

The convention of the Philadelphia Sunday School Association will be continued this evening in the Bethlehem Presbyterian Church, Broad and Diamond streets.

The convention opened last night with a banquet in the Roosevelt, at which William S. Furst presided.

Marion Lawrence, general secretary of the International Sunday School Association, said the menace of bolshevism in this country could best be fought through the Sunday school.

Henry E. Paisley, president of the Sunday School Association, called for union of Christian forces to meet present dangers.

YE HUSBANDS BE HOPEFUL; JUST SEE WHAT BRITAIN DID

Visits of Mothers-in-Law Limited to Four Weeks in Year, to Save Food—Also Trouble in Family

Andy Gamon and the League of Oppressed Husbands rejoice!

The movement, which will eventually lead to the total extermination of troublesome mothers-in-law has already begun—in far-away England. 'tis true, alas, but at least it has begun. By order of the ministry of food in London householders are barred from entertaining their mothers-in-law or any other guests for a longer period than four weeks by the calendar and the clock.

The stay that dragged for months and months and sent marital squabbles shooting from bad to worse, in England at least, now suffer disastrous restrictions.

"Four weeks ain't no stay at all for mothers-in-laws," said one of America's tyrannized today. "They'll not have time to sort of warm up to making it gay for us martyrs. With no more than just four weeks in a year to do a good job, they'll just get so disgusted they won't even try to pester us lavish.

"At least there's the hope I see in that order of the ministry of food."

The order is part of the food conservation program in London that limits the stay of a private visitor in a house to one month.

"I like to have enough to eat," continued a hopeful son-in-law, "but I'd welcome more of a food scarcity than there is and, a higher cost of living, strange as it may seem, if only our government would be moved to feel the necessity of limiting the stay of mothers-in-law, the way the English Government has.

"I'm looking forward with a deal of pleasurable anticipation to a more extreme food shortage. If I knew there was a chance of starving out the mother-in-law, I could live on salted doorknobs with joy."

The gentleman quoted, for some reason or other, refused to permit the use of his name.

RIDERS SIT ON FLOOR

Car Hits Ash Wagon, Unseating Passengers and Burying Motorman

Every passenger in a northbound Frankford avenue trolley car suddenly sat on the floor this morning when the car reached Allegheny avenue. At the same moment a half-ton of ashes deluged the front platform and half buried the motorman.

car struck a heavily laden ash wagon which was lumbering leisurely up the avenue.

It appears that the driver and his helper did not hear the motorman sound the bell. Whether the motorman decided to help the ash cart off the track or whether the tracks were too slippery to control the car—nobody knows.

Thomas Wilsoncroft, the driver, is thinking it over in the Northeastern Hospital, John McLaughlin, his helper, also is there with a few cuts and bruises.

Stage Director Found Dead

Fred L. Glenn, a producing mechanic and stage director for many theatrical productions during the last ten years and formerly an actor in burlesque and on the legitimate stage, was found dead in bed yesterday morning at a hotel at Broad and Race streets. His death was caused by heart disease. Mr. Glenn was forty-two years old and formerly lived in Pottsville, Pa. He is survived by his widow, his sister, Mrs. Guy Eckenrode, of Allentown, and a brother, Charles, in this city.
