At present there are two solicitors. One office, that of active solicitor, is held by Russell. The other, that of solicitor, is held by Owen B. At the same time he let it be known that he had talked over the cabinet situation very informally with Mayor-elect Moore and that plans were agreed upon for a conference on the subject in Philadelphia between Mr. Moore and a group of representative members of the committee of one hundred.

Leading Conferees

In this group will be the leaders who urged Mr. Moore to enter the mayoralty fight. Among them will be Mr. Walton, John C. Winston, Thomas Raeburn White and Franklin Spencer

Mr. Walton's most striking contribution to the discussion of cabinet possibilities was the Alba Johnson suggestion. Mr. Walton pointed out that while Mr. Johnson was not an engineer be was a man of brond vision and great constructive abilities and he could retain expert engineering advice whenever required. This statement from Mr. Walton was particularly interesting in required. This statement from Mr. Walton was particularly interesting in view of the fact that Mr. Moore recently held a talk with Mr. Johnson and of the further fact that Mr. Johnson in a speech at the University Club, clearly indicated that he would 'go the limit' in giving of his time and service to the public service.

Oppose Director Twining

Oppose Director Twining Mr. Walton is strongly opposed to the suggestion that Director Twining be retained. Mr. Walton also announced that he opposed all suggestions that men like Harry J. Trainer, of the Third ward, and James A. Carey, of the Fifth ward, leaders in the Republican Alliance, be appointed to posts of cabinet distinction. Mr. Walton feels certain that Mr. Moore will be guided more by public sentiment in this matter than by political considerations and expedients which may be advanced either by the Varse or by the Alliance.

Another point brought into relief by the interview with Mr. Walton was that he favors the reappointment of George S. Webster as director of wharves docks and ferries. Director Webster is here attending the convention. It has been charged that the reappointment of Director Webster would be a concession to the Vares, inasmuch as Mr. Webster now holds office under the Smith administration. Mr. Walton feels that if this appointment will please the Vares, well and good.
