Plenty of Ideas for Gifts to Be Found in the Wanamaker Pages

"That Is Bird Island Over There, and the Birds are protected by the U.S. Government," said the Florida gentleman as we passed in a little boat.

The person to whom he was speaking asks if the Government puts their food in their nests for them, and the reply is, "Oh, no, there is plenty of food provided for them, but they have to go after it and find it for themselves. Look there, see that flock of hundreds of wild ducks; they are on their way now to the feeding grounds for their breakfast, and you will see scores of them dashing down and snatching fish from the sea. Some birds have hollow bones and downy feathers and are able to float even in a stormy ocean and find food.'

Every living thing, man included, finds the earth and sea are each a granary and a storehouse, with abundance for every creature, but each living thing must go after the food and not wait for some other to put it in its nests.

Man was made to be active and earn his food by the sweat of his brow, for his self-respect and health as well, and birds can be trained and made wise enough to conduct a postal service or to be purveyors of food to a discouraged man as in the case of Flijah, and man is enjoined to not disturb their nests where their little children are and fed by parent birds.

It is a decree that there is plenty for all our needs, but we must use our own faculties to obtain supplies.

Fine Bolivia and Evora Coats That Don't Need Furs

For they are of such handsome materials, so warmly lined and interlined and have such comfortably large collars or scarfs of the material, that one could wear them on the coldest day in Winter without feeling the

There are four models of these coats altogether, two of them being entirely new, and they are priced from $100 to $135. Every bit of the value is in the beautiful materials, the silk lining and the fine tailoring. We find many women who prefer it this way.

The colors are soft new shades of brown, tan, taupe, dark blue, dragonfly blue and black.

Silk Petticoats-Never So Pretty

It doesn't suggest their prettiness in the least to say they are made of messaline, taffeta and jersey; that they have no end of a variety of flounces; and that they are in plain colors and changeable. But the fact remains that when a woman looks at them she feels that, somehow, petticoats never were so pretty, and that she never wanted so many. Prices are $6.75 to $20.

The Brown Beauty of the Russian or Hudson Bay Sables is shown in the lovely animal scarfs or the handsome stoles that are the fashion this Winter. The Fur Salon's collection of sables is an unusual one, for the skins are of beautiful color, and the pieces are a delight to the eye as well as the touch, so soft and fine are they.

Among the Finer Afternoon Dresses for Young Women are half a dozen or so that are so interesting we're sure you'll like to know about them.

One, at $65, is of a novelty plaid velvet, in deep, lustrous black; the skirt is new and so is the draped bodice, which ends in a large buckle arrangement at the back. There is a little collar of creamy lace at the round neck.

On another $65 dress, which is of heavy blue satin, the bodice is absolutely straight and absolutely plain, but the skirt, which is rather full, has many sparkling jet sequins for trimming. For $82 one may choose a sapphire-blue velvet dress that is quite lovely. It has a collar and very deep, narrow vest of net and lace, and there is just enough black silk braiding to give it dis-

Next comes a $92.50 dress of duvetyne, in a new dull blue shade that is enchanting. It has a round neck and a wide, flat belt, both of which have gold thread embroidery for embellishment. The sleeves are short, the skirt has a tunic, and there are little pleated frills on both.

Another duvetyne dress is $97.50, and this is of dark blue, with much silk embroidery on the skirt and just enough on the blouse for charm. There is a V neck, and the girdle is narrow.

All in 14 to 20 year sizes. (Second Floor, Chestaut)

Regarding L. R. Corsets

Here is a fact that every woman should tuck away somewhere in the back of her head—there are very few figures that cannot be reasoned with, provided the reasoner is armed with a really good corset.

The L. R. people make a great many really good corsets, and here are a very few of them:

A hip-confiner of pink satin, with short skirt and semi-clastic top, price $4. This, of course, is for slender

These Furniture Stocks Are a Source of Wonder to People Who Have Seen Other Stocks

NORMALLY, the assortments shown on these floors are not equaled by any two other large stocks combined.

Now, however, the preponderance is more marked. It is so marked that there is nothing large enough or varied enough anywhere to come within comparative distance of the collection of furniture that we are now showing.

We point this out for the guidance of customers, not for our own glory. Large as this stock is, we would be glad to have a still larger one, especially as the goods are of the kind that any reputable store is always glad to own.

Generally speaking, it is probably true that good furniture has never been so scarce as it is today. For that reason, if for no other, it is but right to let everybody know that however scarce it may be in stores generally there is plenty of it here.

Here on the floors are 150 different bedroom suits at $155 to $3000.

These are suits of four to eight pieces. Of each suit we have in stock one to ten. The woods are mahogany, birch, oak, maple, gray enamel, ivory enamel, to say nothing of the decorated suits.

We show 85 dining-room suits and back of them are one to eight of a kind. These are priced at $250 to $2380 for suits of four to ten pieces, in mahogany, walnut and oak; in Adam, Sheraton, Colonial, Louis XV, Louis XIV, William and Mary, Queen Anne and Chippendale.

We have 140 overstuffed davenports that we can match up into three-piece suits.

The prices will range from $115 for a davenport to $2000 for a suit. This is believed to be the best grade in the world in materials, making and design; a very large proportion of it having been turned out in our own factory under our own

In addition to these three important groups, we have over 500 wicker pieces at $9 for a chair to $630 for a six-piece suit.

And we have post beds in 50 different styles at $37 to $170.

Any store can print figures such as these, but there is only one store in Philadelphia that can back them up.

P. S.—From the recent selling of living-room pieces at a reduction of 40 per cent we still have a limited number of upholstered chairs and rockers in chrome, birch and umber oak in William and Mary and Windsor styles at $15, $15.50, $23.50, $24 and $29.

Also some settees and davenports in the same styles and finishes at $38, $48, $61 and $80. (Fifth and Sixth Floors)
