Malt Sirup Answers Question What to Do With Our

"In addition to being a sweet, malt sugar sirup has a delicious flavor, somewhat resembling that of honey, which adds much to its palatability and ralue as a sugar substitute.

Commercial Production Beginning

"While malt sugar has long been known to chemists, its production on a commercial scale is only beginning. Malt sugar sirup is made from the same grains as beer, and may be made from corn or potatoes or any plant containing starch. Barley, which was used until recently in the manufacture of beer, can be used now to produce malt gugar sirup.

"Breweries, with very little change, can be used, and are now being used, for its manufacture. I'p to a certain point the process for making malt sugar sirup is the same as the process for making beer.

making beer.

"Malt sugar sirup looks very much like maple sirup. It can be used for everything that cane sugar is used for. While its use on the table may not be quite as convenient as sugar, it is a most excellent substitute for table use. For cooking and baking purposes and for making candy it is not only equal to sugar in convenience and food value but is superior for some uses because it will not so readily crystallize.

Used in Manufacture of Candy
"Malt sugar sirup is now being soid in large quantities to commercial bakeries and candy and soft-drink manufacturers, who use it in place of sugar.
The wholesale price, as quoted in recent advertisements in trade papers and elsewhere, is from seven to nine cents per pound in barrel lots. Many retail grocers do not handle it yet because there has been little demand for it on the part of housewives.

"Grocers can now obtain it and no doubt will be giad to do so as the demand for it increases. Housewives can well conserve their dwindling supply of sugar by using it in cooking, baking and homemade canfections, and even on the table for sweetening coffee, outmeal and desserts. It can be used for every purpose for which sugar is used.
If the housewives want it, the grocers will get it." Used in Manufacture of Candy
