Yale Quarterback Due to Kempton Slated for Hit Snag in Running Back Punts in Princeton Game Saturday

ONE of the many interesting features that is sure to develop in the Princeton-Yale game at New Haven Saturday is the battle that will be waged between Quarterback Kempton, of the Detween Quarterback Kempton, of the Plue, and the Tigers' two rads. Al-though Roper has not definitely decided whether he will use Shad Davis or Bigler, it is certain that Williams will be on one wing. No matter whether Davis or Bigler is picked for the other. Kempton will find that he is up agains? his toughest proposition of the year in returning punts. Racing back with the kicks has been one of the big ground gaining plays of Racing back with the kicks has been one of the big ground-gaining plays of the Yale tonn in all her games this senson, and the Buildon is depending upon Kempton to continue his good work against Princeton. But if the Princeton suds play the same caliber of football Saturday that they played avainst Harvard, not even the superh efforts of Kempton will yield results. Incidently there is every reason to be-lieve that the Tiger onds will be in even better form in the Yale game than they were in the Harvard tilt. Yale, like Harvard, will have the advantage of weight in the game with Roper's men. Princeton will go into the New Harvan fax averaging 178

Roper's men. Princeton will go into the New Haven fray averaging 178, while Yale will be three pounds heavier to the man. That is a small advantage, but it helps some. Yale's team is much better balanced in avoirdupois than Har-vard was. The Blue's backs average 165 against 164 for Princeton All things being equal. Yale would have h little more driving power than Princeton in the attack, but all things, as usual are not equal. There isn't a man in the backfield at New Haven who has shown up as well as Matry Trimble has in all his games this year, and in softe a drive up as well as Maury Trimble has in all his games this year, and in spite of the fact that Kempton is fouted as a won-

Either these critics did not see the game or they do not know a good aerial of-fense when they see it. Trimble is a fine passer, and Strubing is a remarkable receiver. It is true that the majority of Princeton's forward passes are short. but instead of losing power by this, they gain. The Tigers passes increase in certainty in proper-tion to their shortness.
