somble and reasonably priced foods, we will plan to utilize a set of pig s feet in the Sunday menu.

Marketing today brings home to the thrifty woman that unless she is willing to put her shoulder closely to the wheel she will see the money iterally flow from her purse and leave her high and dre on the shores of want.

Butter and eggs are advancing in price, and the housewife complacently pass the price of these expensive foodsrather than try to replace them in the menu with other foods that are more within the reach of her purse.

False modesty in purchasing and preparing foods is a detriment to lower prices. Do not hesitate to let your neighbor know that you are extremely proud of your low-cost meals and that you are most anxious to continue them.

think rouge a good thing they can use it but I think it is disgusting to see a young girl or a woman with checks the color of a brick wall.

HOW fine it is that there are as many a woman?" The question was asked by a young man who signed himself the color of a brick wall.

HOW fine it is that there are as many a woman with checks by a young man who signed himself the color of a brick wall. by a young man who signed himself "S." This answers him directly. Here is the letter:

No man who is really loved needs to ask that question. Almost cre the truth has dawned upon the woman herself, the object of her love has sensed it. He needs but to look into her eyes, for in their depths he will see what mere words will fail to tell.

The smallest kindness or the most trifling gifts, some little thing of no intrinsic value will be far more appreciated by a loving girl than all of "Miss Gimme's" costly presents.

"S." dear, it seems foolish of you to ask that question. When a woman loves you she will want to share every joy; even a lovely sunset will chuse her to long for you to be there to enjoy it too. She will likewise want to help bear sorrows and hardships when they beset you. Her whole heart's desire will be to bring all the good things she can into your life, and to do all in her power to smooth the rugged places. Every look and move will show it. "S." for words are of little use to the woman who loves. Why do I know these things? You've guessed it long "GREEN'S, 4th & Vine Sts."
