There are two ways of reducing livng costs, he said.

"The first is by increasing production or a noint where the supply of goods will be greater than before in proporto the population, and each per-eccordingly.

Should Help Stabilize Trade The second way is to develop suc an interchange of goods throughout the world that no nation will have a sur-plus of things which it does not want while some other nation is unable to get enough for its needs."

The surest way of increasing produc-tion today. Mr. Sisson continued, is to furnish the materials that European contries will need to resume opera-ons. Influence also should be exer-sed, he said, to establish stabilized raditions in other countries so that he world's producing capacity may be seed to the greatest advantage.

Pointing out that the development of a large merchant marine will add to America's ability to invest capital in other countries. Mr. Sisson stated America must seize its opportunities in foreign trade and the foreign investment field.

"The American public must be educated to see the necessity of investing in foreign securities and the relation that it bears to our own industrial and eco-nomic life," he added.
