

WOODWARD FIGHTS UNORDERED SUITS

Former State Senator Instructs Attorney to Probe Action by Two Lawyers

DEFENDANT DENIES CASES

Dr. George Woodward, state senator and physician, has turned over to his lawyer, George Wharton Pepper, for investigation a report regarding a suit for $10,000 damages, instituted against him. The suit was dropped yesterday upon information that it had been brought without knowledge or consent of the injured person, alleged to be the plaintiff.

Doctor Woodward has prepared another report regarding a letter received from another attorney. The letter stated that this lawyer represented the same injured person. No papers have yet been served on Doctor Woodward in the second suit, though a summons was obtained November 15.

Both cases are believed by Doctor Woodward to be the outcome of a practice of lawyers' agents visiting accident victims in hospitals after they are taken there, and persuading them to engage attorneys to represent them, in many cases before they are able to think coherently.

The plaintiff in the $10,000 damage suit dropped yesterday by the attorney in charge of it is Robert Lewis, 1012 Franklinton street. Lewis suffered a fractured leg, November 9, when he was struck by an automobile driven by Doctor Woodward's son. He was taken to the Jefferson Hospital, where he now is.

Monday Doctor Woodward received a summons from Hugh Roberts, a lawyer in the Ferry building, to appear in court to answer a damage suit for $10,000, filed by Lewis. The senator says he visited Lewis and was told he had hired no attorney and had not authorized any suit. Lewis made an affidavit to this effect.

"Lewis said he was driven almost crazy by persons who visited him, trying to persuade him to give them power of attorney, while he was in great pain and hardly knew what he was doing," said Doctor Woodward.

The injured man told Doctor Woodward that a man named B. F. Riley had visited him, "held his hand on a pen" and signed a paper. This paper proved to be a power of attorney.

Riley has a desk in Mr. Roberts' office. When questioned about the case, Roberts announced that if the affidavit made by Lewis, stating that he had hired no attorney, was true, he would not handle the case. An hour later Doctor Woodward received a letter containing an order of discontinuance and offering to pay the costs of discontinuance.

Today Doctor Woodward said that November 11 Henry J. Scott, a lawyer in the Penn Square Building, had sent him a letter stating that he represented Lewis. A few days later Doctor Woodward was informed that a summons in a damage suit for Lewis had been obtained from the prothonotary's office by Mr. Scott. This summons up to this morning had not been served, and no statement of claim has been filed.

However, Doctor Woodward will turn over this letter in a report to Mr. Pepper. He is determined to fight the matter to the limit.

"It certainly is strange that a man in a normal state of mind would hire two lawyers separately to represent him," said Doctor Woodward today.

"I have written a letter to William Potter, who I since learned is out of the country, regarding this matter. Mr. Potter is head of the board of trustees of the hospital. I am going on with this. By doing so I think I am doing the public a service."

When questioned regarding the summons in behalf of Lewis Mr. Scott said he didn't know anything about it but if he obtained it, it was obtained with a power of attorney given by Lewis.
