

COURTESY IS MOTTO OF DURELL SHUSTER

Secretary to Moore Receives Congratulations of Friends, Who Say He'll Be Popular HAS SOME NEW IDEAS

Telephone and personal calls of congratulation swept in upon Durell Shuster, the newly appointed private secretary of Mayor-elect Moore today in the office of the congressman in the Crozer Building.

Mr. Shuster's friends told him that he would be one of the most popular private secretaries in City Hall since the days when J. Hampton Moore was private secretary to Mayor Ashbridge.

The new private secretary, when he takes office in City Hall after the first of the year, will mark a change in type in private secretaries to Mayors—so far as recent Mayors go, at any rate. Mr. Shuster will be the late and hearty kind of secretary who believes in the Coghnesque maxim, "Always leave them laughing when you say good-by."

He has a way of receiving a visitor who is weighted down with some heavy solution of grave public questions and making the caller happy, even though he never sees the caller again. One such caller desired to see Mr. Moore and explain that horses in the service of the city should be protected against the cold of winter by a certain kind of blanket.

And Skates for Policemen

"Fine," said Shuster. "Great stuff. I'm for it. But how about red sweaters for the horses? Then, too, we might give the policemen roller skates so they could get up speed in pursuing criminals."

The visitor enjoyed the fun and left with the impression that he had made "a hit."

"How does it feel to be a mayor's private secretary?" Mr. Shuster was asked.

"Same as always. I was born a secretary. I have been secretary to Moore so long that it seems as if I had always been a secretary."

"What is the secret of being a good private secretary?"

"Being the goat," replied Shuster with a broad smile. "I believe, however, a private secretary is one who takes the burden off the shoulders of his chief; who relieves him of the details and only brings the important things to the attention of the chief."

"Another thing," said Shuster. "I believe that a private secretary should keep himself in the background and not try to set up letters for himself. The chief should be the whole works."

"Have you any special ideas for the office in City Hall?" was another question.

Courtesy His Watchword

"Yes," replied Mr. Shuster with emphasis. "I certainly have. Callers at the Mayor's office should be received with courtesy. I am not criticizing anybody, but the one thing that I believe in is courtesy. A courteous secretary is as much of an asset to a public official as a discourteous secretary is a distinct liability. He best serves his chief in public office who serves the public well."

Secretary Shuster is adept at getting rid of volumes of correspondence. As secretary to the Mayor he will no doubt duplicate his performance as secretary to Congressman Moore and to the Atlantic Deep Water Ways Association. Often he is seen in the congressman's office dictating letters to two or three stenographers, at almost the same time, answering the telephone and greeting visitors with a friendly word.

As secretary to Congressman Moore since 1908 Mr. Shuster has acquired a wide acquaintance with public men of this and other cities. He is as familiar with the leaders of the country who make Washington their political headquarters as he is with the ward and division leaders of Philadelphia. Further, he knows most of the leaders in the coastwise states by reason of his activities in the waterways movement.

Girl, 5, Dies From Burns

Thelma Austin, five years old, 3044 North Woodstock street, died in the Samaritan Hospital yesterday as the result of the campaign for ratification when her clothing caught fire from a gas range near which she was playing. Mrs. Anna Austin, the child's mother, was burned trying to extinguish the flames.

STEEL MAN PROUD OF WIFE WHO SAVED HIM FROM DEATH

Selden S. Deemer Escapes Assassin's Bullet by Quick Action of Mrs. Deemer—Instinct of Woman, He Says. Thankful? Well!

When a man's wife has just saved him from being assassinated there isn't any need to hunt around for something to be thankful for on Thanksgiving. And maybe he isn't proud of that wife!

That is the way Selden S. Deemer, president of the New Castle Steel Co., feels today, which happens to be the fifty-eighth anniversary of his birth.

Genial and smiling as though his life had never been in danger, Mr. Deemer went about his business as usual, just once in a while remembering that he had a sore ear, cut last night by splintered glass from a limousine window when a would-be assassin shot at him.

Mrs. Deemer, whose quickness in pushing her husband down into the limousine seat, saved his life, spent today shopping in Philadelphia.

"Women seem to have an instinct for meeting emergencies in the right way," Mr. Deemer said today. "Mrs. Deemer and I had just taken some friends to the station in Wilmington and were returning home."

"As we rode along French street, between Fourth and Fifth streets, where the street is poorly lighted, Mrs. Deemer saw a man standing with something gleaming in his hand. She called to the chauffeur and at the same time pushed me down in the seat."

"The speeding up of the car and my stopping position saved my life. The bullet crashed through the window of the car and lodged in the opposite side of the limousine, right in line with where my head would normally have been. A splinter of glass cut my left ear, but it's just a scratch. Fortunately, I didn't even see the man with the revolver or realize what was happening till it was all over. I am confident he was one of the I. W. W. from whom we may expect any number of such attempts. They've sworn to kill all who have any money, and divide the spoils. Am I going to be guarded hereafter? Gosh, no! I am willing to take chances. If they get me before I spot them, all right."

"I've been forty-three years in the steel business and I know I have to take chances. But then, you know," and there was a twinkle in his eyes, "only the good die young. And I am fifty-eight years young today."

WARNS OF PNEUMONIA

Director Krusen Urges Proper Clothing and Ventilation as Safeguard Warning that this is a bad period of the year for pneumonia has been issued by Dr. Wilmer Krusen, director of public health and charities.

He advises avoidance of exposure and care in choosing proper clothing.

He also says that pneumonia is a "bad-air" disease, and advises that watchful attention be paid to the ventilation of offices, workshops and homes.

Accused of Attempted Robbery

Camden Recorder Says Wife Deserves Credit for Job

"A woman who gives her husband a black eye deserves credit—when she does it in self-defense."

Recorder Stackhouse, of Camden, made this comment today after hearing the case of August Catalink, of Ninth street and Ferry avenue, who was arrested charged with attacking his wife.

Catalink pointed to a blackened eye, which he said had been administered by his wife. He admitted they often fought. "You got what you deserved," said the recorder. Catalink was sent to the county jail for two months.

Exquisite Hardman-built Grand Pianos—Gimbels

Hardman is the Piano of Grand Opera—the Piano with That Purity and Power of Tone that Safely Accompanies the Singer in the Most Subtle Nuance of Musical Expression.

Hardman Grand Pianos, $1050
Harrington Grand Pianos, $825

"Leadership" lies in the acclaim of others and not in self-assertion, and the very great majority of Grand Opera stars—most particular of people as to trusting themselves to sing with an instrument—find inspiration and tonal support in the Hardman—and order and use exclusively the Hardman.

After years of fine accomplishment Messrs. Hardman, Peck & Co., New York, took over the good old plant of E. C. Harrington & Co., determined to produce the Hardman piano in the original Hardman factory and a less expensive line in the Harrington factory. As to price, they held to their intention, but in musical excellence they brought the instruments to a new perfection.

Therefore, choose Hardman or Harrington as your fancy dictates. Hardman, Peck & Co. vouch for both—they make them.

We share the calamity of having fewer pianos than demanded—production cannot hold up. Not another instrument is promised before Christmas.
