Texan Has Chance to Take Derr's Place in Battle Against Rush's Cornell Eleven

By EDWIN J. POLLOCK JOE STRAUS, the Texas line-backer, is tapping some too gently for admission to the Penn varsity eleven, and it would be no great surprise if the southerner were in the backfield at the start of the Cornell fracas Thursday afternoon.

SPEEDY RUSH

The Quakers pulled out in the White-marsh Valley Country Club yesterday in soft-cushioned automobiles and took a workout on the green of the golf course. Sir Joseph was at the front halfback position and ran through the signals with the varsity.

Two years ago Straus dented every line he touched and he looks ready to tear the Titans apart. He is not the defensive player that Derr is, but the representative of the West has little, if anything, on the nominee from the South when it comes to raining the good intentions of defenders.

SCRAPS ABOUT SCRAPPERS

"DUBBERY BILL" MEEHAN, Dave Arvey's fat little fellow, waddled quietly, unannounced and uninvited into New York town the other day, and then very noisily issued a sweeping challenge to any heavyweight in the world who wants to meet Jack Dempsey.

Cuban, Joe Jackson vs. Sol O'Donnell and Harry Brenner vs. Jimmy Doyle.

BIG CROWDS STAY AWAY FROM SOCCER

But Interest in Interscholastic League May Thrive Now, With Football Over

NORTHEAST-FRANKFORD TIE

Scholastic soccer has been holding a place far from the local athletic spot-glare. There have been as many as eleven spectators, including coaches and managers, at some of the big games. Even the well-known "hot-dog" man fails to show up on snowy days.

One team doesn't know how many games an opposing eleven has won, lost or tied. No one man knows the standing of the interscholastic league. Managers and coaches have to ponder, even delve into statistics, to find out how their own team is faring.

After some eleven games were over sufficient information was gathered to drop out the standing of the league, which is as follows, providing it is correct:

The above standing shows that Northeast and Frankford are deadlocked, but the Archives have a little the better of it because they have participated in one more game.

Some of the biggest crowds of the season have been absent from contests Frankford teams. These two elevens have been playing a swell game of the British sport, according to our informant.

It is said that Northeast has a right fullback who looks like a second Bill Spaulding, and Richard, they say, was one of the greatest soccer exponents of all time.

Harry Blair, captain of Frankford High, stands out as one of the leading soccerites in the league. He holds down the inside right job, and Harry is paired off well with Schwartz at inside left.

Thompson, center forward, and Jaska, center halfback, are a pair of the Frankford stars.
