DID you ever bear of a knifeless.
Well, there was one given the other day by a hostess out on the Main Line and every one was as curious as curious could be to know how she would manage.
To be sure, "fingers were made before forks," but then forks are pretty nice and it's use an awfully pretty

I THINK the Bartows have decided on a beautiful way of bringing Elizabeth out. They will give a succession or series of three theatre parties before three balls at the end of December. The first will be before the Powell Evans ball on December 23, the second before the Roland Taylor ball on December 23, and the third before the Heary Briton Coze ball for Catherine Coze on December 31.

The hostess was rather stumped when it came to dessert; and then she had a brilliant idea. She turned paper drinking cups upside down and cut holes in the center; then she made crepe paper tulins and placed them about the cups and filted them into the hole in the paper cup. They looked perfectly loyely. Coffee already sweetcaed and almonds and caudy were served after the luncheon and then there were cards. But first, believe me, there were fanger.
