SISTINE QUARTET TO SING

Tomorrow's Concert Here Will Aid Catholic Society

The final appearance of the Sistine Chapel Quartet, of Rome, which is just completing a concert tour of this country, will be tomorrow night in the Academy of Music.

The proceeds of this concert, which is the first in this city, will be donated to the Catholic Missionary Society of Philadelphia, under whose auspices the entertainment will be given.

The quartet is scheduled to return to Rome for the usual Christmas festival in the Vatican. The tour of this country has been a series of ovations, both from clergy and laymen alike.

The Rev. Father Edward J. Lynn, diocesan director of the Catholic Missionary Society, secured the services of the quartet as a means of raising necessary funds after much trouble, since the quartet must shortly return overseas.

The society, which Father Lynn has directed for the last four years, has for its purpose the spiritual and moral uplift of all the Italian children in Philadelphia. The work is centered in the so-called Italian district, bounded by South street, Snyder avenue, Sixteenth street and the Delaware river.

Two clubhouses have been established under the direction of the society. They are the Madonna House, 814 South Tenth street, and L'Aussunta House, 1431 South Tenth street.

The Italian children are trained in the methods of taking care of themselves physically and mentally. More than 3000 children and grownups attend the weekly entertainments given at the two clubhouses. Baseball, basketball and other sports are participated in by both boys and girls.

The little foreigners are taught the English language by sisters and by members of the laity who devote a night or nights every week to the class of instruction.

Auto Destroyed by Fire
Harry Raubin, 327 Porter street, discovered his automobile afire last night as he was driving it on Lehigh avenue near Thirty-first street. Two fire companies were called to extinguish the blaze. Raubin estimates his loss at $1000.

SINNERS HE SAVED MOURN FOR LONG

Men Pulled From Underworld Flock to Inasmuch Mission, Where Founder Lies Dead

HE ONCE WAS AN OUTCAST

They were plain men who stopped at the Inasmuch Mission this morning, men with hard eyes and lined faces, but with expressions changed by a great love and sorrow.

Upstairs lay the body of the mission's founder, George Long, their friend, and the greatest helper of the other fellow in this city has ever known.

These men bore the marks of years of dissipation and shame, but in the steady look of their eyes and the set of the face there was the new light that George Long had brought into their lives. They had stopped at the mission because they wanted to do some last little thing for the man they loved and because, though they knew there was nothing they could do, they felt that his presence must linger about the place that he had built with his hands and heart.

"I've lost the best friend I had in this world," said a middle-aged man, whose face showed in every line the fight he had made for a new start in life.

Saved by Man He Loved

"We all loved George Long, and his death hits us harder than we ever thought anything could," he went on. "He took me out of the gutter and sent me back to my wife and kids, and through him I've been able to stay there ever since."

When George Long's funeral is held from the chapel of the Inasmuch Mission there will be gathered thousands of the highest and lowest of the city. The men and women of the street, of the old "Hell's Half Acre," those whom he has helped to make good citizens of their derelict selves, and the great host of the city whose confidence and love he shared in his work, will bring their last measure of love for the leader of the sinful and the hopeless. There will be no caste at that service.

Death followed a breakdown after a two weeks' campaign in the James Evans Memorial Presbyterian Church, Broad street and Moyamensing avenue. After his success with the Inasmuch Mission Mr. Long had taken part in numerous church campaigns.

The South Philadelphia campaign closed two weeks ago yesterday, and Mr. Long collapsed almost immediately. He seemed to rally toward the end of last week, and on Saturday night Dr. E. Q. Thornton, of Jefferson Hospital, who was attending him, pronounced the patient beyond hope. At midnight, however, he had a relapse.

Mrs. Edna Long, his wife, who assisted him in his mission work and in every evangelistic campaign, and his brother, William H. Long, were at the bedside when the mission leader passed away. Three sisters also survive him, Mrs. Wallace Hard and Mrs. Charles Marsellus, of Rochester, N. Y., and Mrs. William Works, of Milwaukee.

His Remarkable Career

Formerly the companion of thieves and drug bands, Mr. Long was converted at the Galilee Mission, Vine and Darien streets, and after establishing the Inasmuch Mission became the friend and associate of many of Philadelphia's leading financiers and business men, Bishop Rhinelander and Anthony J.

BATTLE UNDERWAY FOR CONGRESS SEAT

Sheriff Ransley and Isadore Stern Already in Field for Moore's Place

LATTER OUT OF DISTRICT

A fight is looming up in the Third Congressional district for the seat Mayor-elect Moore will vacate the latter part of this month.

Already two candidates are in the lists to succeed Mr. Moore in the national House of Representatives, Sheriff Harry C. Ransley, chairman of the Republican city committee, is the Vore candidate. Former State Representative Isadore Stern also is in the fight.

The Third Congressional district includes the Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Sixteenth, Seventeenth, Eighteenth and Nineteenth wards.

It is bounded by Wharton street, Passunk avenue, Ellsworth street, Broad street, Fitzwater street, then Seventh street to Vine street to Sixth street north to Germantown and Lehigh avenues and east to the Delaware river.

A little later at the Jersey McAuley Mission, in New York, Long met Miss Edna Faulkner, a visitor, and on the first night he saw her he whispered to "his buddy," "I'm going to marry that girl." His "buddy" stared in surprise and ejaculated, unaccountably, "You've been talking hoo again."

Mr. Long made good on his prediction, and on December 5, 1909, he married Miss Faulkner in St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, Eighth and Spruce streets.

Bishop Rhinelander is president of the board of directors, which includes George Wharton Pepper, A. J. Drezel Biddle, A. E. Newbold, Jr., A. V. Morton and Dr. George Woodward.

OBEDY LAW, CATHOLICS TOLD

Speakers Urge Club Members to Respect Constituted Authority

Young Catholic manhood was exhorted to take a strong stand on all attacks against constituted authority at a rally held yesterday afternoon by the Kayoula Catholic Club, of St. Anthony's parish, Twenty-third and Carpenter streets.

The rally opened a campaign to strengthen all Catholic young men's clubs in the city. Speakers included the Rev. Francis A. Brady, who asserted that it is impossible for a good Catholic to be a bad citizen, and Michael J. Slattery, who told of the great aid given the country by Catholics during the war. Other speakers were the Rev. Thomas Ryan, George Boyle, Homer T. Sullivan and Charles B. Downs.

Templars at Church Service

Accompanied by their band of 100 pieces, more than 200 Knights Templar of Kadosh Commandery No. 29, last night attended services in the First Baptist Church, Seventeenth and Sanson streets. Members of four other commanderies attended as guests of Kadosh Commandery.

The Store for the Discriminating Christmas Shopper

A Safe Store
An Economical Store
A Pleasant, Cheerful Store
A Store With Wide Variety of Stocks

Only dependable merchandise is sold here, and one always feels assured that the gift purchased at Darlington's is good intrinsically.

We do not, of course, handle "bargain goods" nor cater to a clientele with whom mere cheapness is a prime requisite, nor are we a high-price, exclusive store. Our stocks are made up of reliable wares such as most Philadelphians want and which are always the most economical in the long run. On such goods our prices are no higher and in many instances less than elsewhere.

Ceilings are high here; the building is well lighted and well ventilated; the general environment is cheerful and refined. Our service is not perfect, nor are our employees infallible, but we believe that at no other store will you get better attention. We want you to feel that you are welcome here, whether you purchase or not.

Christmas gift buying is easy here because of the variety of stocks. You are not limited to any one line but can buy advantageously an inexpensive Handkerchief or a luxurious Davenport. On every one of the four selling floors is something of interest.

Particular attention is directed to the Furniture Gift Room on the Fourth Floor; the Linerie, Negligees, Robes, Silk Petticoats on the Second Floor; the Blouses and Furs on the Third Floor.
