Nancy Wynne Tells of the Debutantes at the Second Opera Performance of the Season-She Hears of Plans for the Mother Goose Carnival

THERE were more debutantes at the street, where they will remain for the opera last evening than on the opening night, and they did look charming, so fresh and young and spontaneous. Eleanor and Rosamond Wurts were with their aunt, Mrs. Edmund McCullough, who had the George Packard box for the evening. Rachel Price and Betty Elliott were in the Eli K. Price box with Rachel's parents, and Poily Thayer, Pauline Bell and Gertrude Conaway were the guests of Mrs. Clyde, I was giad to see Engenia Cassatt home from her nursing course for a Conaway were the guests of Mrs. Clyde.

I was giad to see Engenia Cassatt home from her nursing course for a while. She looks awfully well and enjoys the work beyond everything else. She was a guest of the Clarrie Dolans at the opera.

There certainly can be no complaint from dressmakers and hairdressers this season, can there? So many new and lovely frocks and so many smart ways of arranging and ornamenting the hair.

Polly Thayer looked perfectly lovely in a white satin and silver frock. She had a brilliant red outrich feather fan, and that, with the white gown and her dark hair, made a most wenderful contrast. Pauline Bell wore a beautiful frock of peacock blue and gold brocade. Catherine Coxe looked lovely in cream white satin. Mrs. Archibaid Barklie, who was a guest in Mr. George McFadden's box, wore a black velvet and fergown which was immensely becoming.

And Mrs. Kearsley Mitchell chose a wooderful shade of red velvet, the upper part of the gown being formed of sequined red taile.

Mrs. Caruso was in the first prosection box, Sol looked very girlish and Mrs. Claured taile.

Besides all this, there is to be exhibition dancing, fortune telling and general dancing in the Rose Garden. It sounds awfully pretty to me. And the best part of it is that the kiddles from the Northern Home will not only benefit by the party, but will take part themselves. They will be with the Old Woman in the Shoe.

you ever know a furnace to go wrong on any day but a holiday, when one who understands it thoroughly is, of course, not at the shop?

Well, the furnace of the home of certain people whom you know and I know went wrong on said day, and it was cold and therefore dangerous to have no heat.

So a kind relative bethought himself of one of the head men at the works, who always knew just what to do and that he had a telephone. Well, he called him up, and straightway said man replied he would come at once, but he had his little girl with him that day and did not know what to do with her.

"Bring her along," said Mr. T—. So he did, and while he arranged the furnace, Mrs. T— took the little girl in hand and talked with her.

Little Carlotta wanted to see the house, so Mrs. T— took her all through it, and it was very evident that one parent in her family had Italian bood, for everything in the house that was of Italian persuasion was greatly admired by Carlotta.

After she had seen the second floor she asked in an interested tone: "These are such pretty rooms; have you got them all rented?" "Oh, no' said Mrs.
