

LEGION MAKES PLEA FOR BIG PRODUCTION

'Dollar's Work for Dollar's Pay' Urged by Members of Kensington Branch

TWO POSTS COMBINE FORCES

"Let all Americans give one dollar's worth of work for each dollar they receive" is the new slogan adopted by Kensington Post, No. 8, of which Dr. Thomas Matlock, 270 East York street, is commander.

"This post has gone on record, it was announced yesterday, as being in favor not only of 100 per cent Americanism, but also of 100 per cent production, in order that the individual members of the legion may thereby contribute their share in the effort to lower the prices of commodities.

"Should any difficulties arise with the members of the legion in raising this standard of efficiency, producing, they are to report it to their local post," it is stated in a communication from T. W. Thompson, the post adjutant, "to the end that production may be increased and prices brought down."

Post No. 68 is located in the heart of the busiest milling and factory district of the city. It feels, therefore, that such a movement can well start in such an environment and spread throughout the other sections of Philadelphia.

New officers have been announced by Post No. 174, which is the central post of Philadelphia county. The original work of organizing this post was done largely under the direction of Otto R. Heiligman, the county treasurer, and the post has progressed to the point where it promises to become one of the big factors in the Philadelphia organization. The officers are:

H. R. Tully, 1412 Chestnut street, post commander; William J. Flynn, 218 South Fifteenth street, adjutant.

It is working out for membership in the Eighth and Ninth wards, which are the centrally located wards of the city. It is anticipated by Commander Tully that it will be possible to enroll in this post the great majority of the citizens in these wards, because of the convenience of the meeting place, and the membership already obtained.

Post 140, with its membership coming from both the Thirteenth and Fourteenth wards, is aiming to reach the 200 mark in paid-up members before January 1. Originally there were one post charter for each of these wards, but it was considered advisable to combine the two charters and build up one strong post. The officers are: William J. Linton, commander; John Crosson, adjutant; and Zenas Pendleton, finance officer.

There is every indication that, in line with the policy outlined by the national organization of the legion at the Minneapolis convention, a number of small posts will be amalgamated in Philadelphia county, provided the new county committee deems this the wise course to pursue.

The new county committee will be organized at a meeting in the Chamber of Commerce assembly hall, Widener Building, next Monday evening, and will be one of the most important which the legion has held since its organization here.

Or the newly-elected officers of the committee will devote the work of carrying forward the program of the legion when it is still in its formative state, and this will require officers with vision, initiative and judgment.

Fourth Naval District Post No. 195, elected permanent officers last night in the Bellevue-Stratford. G. A. Bisher was the unopposed candidate for commander, and William H. Creamer, jr., one of the state delegates to the national convention, became vice commander. Officers elected were: G. A. Hougnet, adjutant; R. J. Nelson, finance officer, and Captain C. H. Dickins, chaplain of the Philadelphia Navy Yard, was appointed chaplain by the new commander.

Mr. Creamer addressed the post on the part Philadelphia delegates played in the convention. He made the announcement that the French government will present memorials to families which lost sons during the war at a meeting to be held in the Metropolitan Opera House on February 22. General Pershing has wired that he will endeavor to be present, and Governor Sprout and Mayor-elect Moore have accepted invitations to speak.

Post No. 195 will have permanent quarters in the Bellevue-Stratford.

war. Post 180, American Legion, has been named the Thomas Roberts Reath Marine Post. With a membership of more than 800 marines and ex-marines this is one of the three largest units of the veterans' organization in this city.

Sergeant Reath was one of "The Fighting Five," composed of sons of prominent families with wealth, position and ease at their command, who enlisted as privates in the Fifth Regiment of marines. Originally it was their intention to enter officers' training camps, but the opportunity to enlist for immediate service with the distinguished Fifth Regiment was more than they could resist. Young Reath, who was then not yet twenty-one, was killed in action at Chateau Thierry on June 12, 1918.

Post No. 21, American Legion, will have its first annual reception and dance tonight at McCre's Dancing Academy, Ninth and Main streets, Darby.

He gave his opinion last night in an address before the Cooper Literary Institute, in the Schuylker Building, Sixth and Diamond streets.
